Icy Weather Grips Texas, Other Areas

Snows, Freezing Cold Blasts Hit Most Of Nation

By United Press International

Vicious wintry weather slashed into much of the nation from California to the Ohio Valley Saturday and brought blizzard conditions, heavy snows and frigid temperatures. The Weather Bureau predicted more of the same for Sunday.

For the third time in five weeks frost threatened vegetable and citrus crops.

WARNINGS POSTED

Blizzard conditions and sub-zero cold gripped much of Montana. In Utah, the temperature dropped to 30 below at Woodruff and a record 15 below at Salt Lake City.

The entire state of Texas, where Rio Grande Valley crops suffered extensive frost damage just one week ago, braced for a major storm. Snow and below - freezing temperatures were expected throughout Texas.

The Weather Bureau predicted arctic air would cover the eastern third of the nation by this morning. Heavy snows swept across the plains from Texas to Illinois and more snow and falling temperatures were expected. Ten inches of snow fell in parts of Chicago.

At least 16 deaths were blamed on weather-related mishaps. There were five deaths in Colorado and three in Maine. Most deaths came in traffic accidents on snow - covered and wet roads.

Sunray, in the Texas panhandle, had a temperature of 12 below Saturday, and it was five below at Dalhart and four below at Amarillo. In central Texas snow fell on ice formed by freezing rain, making driving hazardous.

Winter crops in southern California and Arizona also were threatened by sub-freezing readings.

The arctic blast drove temperatures well under the zero mark from the Rocky Mountains to Iowa. Butte, Mont., had a reading of 44 below. It was 28 below at Bismarck, N. D., 25 below at Rapid City, S. D., 17 below at North Platte, Neb., and eight below at Des Moines, Iowa.

By contrast winter vacationers in Florida basked in 70-degree temperatures.

Just five weeks ago Florida's citrus and vegetable crops were hit by the coldest weather of the century.

Winds up to 40 miles an hour whipping up snow slowed down drivers on the highways in Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska.

The mercury at Fort Worth, Tex., fell 32 degrees in six hours Saturday, dropping to the 'teens.

Temperatures dipped to freezing for the sixth consecutive day in Southern California where the state's citrus crop suffered $3 million damage several days ago.

Semester Near End At NLSC; Registration Set

The fall semester at Northeast Louisiana State College will end officially at 4 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 31, with regular registration slated for Wednesday - Thursday, Feb. 6-7, for the spring semester.

Registration for Saturday, late afternoon and evening classes will be held Thursday - Friday, Jan. 31-Feb. 1.

Classes will begin at 8 a.m., Friday, Feb. 8, with the spring semester scheduled to end on June 6.

Final examinations for the fall semester are scheduled Friday-Wednesday, Jan. 25-30.

During the spring semester, the Easter recess will begin at noon on Thursday, April 11, with classes to resume at 8 a.m., Tuesday, April 16.

'Chutist' Falls To His Death

PRINCETON, Mass. (UPI)—A sport parachutist plunged to his death Saturday before the eyes of his family and a group of Boy and Girl Scouts.

Authorities said Clarence Cusson, 33, was performing the jump for a group of spectators including his wife Alice, their three young children and local Scout troops.

Witnesses said neither his main 'chute or his reserve opened and he plummeted from a small plane to an ice-crusted field.

THE DALLAS COUNTRYSIDE was transformed into a wonderful winter playground Saturday as an inch of snow fell over the Texas city. Despite the chilling 15-degree weather, youngsters like Patti Dreisback, Joan and Toni Glover, shown on their improvised cardboard sled, rushed outdoors to slide down slick hills. And their dog Gopher wasn't to be left behind. (AP Wirephoto)

ANOTHER FRONT HITS

Winter Not Through With Louisiana Yet

The weatherman hinted northeast Louisiana might be in for more unpleasant weather today including freezing drizzle during the early part of the day as another Arctic cold front pushes southward.

Today's high in the Twin Cities is expected to be around 25-38 degrees with the low tonight dipping to 18-25 degrees under cloudy skies, the forecast says.

However, stationary lines to the north of the area may dull the fangs of the southward moving front keeping temperatures at least toward the more moderate of the two readings for highs and lows today.

STILL MILD

The predicted low of 25-28 degrees for Saturday seemed far from materializing late Saturday night with a low reading of 40 degrees recorded. The high bounded to 57 degrees at 2 p.m. Saturday.

At Farmerville, the mercury had dropped from a high of 54 degrees to a low of 36 degrees at 9 p.m. Crossett, Ark. reported no rain with about a 35 degree reading. Tallulah had a slow drizzle and 41 degrees at 9 p.m. Winnfield experienced 52 degrees at 4 p.m. and around 39 degrees at 9 p.m. with no rain nor wind.

Most northeast Louisiana towns experienced drizzling rain during the afternoon as a fore-runner of the front. The Twin Cities' rain gauge measured 0.12 inches of precipitation at 6 p.m.

Rain was heavier in the southern part of the state with New Orleans receiving 2.75 inches within two hours Saturday afternoon. Lake Charles had 1.69 inches and

Postponed

We hear from Monroe Planning Commission Chairman Otis Johnson that the group's meeting, originally set for next Monday, has been pushed back a week until Monday, Jan. 28.

Reason for the delay, he says, is the fact that some of the items due to come up at the session are still under investigation and will require a little more time.

The meeting is definite for the following Monday, however.

He Said It

People are funny and there's no predicting the sudden turns the most ordinary occurrences can take in the area of human relations.

Take for example the other day at the West Monroe city hall when Mrs. Elese Roberts, Judge John McCormick's secretary, was introducing her uncle to Chief of Police Jeff Caldwell.

Not a little surprising was the Chief's comment to her relative that he was a monkey's uncle.

HOME SAFE STOLEN

Dentist Confirms Loss Of $105,000

MADISON, N.C. (AP)—A Madison dentist confirmed Saturday there was $100,000 to $105,000 in a safe stolen from his home.

Dr. C. W. McAnally, 67, said, "That's not my life savings by any means. I've practiced for 40 years and I'm a conservative man. I stay so busy that sometimes I just can't get to the bank. That's how I happened to have so much at home."

The dentist, a widower who lives alone, said there was $75,000 in cash and $25,000 to $30,000 in government securities in the safe.

Dr. McAnally, who discovered the safe missing from his home Thursday night, announced a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the robbers.

He said the robbery was on the maid's day off. He said a key to the front door of the house was taken from a wicker basket hanging by the door.

Nothing was disturbed but the 150-pound safe which was carried out the back door, and apparently loaded into a car. Police said footprints and fingerprints indicated two persons were involved.

Dr. McAnally said he habitually left large sums of money in the safe and that last year was the busiest professionally in his career. He said the bulk of his savings are in banks and loan institutions.

If the stolen money isn't recovered, he said, "I'll get along without it. I've always felt money was a secondary consideration.

"My income increased last year and so did my taxes, and believe me, I paid those taxes," he added.

Both Sides Told Congress Action Is Alternative

NEW YORK (AP)—A presidential board disclosed Saturday it will give striking longshoremen and waterfront employers an "or else" settlement proposal today.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., head of the board appointed by President Kennedy, told a news conference the "package mediation settlement proposal" could be accepted or rejected by the strike parties, but added: "It was made clear to both sides that they could make no greater mistake than to take the false assumption that they could do better by taking their final chance in the halls of Congress."

DEADLINE NEAR

The board has been instructed by Kennedy to prepare recommendations for action by Congress to end the crippling 28-day-old strike if the board's mediation does not succeed by tonight at midnight.

Morse said the mediators' proposal, to be presented to representatives of the International Longshoremen's Association and steamship and stevedoring companies at a meeting today would have the President's approval.

Morse said both sides had agreed to the procedure of a mediator-written proposal and that his board would work through Saturday night, if necessary, to get it ready.

The proposal will cover wages and all other issues in dispute in the strike which has paralyzed shipping all along the East and Gulf coasts. The terms, he added, could be modified by mutual agreement of the union and company negotiators.

Morse said the board intends to give the proposal to the parties today in separate sessions, then call them to a joint meeting.

"When we submit the proposal at this joint session, we shall leave the meeting," the senator added. "It will then be up to them as free Americans to follow any course of action they wish to take."

Bossier Parish Board Offered Gremillion Aid

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion said Saturday that federal payments to schools in impacted areas were immaterial from a legal standpoint.

He said neither Congress nor any civil rights act had given U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy the right to press for school integration in areas where the children of military personnel attend.

He said his office would do everything possible to help Bossier fight the government's suit.

Gremillion said the Bossier Parish school board could meet the challenge by declining future federal aid and by refusing to enroll children of military personnel who live on military bases.

The Justice Department has filed four suits in federal courts in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. The suits contend segregation of children of servicemen and other federal workers in four federally impacted counties violates the 14th amendment of equality under the law.

As to the money, Bossier Parish gets from the government to help pay for the education of the servicemen's children, Gremillion said:

"That's water under the bridge."

Mine Workers' President Dies

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—Thomas Kennedy, president of the United Mine Workers of America, died Saturday at his home here. He was 75.

Kennedy, who became the union president Jan. 14, 1960, succeeding John L. Lewis, had been ill for some time.

The cause of death was not disclosed.

Stolen Art Regained In Gun Battle

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Five stolen paintings valued at $650,000 were recovered by police Saturday night in a wild gun battle with two university students and a girl companion who were transporting the masterpieces in furniture boxes marked "fragile —handle with care."

Officials said all five paintings —seized Wednesday in a brazen art theft by 16 leftist-led antigovernment terrorists—were recovered in perfect condition. The works by Picasso, Van Gogh, Gauguin, Braque and Cezanne had been loaned by the French government for showing here as a goodwill gesture.

TWO WOUNDED

The two male university students, aged 20 and 23, were wounded in the gun battle, captured and hospitalized, police reported. They said the girl also was captured but escaped when the two students grappled with police in a patrol car.

Authorities announced several hours earlier the arrest of a Communist labor official as the suspected ringleader of the Wednesday raid on the Museum of Fine Arts, which triggered a fresh wave of antigovernment terrorism. Two other men also were seized as suspects in a separate gun battle earlier.

Police intercepted the trio with the paintings after receiving a tip that the stolen works were to be moved from one hideout to another to try to evade the massive search President Romulo Betancourt's government mounted after the theft.

Fifty patrol cars were dispatched to prowl the streets and one of them spotted the trio's car in the Alta Florida section of eastern Caracas about 6 p.m., police said.

RED CARPET OUT

Jerry Stovall Gets Twin Cities Acclaim

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

Jerry Stovall had his "Day" here Saturday and the Twin Cities rolled out the best red carpet treatment to welcome home West Monroe's native son and its first football All-American.

The day for the Louisiana State halfback who made every recognized All-America team selected last fall, started with a parade through the downtown streets of this pair of cities on the banks of the Ouachita River.

It ended when the 195-pound speedster was feted with a banquet at the Paragon Club and presented with a 1963 automobile. The gift was described as being a "present from the Twin Cities."

ANOTHER EVENT

In between the parade and the banquet, the West Monroe Optimists Club which sponsored Jerry Stovall Day, held a coffee at the Highland Park Country Club. Like all the other events, it was well-attended.

All along the route of the parade, from the First Baptist Church in West Monroe past the main business district of Monroe on DeSiard Street, the people were congregated despite a dreary sky and a constant threat of rain.

On hand to help honor the hard running Stovall, whose all-around play and clutch touchdown runs were invaluable in guiding LSU to an 8-1-1 season, were three of his teammates — Ray Wilkins, Mickey Cox, the former Neville High tackle, and Fred Miller, an All-American himself. The trio, who journeyed over from Homer where Fred Miller Day was held Friday, also rode in the parade.

"It's all just tremendous," Stovall said in describing the day. "I'll cherish it all of my life." "It's also something I never even dreamed of a few years ago," he

Future Maids, Chauffeurs To Be Different

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The upstairs maid, the downstairs maid, the kitchen maid and the family chauffeur are on their way out, an electronics firm president predicted Saturday.

"Electronic maids for housewives and electronic chauffeurs for automobiles are some of the advances the public can expect in the next few decades," said John F. O'Brien, president of the RCA Victor Distributing Corp.

He said the new maids will be a "household electronic center" that will receive intructions from a magnetic tape, and will take over virtually all the housewife's daily chores. The new chauffeur, he said, will be in the form of an "automatic pilot" that accelerates, brakes, and maintains a safe spacing between itself and other cars in response to electrical signals from wire loops imbedded in the road.

The household electronic center, said O'Brien, "will wake you up in the morning, start the coffeemaker and toaster, cook the bacon and eggs, open the garage door and warm up the car."

EXTRA $30 MILLION

Reily Says Revenue Will Limit Budgets

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Louisiana can count on an extra $25 million to $30 million from existing taxes next fiscal year and state budgets will be held within that level, the governor's finance chief said Saturday.

Since more than $60 million in spending increases already have been asked by the various state agencies, another round of tough budget slashing is in sight.

Budget requests from state officials already exceed the $60 million mark in stepups wanted for the coming fiscal year which starts July 1, Reily said.

The legislative budget committee returns to work Monday to organize a new series of closed hearings with all state agencies.

A new budget for the 1963-64 fiscal year will be presented to the 30-day fiscal legislature which opens in May.

The fiscal session cannot raise taxes or adopt new ones.

The deficit, which state comptroller Roy Theriot said finally reached $80 million, caused the issuance of an unprecedented $60 million bond issue to help operating expenses.

"We'll wind up this fiscal year," Reily said, "with everything as we had anticipated.

"That means we will be able to start off next fiscal year with a clean slate. If we have a normal increase in economic activity, I am confident state revenues will grow $25 million to $30 million next fiscal year.

"As far as we can see now, since no increase in taxes can be considered, next year's state budget will have to be confined to the anticipated increase of $25 million to $30 million."

Five persons were killed in 3 separate car wrecks in the Monroe area in a brief 16-hour span and a sixth person was seriously injured in a fourth accident Saturday morning. Rain swept and icy highways coupled with fog are expected to make driving even more hazardous throughout today, according to state police.

Members of Troop F, state police identified the dead as Mrs. Ethel Lawrence, 62, of 319 Arrant Rd., West Monroe, killed Friday night; Faye DeGraw, 26, of Lake Providence, killed along with two passengers Saturday morning; her passengers, Vester L. Hotel Housing Americans In Saigon Bombed

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —A grenade was thrown at an American military officers' hotel in Saigon Saturday night and Communist guerrillas raided a government outpost near the capital just before U.S. Chief of Staff Gen. Erle G. Wheeler arrived on an inspection visit.

The grenade-throwing terrorist escaped after the missile bounced off a wall surrounding the hotel and exploded on the sidewalk. No one was injured in the blast but fresh warnings went out to Americans to avoid crowds. Authorities feared the Viet Cong might be planning a wave of terror bombings in the capital and other parts of the country where Americans are stationed.

A band of Reds raided Tan Thong, a strategic hamlet 22 miles northwest of Saigon, a few hours before Wheeler arrived there. He headed a party of 12—including five other generals and an admiral—starting a week-long inspection tour.

The Communists killed seven civil guardsmen defending the town, took prisoners, weapons and a radio transmitter and then fled.

The Communists, who have been stepping up their attacks, proposed a four-day cease-fire to celebrate the new year that begins Thursday under the lunar calendar. The temporary truce offer was broadcast by the South Viet Nam National Liberation Front radio.

The government showed no indication of relaxing its drive against the guerrillas. A fairly large "search and clear" operation was launched Friday seven miles northeast of the Trang Bang District in Tay Ninh Province against several Viet Cong underground bases.

Authorities feared the Viet Cong might be planning a wave of terror bombings in the capital and other parts of the country where Americans are stationed.

A band of Reds raided Tan Thong, a strategic hamlet 22 miles northwest of Saigon, a few hours before Wheeler arrived there. He headed a party of 12—including five other generals and an admiral—starting a week-long inspection tour.

The Communists killed seven civil guardsmen defending the town, took prisoners, weapons and a radio transmitter and then fled.

The Communists, who have been stepping up their attacks, proposed a four-day cease-fire to celebrate the new year that begins Thursday under the lunar calendar. The temporary truce offer was broadcast by the South Viet Nam National Liberation Front radio.

The government showed no indication of relaxing its drive against the guerrillas. A fairly large "search and clear" operation was launched Friday seven miles northeast of the Trang Bang District in Tay Ninh Province against several Viet Cong underground bases.

Board Plans Dock Strike Offer Today

Both Sides Told Congress Action Is Alternative

NEW YORK (AP)—A presidential board disclosed Saturday it will give striking longshoremen and waterfront employers an "or else" settlement proposal today.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., head of the board appointed by President Kennedy, told a news conference the "package mediation settlement proposal" could be accepted or rejected by the strike parties, but added: "It was made clear to both sides that they could make no greater mistake than to take the false assumption that they could do better by taking their final chance in the halls of Congress."

DEADLINE NEAR

The board has been instructed by Kennedy to prepare recommendations for action by Congress to end the crippling 28-day-old strike if the board's mediation does not succeed by tonight at midnight.

Morse said the mediators' proposal, to be presented to representatives of the International Longshoremen's Association and steamship and stevedoring companies at a meeting today would have the President's approval.

Morse said both sides had agreed to the procedure of a mediator-written proposal and that his board would work through Saturday night, if necessary, to get it ready.

The proposal will cover wages and all other issues in dispute in the strike which has paralyzed shipping all along the East and Gulf coasts. The terms, he added, could be modified by mutual agreement of the union and company negotiators.

Morse said the board intends to give the proposal to the parties today in separate sessions, then call them to a joint meeting.

"When we submit the proposal at this joint session, we shall leave the meeting," the senator added. "It will then be up to them as free Americans to follow any course of action they wish to take."

Bossier Parish Board Offered Gremillion Aid

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion said Saturday that federal payments to schools in impacted areas were immaterial from a legal standpoint.

He said neither Congress nor any civil rights act had given U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy the right to press for school integration in areas where the children of military personnel attend.

He said his office would do everything possible to help Bossier fight the government's suit.

Gremillion said the Bossier Parish school board could meet the challenge by declining future federal aid and by refusing to enroll children of military personnel who live on military bases.

The Justice Department has filed four suits in federal courts in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. The suits contend segregation of children of servicemen and other federal workers in four federally impacted counties violates the 14th amendment of equality under the law.

As to the money, Bossier Parish gets from the government to help pay for the education of the servicemen's children, Gremillion said:

"That's water under the bridge."

Mine Workers' President Dies

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—Thomas Kennedy, president of the United Mine Workers of America, died Saturday at his home here. He was 75.

Kennedy, who became the union president Jan. 14, 1960, succeeding John L. Lewis, had been ill for some time.

The cause of death was not disclosed.

Stolen Art Regained In Gun Battle

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Five stolen paintings valued at $650,000 were recovered by police Saturday night in a wild gun battle with two university students and a girl companion who were transporting the masterpieces in furniture boxes marked "fragile—handle with care."

Officials said all five paintings—seized Wednesday in a brazen art theft by 16 leftist-led antigovernment terrorists—were recovered in perfect condition. The works by Picasso, Van Gogh, Gauguin, Braque and Cezanne had been loaned by the French government for showing here as a goodwill gesture.

TWO WOUNDED

The two male university students, aged 20 and 23, were wounded in the gun battle, captured and hospitalized, police reported. They said the girl also was captured but escaped when the two students grappled with police in a patrol car.

Authorities announced several hours earlier the arrest of a Communist labor official as the suspected ringleader of the Wednesday raid on the Museum of Fine Arts, which triggered a fresh wave of antigovernment terrorism. Two other men also were seized as suspects in a separate gun battle earlier.

Police intercepted the trio with the paintings after receiving a tip that the stolen works were to be moved from one hideout to another to try to evade the massive search President Romulo Betancourt's government mounted after the theft.

Fifty patrol cars were dispatched to prowl the streets and one of them spotted the trio's car in the Alta Florida section of eastern Caracas about 6 p.m., police said.

RED CARPET OUT

Jerry Stovall Gets Twin Cities Acclaim

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

Jerry Stovall had his "Day" here Saturday and the Twin Cities rolled out the best red carpet treatment to welcome home West Monroe's native son and its first football All-American.

The day for the Louisiana State halfback who made every recognized All-America team selected last fall, started with a parade through the downtown streets of this pair of cities on the banks of the Ouachita River.

It ended when the 195-pound speedster was feted with a banquet at the Paragon Club and presented with a 1963 automobile. The gift was described as being a "present from the Twin Cities."

ANOTHER EVENT

In between the parade and the banquet, the West Monroe Optimists Club which sponsored Jerry Stovall Day, held a coffee at the Highland Park Country Club. Like all the other events, it was well-attended.

All along the route of the parade, from the First Baptist Church in West Monroe past the main business district of Monroe on DeSiard Street, the people were congregated despite a dreary sky and a constant threat of rain.

On hand to help honor the hard running Stovall, whose all-around play and clutch touchdown runs were invaluable in guiding LSU to an 8-1-1 season, were three of his teammates — Ray Wilkins, Mickey Cox, the former Neville High tackle, and Fred Miller, an All-American himself. The trio, who journeyed over from Homer where Fred Miller Day was held Friday, also rode in the parade.

"It's all just tremendous," Stovall said in describing the day. "I'll cherish it all of my life." "It's also something I never even dreamed of a few years ago," he

Future Maids, Chauffeurs To Be Different

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The upstairs maid, the downstairs maid, the kitchen maid and the family chauffeur are on their way out, an electronics firm president predicted Saturday.

"Electronic maids for housewives and electronic chauffeurs for automobiles are some of the advances the public can expect in the next few decades," said John F. O'Brien, president of the RCA Victor Distributing Corp.

He said the new maids will be a "household electronic center" that will receive intructions from a magnetic tape, and will take over virtually all the housewife's daily chores. The new chauffeur, he said, will be in the form of an "automatic pilot" that accelerates, brakes, and maintains a safe spacing between itself and other cars in response to electrical signals from wire loops imbedded in the road.

The household electronic center, said O'Brien, "will wake you up in the morning, start the coffeemaker and toaster, cook the bacon and eggs, open the garage door and warm up the car."

EXTRA $30 MILLION

Reily Says Revenue Will Limit Budgets

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Louisiana can count on an extra $25 million to $30 million from existing taxes next fiscal year and state budgets will be held within that level, the governor's finance chief said Saturday.

Since more than $60 million in spending increases already have been asked by the various state agencies, another round of tough budget slashing is in sight.

Budget requests from state officials already exceed the $60 million mark in stepups wanted for the coming fiscal year which starts July 1, Reily said.

The legislative budget committee returns to work Monday to organize a new series of closed hearings with all state agencies.

A new budget for the 1963-64 fiscal year will be presented to the 30-day fiscal legislature which opens in May.

The fiscal session cannot raise taxes or adopt new ones.

The deficit, which state comptroller Roy Theriot said finally reached $80 million, caused the issuance of an unprecedented $60 million bond issue to help operating expenses.

"We'll wind up this fiscal year," Reily said, "with everything as we had anticipated.

"That means we will be able to start off next fiscal year with a clean slate. If we have a normal increase in economic activity, I am confident state revenues will grow $25 million to $30 million next fiscal year.

"As far as we can see now, since no increase in taxes can be considered, next year's state budget will have to be confined to the anticipated increase of $25 million to $30 million."

Exiles Call For Castro Army Revolt

MIAMI (UPI) — About 80 former officers and men of Fidel Castro's rebel army Saturday called upon the Cuban Army to revolt and launch a campaign of terrorism and sabotage against the Castro government.

The "Message from the Rebel Army in exile to the Rebel Army in Cuba" was signed in the office of exile newscaster Dr. Luis Conte Aguero. He will read the message to Cuba in a short-wave broadcast.

The meeting in his office Saturday afternoon was "the first ever held by former Rebel Army members acting as a unit," Conte Aguero said.

Among the signers was Capt. Eugenio Perez, son of Crescencio Perez, who guided the Castro brothers to safety in the wilds of Oriente Province after their expedition from Mexico was all but wiped out by Batista troops on Dec. 2, 1956. The father remains loyal to Castro.

"Men now in the government, militiamen, rebel soldiers, are fighting for liberty and all will be incorporated in the march of the new Cuba," the message said.

After urging the Army to revolt, the exile soldiers said:

"You fought against Batista for the welfare of Cuba and not the USSR, for our national sovereignty and not for handing it over to a foreign power, for Democracy and not for Communism."

The recommended "sabotage, terrorism, resistance, underground activity, desertions, uprisings in the mountains, armed insurrection."

"All these," the exiled rebel soldiers said "are good methods to demonstrate repugnance for tyranny and love for the liberty which will be reconquered by revolutionary Cuba."

They said that although Castro is known as the "maximum leader," he is really only the "[illegible] puppet of the USSR."

Snows Trap Europe Trains

LONDON (AP) — Britain and most of Europe bundled up Saturday night against blizzards, and icy winds. Transportation foundered as deep snowdrifts cut off many main roads and trapped scores of trains in Europe.

Boats, buses, airlines and telephone links were affected in several countries. Many schoolroom stoves could not cope with the cold during the Saturday sessions common in many European countries.

One man was reported drowned, swept off a gale-buffeted British trawler off the coast.

In the Bay of Biscary 60 miles from the French coast, a U.S. Army landing craft with 12 soldiers aboard was stranded when its engines went dead. The Soviet tanker Alagir took it in tow and headed for St. Nazaire accompanied by a French tug.

In Belgium, where snow and ice blocked road, river and rail routes, observers reported thousands of strange wild birds clustering on frozen canals and ponds. A baker in Boesingne claimed he was attacked by a huge eagle believed to be from northern Siberia.

In Italy, snow fell all night as far south as Bologna and Florence. A landslide derailed a train between Florence and Rome, injuring ten persons.

In Germany, blizzards trapped many trains, blocked the Munich-Berlin Autobahn for several hours, and left several other main highways impassable.

Car ferries were suspended on the major Bavarian lakes. Motorists just drove across the ice.

In East Germany, train schedules were cut. The village of Frankenheim was reported to be snowed in, as was one passenger train.

Paris had its coldest recorded Jan. 19 when the thermometer plunged to 10 degrees. Schools at Le Havre sent children home because they could not keep the classrooms warm.

In Poland, 30,000 workers were reported digging out the snow-clogged state railways. The temperature sank to 22 below and 1,500 schools were closed.

In Denmark, icebreakers strove around the clock to keep open vital sea lanes.

By contrast, the weather warmed up on the Baltic coast of the Soviet Union because of warm air blowing in from the North Atlantic.

In the British Isles, gales and blizzards disrupted road and rail traffic.

The temperature in London was 23 degrees, coldest for the date in 22 years.

Yugoslavia was covered by thick snow which paralyzed traffic

Rancher Gets $133,000 After Cattle Drive

HIGHMORE, S.D. (AP) — Bethel Frei, Missouri River rancher, realized a nice profit from years of work Saturday when his herd of 530 Black Angus cattle was sold at auction for $133,000.

More than 1,000 buyers and curious onlookers crowded into the Highmore auction barn to see auctioneer Jean Dehaven sell the herd in a scant two hours.

The bidding among buyers from the Dakotas, Nebraska, Iowa and Minnesota was active and the cattle brought good prices.

Frei, members of his family and 19 drovers attracted nationwide attention last week when they drove the big herd 56 miles overland in sometimes bitter cold weather from Frei's 3,000-acre ranch southeast of Pierre, S.D., to the sale pen here.

Frei had estimated the value of the herd at $150,000 but said he was nonetheless very satisfied with the sale.

The rancher estimates he saved about $2,000 by driving the cattle to market rather than trucking them.

Proposed Pay Hikes Exclude Most Reserves

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's military pay raise proposals, to be submitted to Congress next week, will exclude more than two-thirds of the nation's one million civilian reservists.

Defense officials said Saturday that about 100,000 officers and more than 165,000 enlisted men in the National Guard and other reserve outfits are scheduled to get the increased pay, because they are rated as volunteers.

But another 225,000 officers and 525,000 enlisted men now on the civilian military payroll, will be omitted, because they have a compulsory legal obligation for service in the reserves.

The exclusion plan was first disclosed in President Kennedy's budget message to Congress earlier this week. But the step had been recommended earlier by McNamara and a Defense Department panel which studied military compensation.

The mammoth pay raise—first in five years for the armed forces—would average 14.4 per cent and cost $1.7 billion a year. Chief beneficiaries would be the 2,700,000 regular servicemen where the payroll has already climbed to $6.7 billion a year.

The civilian military payroll is $375 million annually. This would be increased between $28 and $32 million by the partial raises the department is recommending. An across-the-board inclusion of the reserves in the new pay schedules would cost probably $40 million more.

Singer Frankie Avalon Weds On West Coast

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Singer Frankie Avalon and Kay Deibel, a former dental technician, exchanged wedding vows Saturday in the chapel of St. Charles Roman Catholic church.

The ceremony was private but about 50 persons, mostly teen-age fans of the singer, milled about outside.

Avalon, 22, arrived early and paced up and down until Miss Deibel showed up 30 minutes later.

Avalon's manager, Bob Marcucci, was best man. Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Michael Wayne, the bride's sister. Mrs. Wayne is the daughter-in-law of actor John Wayne.

Think
Think about
One Million Dollars.

There are many things
You can do with a million
Dollars. You can spend it. You
Can bury it in a tin can. You can invest
It in greyhound races, football games and
Jai Alai matches.

Spending it is probably the most fun. But spending
All you have is not conducive to your future security.

If you bury it in a tin can, you have the bother of digging
A very large hole. Also, it won't earn much while interred, and Drainage can be a problem.

Speculating on the outcome of sporting contests may make you rich, but
Not likely. You could lose your whole million dollars .....and your shirt.

There is a better way to make your million dollars work for you. CTP. The Collateral Trust Plan. This pays five percent interest per annum, payable Semi-annually, and it's secured one hundred and five percent by FHA insured
Collateral, held in trust for you at Central Savings Bank and Trust Company

And funds are available when needed, and you don't have to sacrifice
Interest to withdraw between interest payment dates. At the end
Of just one year your Million Dollars will have grown by fifty

Three Seek Labor Party Leader Post

LONDON (AP)—Britain's Labor party moved Saturday night toward choice of a new leader with anxiety in the ranks that a fight could hurt the chances of the Socialists taking over the government.

Three political veterans—none very well known outside Britain—were in the race for the job that could make the winner prime minister in the event the Laborites win the next election.

The death of leader Hugh Gaitskell, 5 , Friday night created the possibility of a struggle between right- and left-wing factions—feuds that have split the party in the past.

Gaitskell himself had trouble gaining the allegiance of both factions. But he succeeded and raised high Labor's hopes for challenging Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's Conservatives in the elections, which must take place before October 1964.

The Socialist "shadow" cabinet — leaders in Parliament who would form the new government if Labor wins — will meet Monday to consider Gaitskell's successor.

Deputy leader George Brown called the meeting Saturday even before the date has been fixed for Gaitskell's funeral.

Brown, 48, a specialist on defense, is in the party's right-wing camp and has often come under fire from left-wingers for his blunt attacks on communism. He once got into a free-wheeling word fight with Soviet Premier Khrushchev when the Soviet leader met with Labor leaders during a visit to Britain.

James Callaghan, 50, an expert on financial policy who looms as a possible compromise choice between Wilson and Brown.

There is also the possibility of a dark horse emerging in the event of a deadlock—but few think this likely.

Brown and Wilson made pleas to maintain party unity, keeping in mind the division that ravaged the party over defense and nationalization in the mid-1950s.

"There is absolutely no danger of another split," Wilson told reporters. "The policy that Gaitskell played such a leading role in creating will go on as before."

Brown said the movement would not allow Gaitskell's death to impair party morale or unity.

"For a little while we shall all feel cast down. But his death will have no lasting deleterious effect on our will to win."

State newsmen and other officials will make up the list of some 60 persons taking part in the trip, which is sponsored by the Lovely Louisiana Tourist Assocation. Representing Monroe news media will be John Cale of the News-Star — Morning World and Jamie Patrick of the KNOE news staff.

The group is slated to view points of interest in Alexandria, Winnfield, Natchitoches, Hodges Gardens, Mansfield and Shreveport on the first day.

Tuesday's portion of the junket will include Ruston, Monroe, Bastrop and Lake Providence.

The third and final day of the tour will take delegates through Tallulah, St. Joseph, Jonesville, Jena and back to Alexandria.

Airlines Plane Has Troubles, Lands Safely

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A four-engine American Airlines DC6, which encountered landing gear trouble after taking off from Philadelphia, landed safely at Port Columbus Airport shortly before noon Saturday.

The propeller-driven plane, carrying 20 passengers and a crew of five, circled the central Ohio airport for about a half-hour, and made several low passes past the tower so a visual check could be made on the landing gear.

The flight originated at La Guardia Airport in New York. The next stop was to have been Washington, D.C., but weather conditions there were such that it was diverted to Port Columbus Airport, which has a 10,700-foot runway.

Exiles Call For Castro Army Revolt

MIAMI (UPI) — About 80 former officers and men of Fidel Castro's rebel army Saturday called upon the Cuban Army to revolt and launch a campaign of terrorism and sabotage against the Castro government.

The "Message from the Rebel Army in exile to the Rebel Army in Cuba" was signed in the office of exile newscaster Dr. Luis Conte Augero. He will read the message to Cuba in a short-wave broadcast.

The meeting in his office Saturday afternoon was "the first ever held by former Rebel Army members acting as a unit" Conte Aguero said.

Among the signers was Capt. Eugenio Perez, son of Cresencio Perez, who guided the Castro brothers to safety in the wilds of Oriente Province after their expedition from Mexico was all but wiped out by Batista troops on Dec. 2, 1956. The father remains loyal to Castro.

"Men now in the government, militiamen, rebel soldiers, are fighting for liberty and all will be incorporated in the march of the new Cuba," the message said.

After urging the Army to revolt, the exile soldiers said:

They recommended "sabotage, terrorism, resistance, underground activity, desertions, uprisings in the mountains, armed insurrection."

"All these," the exiled rebel soldiers said "are good methods to demonstrate repugnance for tyranny and love for the liberty which will be recuperated by revolutionary Cuba."

They said that although Castro is known as the "maximum leader," he is really only the "maximum puppet" of the USSR.

If Castro's "International Brigades" intervene in the Cuban struggle, the exiled soldiers said, "It would bring on the immediate and total counter-intervention of the United States Army and of all the nations of the Americas, and this has already been communicated to the Kremlin."

Proposed Pay Hikes Exclude Most Reserves

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's military pay raise proposals, to be submitted to Congress next week, will exclude more than two-thirds of the nation's one million civilian reservists.

Defense officials said Saturday that about 100,000 officers and more than 165,000 enlisted men in the National Guard and other reserve outfits are scheduled to get the increased pay, because they are rated as volunteers.

But another 33,000 officers and 628,000 enlisted men now on the civilian military payroll, will be omitted, because they have a compulsory legal obligation for service in the reserves.

The exclusion plan was first disclosed in President Kennedy's budget message to Congress earlier this week. But the step had been recommended earlier by McNamara and a Defense Department panel which studied military compensation.

The mammoth pay raise—first in five years for the armed forces—would average 14.4 per cent and cost $1.7 billion a year. Chief beneficiaries would be the 2,700,000 regular servicemen where the payroll has already climbed to $6.7 billion a year.

The civilian military payroll is $375 million annually. This would be increased between $28 and $32 million by the partial raises the department is recommending. An across-the-board inclusion of the reserves in the new pay schedules would cost probably $40 million more.

MAJ. GEN. Andrew J. Adams, commanding general of Fort Chaffee, Ark., will make a one-day trip to Monroe Tuesday to visit local reserve personnel and civic leaders. Gen. Adams has held his command at Ft. Chaffee since Nov. 19 and this is his first official visit to the Twin Cities. He also commands the XIX U.S. Army Corps.

Rancher Gets $133,000 After Cattle Drive

HIGHMORE, S. D. (AP)—Bethel Frei, Missouri River rancher, realized a nice profit from years of work Saturday when his herd of 550 Black Angus cattle was sold at auction for $133,000.

More than 1,000 buyers and curious onlookers crowded into the Highmore auction barn to see auctioneer Jean Dehaven sell the herd in a scant two hours.

The bidding among buyers from the Dakotas, Nebraska, Iowa and Minnesota was active and the cattle brought good prices.

Frei, members of his family and 10 drovers attracted nationwide attention last week when they drove the big herd 56 miles overland in sometimes bitter cold weather from Frei's 3,000-acre ranch southeast of Pierre, S. D., to the sale pens here.

Frei had estimated the value of the herd at $150,000, but said he was nonetheless very satisfied with the sale.

The rancher estimates he saved about $2,000 by driving the cattle to market rather than trucking them.

Truman Okay After Surgery

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman, 78, was reported in good condition and resting comfortably Saturday after his hernia operation.

Truman underwent surgery Friday morning at Research Hospital. He had entered Monday for a physical checkup.

A spokesman said he had spent a restful night.

Snows Trap Europe Trains

LONDON (AP) — Britain and most of Europe bundled up Saturday night against blizzards, and icy winds. Transportation foundered as deep snowdrifts cut off many main roads and trapped scores of trains in Europe.

Boats, buses, airlines and telephone links were affected in several countries. Many schoolroom stoves could not cope with the cold during the Saturday sessions common in many European countries.

One man was reported drowned, swept off a gale-buffeted British trawler off the coast.

In the Bay of Biscary 60 miles from the French coast, a U.S. Army landing craft with 12 soldiers aboard was stranded when its engines went dead. The Soviet tanker Alagir took it in tow and headed for St. Nazaire accompanied by a French tug.

In Belgium, where snow and ice blocked road, river and rail routes, observers reported thousands of strange wild birds clustering on frozen canals and ponds. A baker in Boesingne claimed he was attacked by a huge eagle believed to be from northern Siberia.

In Italy, snow fell all night as far south as Bologna and Florence. A landslide derailed a train between Florence and Rome, injuring ten persons.

In Germany, blizzards trapped many trains, blocked the Munich-Berlin Autobahn for several hours, and left several other main highways impassable.

Car ferries were suspended on the major Bavarian lakes. Motorists just drove across the ice.

In East Germany, train schedules were cut. The village of Frankenheim was reported to be snowed in, as was one passenger train.

Paris had its coldest recorded Jan. 19 when the thermometer plunged to 10 degrees. Schools at Le Havre sent children home because they could not keep the classrooms warm.

In Poland, 30,000 workers were reported digging out the snow-clogged state railways. The temperature sank to 22 below and 1,500 schools were closed.

In Denmark, icebreakers strove around the clock to keep open vital sea lanes.

By contrast, the weather warmed up on the Baltic coast of the Soviet Union because of warm air blowing in from the North Atlantic.

In the British Isles, gales and blizzards disrupted road and rail traffic.

The temperature in London was 23 degrees, coldest for the date in 22 years.

Woman Killed At New Iberia

NEW IBERIA, La. (AP) — A 56-year-old Rayne woman became the year's first highway fatality here when she was killed in a 2-car collision Friday night.

She was Mrs. Edith Touchet, a passenger in a car driven by Horace Foreman of Lafayette. Seven other persons were hurt, but none was believed seriously injured.

DUTCH BUILD TRIGATE

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — A Dutch shipyard will build a 2,000-ton frigate to be the flagship of the Nigerian navy, and may contract to build two minesweepers, it was announced.

Think
Think about
One Million Dollars.

There are many things
You can do with a million
Dollars. You can spend it. You
Can bury it in a tin can. You can invest
It in greyhound races, football games and
Jai Alai matches.

Spending it is probably the most fun. But spending
All you have is not conducive to your future security.

If you bury it in a tin can, you have the bother of digging
A very large hole. Also, it won't earn much while interred, and Drainage can be a problem.

Speculating on the outcome of sporting contests may make you rich, but
Not likely. You could lose your whole million dollars .....and your shirt.

There is a better way to make your million dollars work for you. CTP. The Collateral Trust Plan. This pays five percent interest per annum, payable
Semi-annually, and it's secured one hundred and five percent by FHA insured
Collateral, held in trust for you at Central Savings Bank and Trust Company

And funds are available when needed, and you don't have to sacrifice
Interest to withdraw between interest payment dates. At the end
Of just one year your Million Dollars will have grown by fifty

Coin Minting Topic Slated At Meeting Of Club

How coins are produced at one of the United States mints will be the subject of a film to be shown at a meeting of the Monroe Area Coin club Tuesday night.

The public is invited to attend the showing of "A Trip Through The Denver Mint" at the Louisiana Power and Light Company auditorium in West Monroe beginning at 7:30.

Herschel Sharp, club president, said the movie will last 45 minutes.

"It was produced by the American Numismatic Association as a part of the association's educational series," Sharp said. "It should be of interest to both collectors and the general public."

Also scheduled on the program is an auction of coins and other numismatic material. A display of coins is planned as an added feature for the benefit of visitors.

Sunday School Convention Set Here Next Year

Monroe has been selected as the site for the 1964 annual meeting of the Louisiana Baptist Sunday School Convention.

Outgoing president of the organization, Charles Lewis, minister of education at Parkview Baptist Church here, said next year's meeting will be held Jan. 16, 17, the in First Baptist Church of Monroe.

Selection of the meeting place was made at the convention's annual session last Thursday and Friday at the Calvary Baptist Church in Alexandria. At that time Al Bankston, formerly minister of education of the First Baptist Church of Monroe, and now minister of education of the First Baptist Church of Lafayette, was elected Sunday School Convention president.

POWER STRUGGLE

Kennedy Opposes DeGaulle Actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's decision to visit West Germany this year appears to be a carefully calculated move in a power struggle over the future of Europe—a struggle in which Kennedy can exert only limited force at present.

The President's main immediate objective is to prevent French President Charles de Gaulle from permanently rupturing the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. That, in Washington's view, will result if De Gaulle succeeds in forming a kind of French-German alliance within NATO.

In this struggle, Kennedy, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and the leaders of Italy and Belgium and most other Allied nation are generally on the same side.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is a key figure because his own feelings on some issues are close to if not identical with those of De Gaulle. But on others he is very close to the United States.

The German leader, 87, who will retire next fall, will go to Paris Sunday for discussions with De Gaulle, 72. The talks between the two men will be among the most decisive held within the Western Alliance since it was formed more than a dozen years ago.

De Gaulle's obvious aim is to form a binding association between France and West Germany around which the rest of non-Communist Europe, excluding Britain, would cluster in a system which France could dominate. For this policy, France requires its own nuclear striking power, however inferior to the Soviet and American power that might be.

American leaders believe that De Gaulle is thinking in terms of a Europe of the days of French glory in the 18th and 19th centuries instead of projecting a political organization to meet the demands of today's patterns of military power, commerce and high-speed communications.

Kennedy's aims for Europe call for European economic and political organization, including Britain and for increasing military unification of the European powers with the United States and Canada under an Atlantic partnership concept.

De Gaulle wants to establish the basis of his European structure when he meets Adenauer over the next few days. His purpose became crystal clear in his news conference last Monday when he torpedoed the long and almost successful negotiations for British membership in the European Common Market.

It appears to be more than coincidence that Kennedy, immediately afterward, let it be known that he had accepted an invitation from Prime Minister Amintore Fanfani to visit Italy. Friday, the White House announced that the President has accepted also an invitation to visit Bonn, Adenauer's capital.

U.S. officials intimately informed on the state of affairs in Paris, London and Bonn, say Adenauer wil lbe restrained in forming a French-West German clique within the Alliance to the extent that he remembers the advice of his own Cabinet ministers and the importance of West Germany's ties with the United States.

Red China Reported To Have Nuclear Devices

TOKYO (AP)—The director of Japan's Defense Agency has received information that Red China has two nuclear devices but hasn't tested them and may need at least 10 years to turn them into practical weapons, a spokesman said Saturday.

The newspaper Yomiuri quoted informed sources as saying the Red Chinese might even have four atomic bombs by now.

The defense spokesman said the director, Kenjiro Shiga, told Defense Agency officials of his information. The subject also was discussed at a meeting of the U.S.-Japan security consultative committee Saturday.

Shiga, the spokesman reported, said Red China is expected to test one of the devices this year, but would need at least 10 years to arm herself with nuclear weapons even if tests are successful.

But, Shiga was quoted as saying "'The mere fact that they (the Red Chinese) explode atomic devices will have a strong psychological impact on the world."

Nuclear experts in Washington did not dispute that Red China is working on test devices, but held to their estimate of more than a year ago that Chinese scientists would not be able to fabricate bombs until the latter part of the present decade.

The Chinese, the experts pointed out, have the handicap of no experience of their own and no technical aid from the Soviet Union. Further, the Chinese have no missiles, and only light bombers to deliver a nuclear weapon.

The newspaper Yomiuri said Satomi Hakamada, a Japanese Communist, was told on a visit tp Peking this month that his party should draw up an "action policy" on the assumption that Red China would explode a device during the year. Hakamada was said to have made the report to his party.

Referring to Shiga's information, Yomiuri said "Rumors that Communist China might carry out an experimental nuclear explosion in the near future have been rampant in recent months, but this is the first time that it has been stated that the Peking regime had succeeded in completing two atomic bombs."

It then quoted an informed local source as saying "it is quite possible that the Chinese may have as many as four atomic bombs by now. These bombs are of the size which were dropped on Hiroshima." That bomb was feeble compared to modern nuclear weapons.

Yomiuri said the Chinese had had an atomic reactor at Peking since 1958 which was capable of producing enough plutonium in a year for five bombs of the Hiroshima size. It said three other reactors went into operation elsewhere recently.

Referring to Shiga's information, Yomiuri said "Rumors that Communist China might carry out an experimental nuclear explosion in the near future have been rampant in recent months, but this is the first time that it has been stated that the Peking regime had succeeded in completing two atomic bombs."

It then quoted an informed local source as saying "it is quite possible that the Chinese may have as many as four atomic bombs by now. These bombs are of the size which were dropped on Hiroshima." That bomb was feeble compared to modern nuclear weapons.

Yomiuri said the Chinese had had an atomic reactor at Peking since 1958 which was capable of producing enough plutonium in a year for five bombs of the Hiroshima size. It said three other reactors went into operation elsewhere recently.

State Accepting Highway Bids On I-20 Work

The Louisiana Department of Highways is now receiving bids on a section of I-20 highway nearly one mile long inside the city limits of Monroe, according to an announcement by State Representative Mike John, Jr.

The bids will be received until 8 a.m. Feb. 20. They will be opened at 10 a.m. on the same date.

Highway Director Ray Burgess identified the new segment as an .857 mile stretch of Catalpa Street to Texas Avenue.

Rep. John [illegible] and his colleague, Rep. Lawrence Gibbs and Sen. Jamar Adcock extended thanks to Highway Director Burgess for "his diligence in pushing I-20 construction in this area as fast as the funds become available."

CONCERTS SERIES

Vienna Choir Boys Are Slated Here

The Vienna Choir Boys, direct from Austria, will be presented in concert at Neville High School Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 27.

Sponsored by the Northeast State Concerts Association, the choir is composed of 22 boys between the ages of eight and fourteen. Because of the changing of the boys' voices, every choir has different personnel yearly.

The famed group, founded by Imperial Decree of the Holy Roman Emperor Maximilian I in 1498, has included among its members in the past such personages as Josef Haydn and Franz Schubert.

Now on their nineteenth tour of this country, the boys have sung in all of America's leading concert halls and theatres. In new York they have often been heard at Carnegie Hall and Town Hall, and one New Year's Eve sang in "Fledermaus" at the Metropolitan Opera.

The boys of the historic Seminary School (founded in 1498) are equally well - known throughout the world. They appear regularly in the Orient as well as in Western capitals.

The school has three choirs on tour each year. A rotation system allows each lad in the school an opportunity to visit every country on the choir's far-flung itinerary at least once before his voice changes.

Every year fewer than 100, boys, ten percent of the number of applicants, are admitted to the institution. Before admission to one of the choirs, students receive two years of training.

No single seat admissions will be sold to this performance, but Dr. Harry M. Lemert, dean of the fine arts division at Northeast State, telephone FA 5-6361, ext. 211, said this morning that some season memberships are still available.

Interview Set For 2 At Tech

RUSTON (Special) — Two Louisiana Tech students, Charles James Cooper of Bossier City and Welber Swanner of Jonesboro, have been invited to Tulane University in New Orleans for an interview by the Woodrow Wilson Scholarship regional committee Monday.

The aim of the Wilson program is to help students gain a graduate award to prepare for a career in college teaching. Ten thousand students are nominated annually for the program and 1,000 are selected for the Wilson awards, The others are helped to secure other grants, awards of assistantships.

Cooper and Swanner were selected on the basis of the quality of their preparation for graduates study. Qualities considered were a solid foundation at the undergraduate level for study leading to the Ph. D. degree; competence and facility in foreign languages and other subjects required in the pursuit of the discipline, such as mathematics; ability in the writing of essays and reports on independent work accomplished in undergraduate years.

COMMON MART BID

British Leader, Advisers Confer

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan summoned his top foreign affairs advisers for emergency talks Saturday as a German trade expert predicted Britain's bid for admission to the Common Market is doomed.

Macmillan conferred at Admiralty House with Foreign Secretary Lord Home and Edward Heath, chief Common Market negotiator, amid clear indications that Britain is determined to press for entry despite French President Charles de Gaulle's opposition.

But should the Common Market talks, to be resumed in Brussels on Jan. 28, finally break down Britain may be prepared to wait some years before renewing her bid to the six-nation bloc and its 170 million potential customers.

The implications are that Britain hopes pressure by other market members—notably Holland and Italy—and perhaps backstage intervention by President Kennedy will persuade De Gaulle to retreat.

Hopes are pinned, too, on talks to take place Monday between De Gaulle and West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. It is hoped here that the chancellor will make it clear that Germany wants Britain in with the six—a point Germany's negotiators in Brussels have openly advocated.

Dr. Alfred Mueller-Armack, West Germany's leading economist at the Brussels talks, told newsmen in Bonn, however, that he believed Britain's application was doomed, barring a miracle, and that the results would be great difficulties and dangers for Europe.

A Britain rebuffed, he said, could be a danger to Common Market trade with the United States, and the result could cause a loss of confidence in the European Economic Community itself. In the negotiations thus far.

TSHOMBE'S COLLAPSE

JFK Sided With Stevenson Group

WASHINGTON (AP)— The evident collapse of Moise Tshombe in the Congo came as no surprise to a few top U.S. officials who long have argued that a sure hand could slap him down.

Informed sources said these officials included U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, presidential adviser Chester Bowles, G. Mennen Williams, assistant secretary of state for African affairs and Williams' deputy, J. Wayne Fredericks.

Their views were opposed by others in the State Department, the sources said, but President Kennedy sided with Stevenson, Bowles, Williams and Fredericks and then led vigorous American support for the U.N. operation that now seems to have ended the secession of Katanga from the Congo.

The debate reportedly followed these lines:

The advocates of a strong hand believed (1) you can't do business with Tshombe, and (2), the Katanga president's underpinnings would collapse and his mercenaries would scatter if U.N. troops moved in Katanga.

The others believed (1) you could and should try once more to deal with Tshombe and (2) Tshombe's popular support and military strength could withstand a U.N. attack.

Williams, in an interview Saturday, had no direct comment when asked about the report that he, Stevenson, Bowles and Fredericks had led one group of opinion in administration circles.

But Williams noted that the four men named were the officials closest to U.N. and African problems.

"That only means the State Department did its job," Williams said, "and the people who were in charge of this operation had the same program."

He acknowledged differences of opinion within the administration but asked "I don't think there was much controversy" and emphasized that Kennedy, "whenever he was consulted, made his policy clear."

But other sources said the debate involved strongly held opinion and the Katanga crisis might have reached its end earlier if the advocates of a strong U.N. policy had prevailed sooner.

TSHOMBE FIRES SHOT

Power Plant Near Kolwezi Destroyed

KITWE, Northern Rhodesia (AP)—A small power plant near Kolwezi was destroyed by an explosion less than three hours after President Moise Tshombe announced Katanga's surrender Tuesday. Tshombe was there.

Associated Press photographer Dennis Royle told of the incident on his arrival in Northern Rhodesia Friday night after a 31-hour drive through the bush from Kolwezi, Tshombe's last stronghold.

"After Tshombe announced the surrender at his news conference I drove out with him and about 20 white soldiers to the Guba Bridge area, about 70 miles from Kolwezi," Royle said. "There we met 100 African troops in forward positions.

"There had been skirmishes in the area a few hours before and the Katangan troops were expecting another U.N. attack. They had been strafed by U.N. jet fighters.

"I drove up with Tshombe to what looked like a six-pounder gun with armor piercing shells lying beside it. Tshombe sat at the gun and laid it into a target near the bridge—a small power plant—with the help of some white gunners.

"Suddenly there was a big explosion nearby and I saw the plant blow up in pieces. I am pretty certain that the gun which Tshombe fired was used to detonate explosives in the power plant.

"In driving back, Tshombe stopped at a bridge over a dam near the approaches to Kolwezi. Smiling, he inspected tons of dynamite placed on the girders of the bridge and on a railroad bridge running alongside. He posed for photographs as he pushed some dynamite into position.

"He jokingly told newsmen 'Better be careful or this stuff might explode.' Tshombe then went back into Kolwezi and had a conference with his staff officers."

That night Katangan Foreign Minister Evariste Kimba expelled Jacques Houard, a Belgian consul-general based in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, who had been in Kolwezi to help in the international negotiations for Tshombe's surrender.

U.S. Accuses Stockyards Of Violating Act

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The federal government has accused the owners of five Louisiana stockyards of violating the packers and stockyards act.

The Department of Agriculture charged the stockyards with operating while insolvent, misusing funds derived from sale of consigned livestock, and failing to keep adequate accounts.

The five were Dominique Stockyards, Inc., of Baton Rouge; Miller and Dominique stockyards of Eunice and Welsh; Dominique's Inc., of Opelousas, and Alcide Dominique of Lafayette.

Dominique said he is not insolvent and will answer the charges in Washington.

He said he had over $3 million worth of assets and carried performance bond which is 2½ times the required bond and has a credit rating as good as man can get to be called insolvent."

The packers and stockyards division charged the Baton Rouge stockyard with four violations, the Lafayette stockyard with four violations, the Eunice and Weish partnership with two violations, and the Opelousas corporation with two violations.

A USDA examiner will conduct separate hearings on each case unless the parties admit the charges or fail to respond to the complaint.

Suspect Nabbed By Posse For Police Slaying

BLOWING ROCK, N. C. (UPI) A tough ex-convict wanted for the slaying of Blowing Rock's police chief was captured Saturday in a cornfield on a fog-shrouded mountainside 40 miles north of this resort town.

The fugitive, 45-year-old Millard Greer, was still defiant, although he had a bullet lodged in his neck and had been nicked twice on the right arm by gunfire.

Kremlin Defied By Red Chinese

BERLIN (AP) — The Kremlin has been defied in public, and this Red Chinese challenge may mark the opening of a new chapter in world communism's history.

The movement is likely to be weakened as a result of what took place in East Berlin in the past week. Perhaps what the world is seeing is the beginning of a division of the Communist world into two camps.

That development might be gradual and take much time, but it would be history repeating itself. The movement divided in the past in a titanic clash of opinion between Stalin and Leon Trotsky. The Kremlin won that one.

But the Kremlin is a far different thing today than when Stalin was its tenant. When he was high priest of communism, any disobedience brought awful punishment. Tito of Yugoslavia got away with it because he had no border with the U.S.S.R., but the punishment in 1948 was excommunication from the family of Communists.

It was a strange spectacle that the 2,500 delegates and guests from 70 countries witnessed at the East German party congress. There the Red Chinese practically thumbed their noses at Soviet Premier Khrushchev and demanded that he admit he had been in the wrong in their argument.

It was like some sort of weird, far-out musical comedy in the Werner Seelenbinder Hall in East Berlin, where leading representatives of the Red movement went through grotesque oratorical contortions. All claimed to support the same things. But the two sides carried on vicious infighting as to the definition of those things.

In this battle of semantics, there is a weighty question for Moscow. Can the Communist movement afford to have its pinnacle of authority, its once awesomely powerful throne thus publicly held up to scorn by mavericks?

A Kremlin which no longer can terrify its ideological foes into quiet submission stands to suffer around the world from loss of discipline, particularly in areas like Latin America, Asia and Africa.

TSHOMBE'S COLLAPSE

JFK Sided With Stevenson Group

WASHINGTON (AP(— The evident collapse of Moise Tshombe in the Congo came as no surprise to a few top U.S. officials who long have argued that a sure hand could slap him down.

Informed sources said these officials included U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, presidential adviser Chester Bowles, G. Mennen Williams, assistant secretary of state for African affairs and Williams' deputy, J. Wayne Fredericks.

Their views were opposed by others in the State Department, the sources said, but President Kennedy sided with Stevenson, Bowles, Williams and Fredericks and then led vigorous American support for the U.N. operation that now seems to have ended the secession of Katanga from the Congo.

The debate reportedly followed these lines:

The advocates of a strong hand believed (1) you can't do business with Tshombe, and (2), the Katanga president's underpinnings would collapse and his mercenaries would scatter if U.N. troops moved in Katanga.

The others believed (1) you could and should try once more to deal with Tshombe and (2) Tshombe's popular support and military strength could withstand a U.N. attack.

Williams, in an interview Saturday, had no direct comment when asked about the report that he, Stevenson, Bowles and Fredericks had led one group of opinion in administration circles.

But Williams noted that the four men named were the officials closest to U.N. and African problems.

"That only means the State Department did its job," Williams said, "and the people who were in charge of this operation had the same program."

He acknowledged differences of opinion within the administration but asked "I don't think there was much controversy" and emphasized that Kennedy, "whenever he was consulted, made his policy clear."

But other sources said the debate involved strongly held opinion and the Katanga crisis might have reached its end earlier if the advocates of a strong U.N. policy had prevailed sooner.

LIGHT SNOW is forecast Sunday over the north Atlantic coastal region westward through the Ohio, Mississippi and Tennessee valleys and eastern portions of the Great Lakes region then southward through portions of the southern Plains. Rain is forecast for parts of the western Gulf region and in portions of the central Gulf region. It will be colder over most of the nation except the extreme southern sections of the southeastern coastal region and the Pacific northewest coastal region. (AP Wirephoto Map)

TSHOMBE FIRES SHOT

Power Plant Near Kolwezi Destroyed

KITWE, Northern Rhodesia (AP)—A small power plant near Kolwezi was destroyed by an explosion less than three hours after President Moise Tshombe announced Katanga's surrender Tuesday. Tshombe was there.

Associated Press photographer Dennis Royle told of the incident on his arrival in Northern Rhodesia Friday night after a 31-hour drive through the bush from Kolwezi, Tshombe's last stronghold.

"After Tshombe announced the surrender at his news conference I drove out with him and about 20 white soldiers to the Guba Bridge area, about 70 miles from Kolwezi," Royle said. "There we met 100 African troops in forward positions.

"There had been skirmishes in the area a few hours before and the Katangan troops were expecting another U.N. attack. They had been strafed by U.N. jet fighters.

"I drove up with Tshombe to what looked like a six-pounder gun with armor piercing shells lying beside it. Tshombe sat at the gun and laid it into a target near the bridge—a small power plant—with the help of some white gunners.

"Suddenly there was a big explosion nearby and I saw the plant blow up in pieces. I am pretty certain that the gun which Tshombe fired was used to detonate explosives in the power plant.

"In driving back, Tshombe stopped at a bridge over a dam near the approaches to Kolwezi. Smiling, he inspected tons of dynamite placed on the girders of the bridge and on a railroad bridge running alongside. He posed for photographs as he pushed some dynamite into position.

"He jokingly told newsmen 'Better be careful or this stuff might explode.' Tshombe then went back into Kolwezi and had a conference with his staff officers."

That night Katangan Foreign Minister Evariste Kimba expelled Jacques Houard, a Belgian consul-general based in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, who had been in Kolwezi to help in the international negotiations for Tshombe's surrender.

U.S. Accuses Stockyards Of Violating Act

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The federal government has accused the owners of five Louisiana stockyards of violating the packers and stockyards act.

The Department of Agriculture charged the stockyards with operating while insolvent, misusing funds derived from sale of consigned livestock, and failing to keep adequate accounts.

The five were Dominique Stockyards, Inc., of Baton Rouge; Miller and Dominiaue stockyards of Eunice and Welsh; Dominique's Inc., of Opelousas, and Alcide Dominique of Lafayette.

Dominique said he is not insolvent and will answer the charges in Washington.

He said he had over $3 million worth of assets and carried performance bond which is 2½ times the required bond and has a credit rating as good as man can get to be called insolvent."

The packers and stockyards division charged the Baton Rouge stockyard with four violations, the Lafayette stockyard with four violations, the Eunice and Welsh partnership with two violations, and the Opelousas corporation with two violations.

A USDA examiner will conduct separate hearings on each case unless the parties admit the charges or fail to respond to the complaint.

Suspect Nabbed By Posse For Police Slaying

BLOWING ROCK, N. C. (UPI) A tough ex-convict wanted for the slaying of Blowing Rock's police chief was captured Saturday in a cornfield on a fog-shrouded mountainside 40 miles north of this resort town.

The fugitive, 45-year-old Millard Greer, was still defiant, although he had a bullet lodged in his neck and had been nicked twice on the right arm by gunfire.

old Lawrence [illegible] same address, was being treated for fractured ribs, a cracked collarbone and other various injuries. Driver of the other car, Vernon Patterson, Mangham, sustained lacerations from the accident.

Three were killed in one stroke when their car was struck on U.S. Highway 65 about three and a half miles north of Lake Providence at [illegible] Saturday. The three, Faye DeGraw, driver of the car, and Vester House and Maggie Gamble, died instantly when their car was struck by a vehicle headed north on the highway driven by Negro Benjamin F. Blackwood, 4[illegible], of Lake Providence. Blackwood was rushed to the East Carroll hospital for treatment of injuries including a fractured leg and nose, chest injuries and lacerations.

An investigating state trooper said the DeGraw vehicle was crossways in the road where she apparently had been attempting to turn around off a farm road. No charges had been filed late Saturday, pending completion of the investigation.

The Thompson youth died of a fractured skull when he crashed headon into a truck on state highway 134, the Indian Village Road near Calhoun around 8 a.m. Saturday. Thompson, who had to be pried from the demolished car, was pronounced dead on arrival at Glenwood Hospital by Ouachita Parish Coroner Dr. John P. Burton.

Investigating state troopers said Thompson entered a curve in the road on the wrong side, and smashed headon into a truck driven west on the highway by Negro H. T. Johnson, 42, of Weil Road, West Monroe. Johnson, in attempting to avoid the collision had pulled completely to the shoulder of the highway. Troopers said the visibility was very poor due to heavy fog but that Johnson had the parking and cab lights burning on the truck. No charges were filed by state troopers.

Funeral services for Thompson will be held at 3 p.m. today in the Indian Village Methodist Church with the Rev. R. E. Carter officiating. Burial will be in the church cemetery under the direction of Kilpatrick Funeral Home of West Monroe. The remains will lie in state at the funeral home until one hour prior to services.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Thompson, Calhoun; three brothers, C. Donald Thompson, stationed with the U.S. Air Force at Crete Island; John B. and Paul Thompson, both of Calhoun; two sisters, Misses Carolyn and Rebecca Ann Thompson, both of Calhoun; and his grandmother, Mrs. Lela Griggs, Calhoun.

Pallbearers will be Hollis Greene, Tony Jones, Jerry Johnson, Elmer Auorsch, Joyce Cummins and Claude Sewell.

The Perrys were all injured when an oncoming truck skidded sideways into their vehicle. State police filed reckless driving charges against driver of the truck Earl J. Buelow, 43, of 411 Eason Place, Monroe. He was driving north on U.S. 165, about 7.5 miles north of Monroe and pulled into the oncoming traffic lane to pass a car, according to troopers. Buelow applied his brakes, according to the report, and lost control of the vehicle, skidding into the Perry car headed south on the highway. All three of the Perrys were rushed to the St. Francis hospital for emergency treatment.

Funeral services for Mrs. DeGraw will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in the chapel of Gay's Funeral Home at Lake Providence with the Rev. Russell Johnson officiating. Burial will be in the Providence Memorial Park Cemetery at Lake Providence.

Mrs. DeGraw is survived by two daughters, Misses Judy Ann and Dorothy Singleterre, and one son, Bobby Ray Singleterre, all of Lake Providence; her mother, Mrs. Letha DeGraw, Lake Providence; five brothers, Jerry, Harold and J. D. DeGraw, all of Baton Rouge, Sam DeGraw, Arkansas, and Julian DeGraw, Arizona; and two sisters, Mrs. Louise Floyd and Mrs. Betty New, both of Baton Rouge.

Funeral services for Mrs. Gamble will be held at 2:30 p.m. today at the chapel of Gay's Funeral Home of Oak Grove with the Rev. Murel Kennedy officiating. Burial will be in Forest Community Cemetery under the direction of Gays of Oak Grove.

Survivors include two sons, Jimmy and Leonard Turnbow, both of Pioneer; three daughters, Misses Connie Sue, Lynda and Cathy Turnbow, all of Oklahoma; and one sister, Mrs. Lucille Womack, Arkansas.

Pallbearers will be Billy Brown, Bernice Turnbow, J. W. Johnston, Homer Turnbow, Odell Pardon and James Johnston.

Funeral services for Mr. House will be conducted at 2 p.m. Monday in the Goodwill Baptist Church with the Rev. B. G. Brock officiating. Burial will be in the Redwing Cemetery under the direction of Kidder-Cox Funeral Home of Oak Grove.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Amolee House, Pioneer; a son, David Earl House, Pioneer; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Ann Hale, Pioneer, and Miss Jeannette Sue House, Pioneer; his mother, Mrs. Hattie Smith, Corning, Ark.; two brothers, Chester House and Fluster House, both of Dyess, Ark.; three sisters, Mrs. Bert Holifield, and Mrs. Lattie Johnson, both of Corning, Ark., and Mrs. Darlene Holifield, Arnold, Mo.

The remains will lie in state at the funeral home until time for the services.

Pallbearers will be Bobby Shelton, Ray McGee, J. B. Johnson, Ralph Frisbee, Emil Stroder and Franklin Frisbee.

Saturday Quiet For Officers

Local police reported a relatively quiet day Saturday, investigating minor thefts and a number of minor accidents.

The Monroe department booked a 53-year-old Monroe woman, Mrs. Bessie T. Guerriero, of 1406 S. 2nd St., for theft in connection with a shoplifting incident at Kroger's, 1501 Louisville Ave. She was free on a $110 bond late Saturday.

Monroe police were also investigating the theft of a tire and wheel taken sometime Friday night from a delivery truck belonging to Supreme Novelty Co., 317 Walnut St. The 670 by 15 inch, blackwall tire mounted on a red rim, was taken from the truck while it was parked in front of the business.

Late Friday night, Monroe police booked a 42-year-old Rayville Negro, Archie B. White, of 302 Rescue St., for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and reckless driving. White was apprehended in the 1700 block of DeSiard Street and booked at 11:45 p.m. He was released under a $125 bond.

Trial Of Orleans D.A. Slated To Open Monday

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison goes on trial for alleged defamation of eight city judges Monday, with his political and professional career, and the future of bawdy Bourbon Street hanging in the balanace.

The trial has many unique aspects. One leading attorney said, "I can't remember any time before this when any judge brought any charges against any district attorney."

Garrison began a crackdown on vice shortly after he took office last May. His principal target was famed Bourbon Street, and the drive has owners of striptease clubs fearing for their economic lives.

The 41-year-old district attorney has four clubs under padlock, and a closure suit pending against a fifth. He recently joined forces with city police and raided 11 more, and says that by Spring "I don't think there is going to be a single strip joint left."

Garrison got in trouble with the city's eight criminal court judges early in the campaign. He accused them of taking too much time off, and when they froze funds to his office, he charged they had ulterior motives.

Asked to issue a public apology to the judges, Garrison blasted: "Apologize? I have nothing to apologize for."

The judges charged him with defamation when he said the vice campaign was stopped because of "racketeer influences on our eight vacation-minded judges."

Gremillion, a short, peppery lawyer (who was once found in contempt of a federal court when he stormed out of a civil rights hearing in protest to court procedure) will prosecute Garrison personally.

All eight judges who brought the charges were recused by the State Supreme Court. The high court appointed Judge William H. Ponder, of Many, La. to hear the case.

Garrison will be defended by a young admiralty lawyer, Donald V. Organ, of New Orleans.

Garrison asked for a jury trial, but the request was denied.

Should Garrison be found guilty, his sentence would be at the discretion of the court. He could be fined or imprisoned or both.

There were reports that in the event he lost the case, impeachment proceedings would be brought against him.

With Garrison removed from office, Gov. Jimmie H. Davis would be empowered to call a special election and to appoint an interim district attorney.

Such a move would delay—or end—the Garrison-inspired Bourbon Street cleanup campaign.

The trial was expected to take up most of the week. Subpenaed witnesses included a number of New Orleans newsmen.

Garrison said "If the criminal court judges have been injured, it is by their conduct which I have merely publicized. They illegally tied up our purse strings which forced us to stop our investigation on vice conditions.

"They then informed us that we were not supposed to investigate any thing, that this was a police function," he said.

Garrison managed to get money for a continuation of his drive. He said he "borrowed some money from a bank."

Lafayette 1.59 inches.

Apparently, the brunt of the cold wave was taken by northwestern Louisiana as Shreveport noted a drop of 17 degrees within an hour Saturday with the mercury standing at 53 degrees at noon, nosediving to 36 degrees by 1 p.m.

In a seven - hour period a drop from 53 degrees to 29 degrees was recorded at Shreveport. Driving conditions there were made dangerous by freezing rain which iced over roads and bridges. Traces of snow were seen in various sections of the city as heavy fog descended by early afternoon hampering traffic for several hours.

East Texas highway crews were kept busy there spreading sand and salt on icy roads and bridges in the area. Several minor wrecks occurred including eight on Sulphur River bridge between Texarkana and Atlanta, Tex. No injuries were reported.

Marshall, Tex., recorded the biggest drop in temperatures falling from 56 degrees at 8 a.m. Saturday to 18 degrees by 7 p.m. Snow was reported at Mt. Pleasant, Tex., and Tyler, Tex., and very light snow at Longview, Tex.

In north central Louisiana, Ruston reported 33 degrees and misty. Other readings were Springhill, 26, icy conditions; Magnolia, Ark., 30, light drizzle; Minden, 27, misty; Longview, Tex., 19, misty; Natchitoches, 32, and Camden, Ark., 31, at nightfall.

Throughout northeast Louisiana and Mississippi Saturday afternoon fog shrouded many highways cutting visibilities. In north Mississippi freezing light rain was predicted with snow flurries likely. Cold temperatures as low as 10 degrees are expected to cover the area through Monday.

In southern Arkansas, roads still were reported free of ice at 9 p.m. Saturday.

GAYLA TRAINA

Gayla Traina Dies; Rites Slated Today

JONESBORO (Special) — Gayla Traina, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Traina of Jonesboro, died early Saturday morning in a Shreveport hospital.

She was the granddaughter of Mrs. Lena Traina, and niece of Mrs. Josephine McCormick and Mrs. Agnes Gioningo, all of Monroe.

Gayla was accidentally shot at her home by a playmate Dec. 27. She was given emergency treatment at a Rodge clinic and transferred to Shreveport where she never regained consciousness.

An eighth grade student at Jonesboro-Hodge High School, she sustained a head wound from a charge of a .20 gauge shotgun during Christmas vacation.

Gayla participated in many school activities and was an outstanding student. She was active in church affairs at First Baptist Church here where she was a member.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. today in First Baptist Church here with the Rev. J. D. Wagnon and the Rev. Kenneth Morrison officiating.

Burial will be in Jonesboro Cemetery under direction of Edmonds Funeral Home of Jonesboro.

Other survivors include a brothel Jody Taina, and a sister, Toni Lynn Taina, both of Jonesboro; and her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Esley Johns, Dodson.

Donald, Michael, Kevin, LaTressa, Jackie and Jodie, boys and girls from the Louisiana Baptist Children's home, along with other four and five year olds from the Home, will be regulars on the telecast through May.

Children's TV Program Is Scheduled

"Time for Tots", a new children's television program, will make its debut Monday at 10 a.m. on KLSE-TV, the local channel 13 station operated by the Louisiana State Department of Education.

Gordon Canterbury, station manager, said that the program will be seen each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

The kindergarten type telecast features Mrs. Frances Mitchell, a Louisiana Tech graduate, as teacher and six children ages four and five from the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home as regular participants. Other children in this age group from the Home will alternate on the program scheduled through May.

The program is produced by students attending Ouachita Valley Vocational Technical School in West Monroe. Thirteen area students are enrolled in the television course taught at the station by L. J. Stanley who is a graduate of the University of Houston with a degree in TV production and directing. Students operate all the equipment at the station.

"Time for Tots" will include in its format projects designed to teach patriotism, Americansim, comprehension and co-ordination. Science films of interest to children and games will be incuded in the routine.

Wade B. East, superintendent of the Children's Home, said that the Home is happy to cooperate with KLSE-TV in the educational project. Potential viewing audience numbers 150,000 persons.

Ruston Laymen Give Two Tons Sugar To Home

RUSTON (Special) — Four tons of sugar men's Sunday School classes at Ruston First Baptist church have made their annual gift of two to the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe.

Meredith Ends Second Exam

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — James H. Meredith completed his second examination Saturday at the University of Mississippi as the 29-year-old Negro indicated he would stay on campus for the remainder of the weekend to study.

Meredith had no comment about the test in political science, which took him nearly 4 hours to complete.

Meredith has two tests Monday and finishes on Tuesday with one more.

He still refuses to comment further about his plans for the second semester. He has said he would withdraw unless campus conditions change.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Meredith had a lengthy conference earlier in the week with chancellor John D. Williams.

RUSTON (Special) — Two seniors in engineering at Louisiana Tech recently attended a Boeing Advanced Aircraft, Missile and Space Technology Forum in Seattle, Wash.

Don. K. Brown of Oakdale, mechanical engineering, and Ronald K. Spruell of Monroe, electrical engineering, were chosen for the all-expense-paid trip by members of the School of Engineering faculty.

During the two-day forum, the students were divided into special-interest groups. They talked with the Boeing Company's top technical personnel, visited laboratories, inspected factory areas and learned the application of their educational fields in the complex aerospace industry.

They were among 200 technical students chosen from 58 colleges and universities.

EVERYBODY LISTENS as Mrs. Frances Mitchell reads a story on "Time For Tots", a new 10 a. m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday feature on KLSE-TV in Monroe. Donald, Michael, Kevin, LaTressa, Jackie and Jodie, boys and girls from the Louisiana Baptist Children's home, along with other four and five year olds from the Home, will be regulars on the telecast through May.

Children's TV Program Is Scheduled

"Time for Tots", a new children's television program, will make its debut Monday at 10 a.m. on KLSE-TV, the local channel 13 station operated by the Louisiana State Department of Education.

Gordon Canterbury, station manager, said that the program will be seen each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

The kindergarten type telecast features Mrs. Frances Mitchell, a Louisiana Tech graduate, as teacher and six children ages four and five from the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home as regular participants. Other children in this age group from the Home will alternate on the program scheduled through May.

The program is produced by students attending Ouachita Valley Vocational Technical School in West Monroe. Thirteen area students are enrolled in the television course taught at the station by L. J. Stanley who is a graduate of the University of Houston with a degree in TV production and directing. Students operate all the equipment at the station.

"Time for Tots" will include in its format projects designed to teach patriotism, Americansim, comprehension and co-ordination. Science films of interest to children and games will be incuded in the routine.

Wade B. East, superintendent of the Children's Home, said that the Home is happy to cooperate with KLSE-TV in the educational project. Potential viewing audience numbers 150,000 persons.

Ruston Laymen Give Two Tons Sugar To Home

RUSTON (Special) — Four men's Sunday School classes at Ruston First Baptist church have made their annual gift of two tons of sugar to the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe.

Wade B. East, superintendent of the Home, said that for several years the men of the Ruston church have made such a gift to the institution which is supported by Louisiana Baptists and other friends who are interested in the welfare of dependent children.

The classes contributing the forty one hundred pound sacks of sugar, and their presidents, include Foursquare, Lowe Alexander; Men's Bible, J. A. Shealy; Builders, Bob Freeman; and Fellowship, I. E. Garrett. The Rev. Clyde Fant, Jr. is pastor of the church.

Meredith Ends Second Exam

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — James H. Meredith completed his second examination Saturday at the University of Mississippi as the 29-year-old Negro indicated he would stay on campus for the remainder of the weekend to study.

Meredith had no comment about the test in political science, which took him nearly 4 hours to complete.

Meredith has two tests Monday and finishes on Tuesday with one more.

He still refuses to comment further about his plans for the second semester. He has said he would withdraw unless campus conditions change.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Meredith had a lengthy conference earlier in the week with chancellor John D. Williams.

National YMCA Week Observance Scheduled

National Y.M.C.A. Week will be observed throughout the United States and Canada during the week of Jan. 20-26, according to Dr. Roy Ledbetter, president of the board of directors of the Twin Cities Y.M.C.A.

"The week is set aside to bring public recognition to the unique character and many works of the Y.M.C.A.," Ledbetter said. World fellowship, physical fitness, education, spiritual and social development are some of the activities of the Y.M.C.A.

The first Y.M.C.A. in North America was founded in Montreal in 1851 and a few weeks later the first Y.M.C.A. in the United States was started in Boston. Seven years later the movement had spread from coast to coast. Today there are 1,961 Y.M.C.A.'s with a membership of over 4,000,000 throughout the United States and Canada.

In the beginning the Y.M.C.A. was basically a religious organization dedicated to improving the spiritual condition of young men. Today's Y's are concerned with the spiritual, intellectual, social, and physical improvement of all regardless of age.

The Y.M.C.A. pioneered in physical education. Gymnasiums were first added to Y buildings in 1869. Basketball was invented by the Y at Springfield College, Mass. in 1891. Learn to swim campaigns for the general public were initiated by the Y.M.C.A. Today the Y.M.C.A. operates more than 700 swimming pools and last year more than 500,000 people were given swimming instructions. Camping for boys was begun by the Y.M.C.A. in 1885. Dr. Luther Gulick, a Y physical director, founded the Camp Fire Girls. Father's Day was sponsored first by the Y.M.C.A. Twenty-three schools of college level with 48,828 students are conducted by the Y.M.C.A.'s also offer night school unit and informal courses enrolling 96,687 persons. The Y.M.C.A.'s adult education program has an aggregate attendance of 32,300,000 in forums, dramatic and musical events, and social recreation. The Y.M.C.A. exports American and Canadian know-how to young people in 36 countries.

The Twin Cities Y.M.C.A., in connection with National Y.M.C.A. Week will launch it's mid winter program with new classes beginning January 28. Registrations are now being taken for the classes and members are urged to register this week.

The classes are set up for all ages with special emphasis on the swim program in the organization's heated pool. Lessons will be held daily for children and adults as well as the advanced swim program which includes skin and scuba diving and competitive swimming.

Other classes include judo (for junior high school boys and older), boxing (for high school boys and older); trampoline and tumbling for pre-school and grammar school age, weight training and conditioning for junior high boys and younger; and the gymnastics team for advanced gymnasts.

For adults classes will be held in slimnastics for women; weight training and isometric contraction, exercise and conditioning and the gymnastic classes for men.

Tshombe Flies To Kolwezi

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, The Congo (UPI)—Katanga President Moise Tshombe flew Saturday to Kolwezi to try to stamp out the last opporition there to surrendering the city to the United Nations.

His European mercenaries have placed charges of dynamite at the big cobalt and other mining installations and at the power dams which supply secessionist Katanga province with two-thirds of its electrical power.

Tshombe, who was not accompanied by U. N. officials, hoped to persuade the die-hard mercenaries and his gendarmerie not to blow up the Union Miniere holdings and to deliver the stronghold peacefully to U. N. troops camped along the road ready to move into Kolwezi.

Tshombe reached an agreement Thursday with U. N. officials to turn over the mining center 150 miles northwest of Elisabethville and pledging full cooperation with the victorious U. N. troops.

An Indian brigade has completed a bridge across the Lufira River and move up heavy transport to Jadotville ready to push on the 65 miles further to Kolwezi. The Indians were treating it as a military operation and planned to advance cautiously should the estimated 300 mercenaries and 2,000 gendarmes make a last stand. The brigade was expected to reach the city Monday spearheaded by armor and infantry of the Rajputan rifles.

A U. N. source in New York said Tshombe arrived in the isolated outpost while Premier Cyrille Adoula was stating he was still prepared to honor his standing promise to give Tshombe a key job in the central government.

(The source, a leading Congolese diplomat in New York, said several cabinet posts would be given to Tshombe and his Conakat Party. He said former Premier Joseph Ileo, the newly named Leopoldville high commissioner for an integrated Katanga, was ready to open talks with Tshombe on the government reshuffle once the Kolwezi takeover was completed.

Reports reaching Elisabethville said the situation in Kolwezi was Tshombe's army were reported out of hand and there was no in tin wheth the massive dynamite chares had been dismantled.

Circulation Up At Parish Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books continue to arrive each day at the Ouachita Parish Public Library and the members of the reading public are eagerly awaiting them. During the first week in January more books were circulated than ever before at that time. The Sunday afternoon hours of opening from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. are bringing people into the Library who have not had an opportunity to use it before. The extended hours at night are also being used extensively. Remember that the Main Library is now open from 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. on Mondays through Fridays and from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. on Sundays.

William Golding is a new voice in the field of fiction and his two books "Lord of The Flies" and "The Inheritors" have become campus classics. We received "The Inheritors" several weeks ago and "Lord of the Flies" this week. The writing is very subtle and although the setting is in the age of the Neanderthal man, the social criticism is very pertinent for today. These books will be in great demand by the discriminating reader. Robert St. John, who has made his name in the literary world as a historian of current affairs, has written a novel about the Jews of Hungary, which he calls "The Man Who Played God." This story is based on real events and the central character Andor Horvath is evidently drawn from the true life character Rudolf Kastner. This is the story of the negotiations with the Nazis for the rescue of the Jews from concentration camps and certain death. It is a moving story and beautifully written and will bear close comparison with "Exodus".

Many books added during the last weeks are additions to the field of literature. Certain to be widely used is "The Research Paper" by Lucyle Hook, which gives directions for gathering material from a library for such an undertaking. Tobert Nathan, one of our outstanding modern poets has a new volume of poetry called "The Married Man." Van Wyck Brooks has made a collection of some of the outstanding early American literature in a volume called "The New England Reader." A new volume of the works of Mark Twain called "Letters From the Earth" has just been released. This book has caused much discussion and many people will want to read it. There are several very humorous books available. They are: "Life With Mother Superior" by Jane Trahey, although written in a light vein, we feel that the author enjoyed her years at the convent boarding school. "The Rich Man's Guide to the Riveria" by David Dodge is very entertaining; "So Laugh a Little" by Molly Picon is a delightful book of reminiscenses; "In-Laws and Outlaws" is another of the delightful books by Cyril Northcote Parkinson. A book which has been in great demand is Vance Packard's latest title "The Pyramid Climbers" and we are happy to have it for you now.

Travel books about far away places are always eagerly read and there are a number of lovely ones this week. "Venice" by Marcel Brion is a perfectly beautiful book. "The Awakening Sahara" by Nicholas Bodington is well - written and informative. The new edition of "The Exploration Diairies of H. M. Stanley" shed new light on the career of this interesting man. "This Is My Land" by Martin Caiden with photographs by Hames Yarnell is a moving tribute to our own country. The authors flew 55,000 air miles to take the 250 photographs used in this book and have turned out a beautiful piece of work. "Paris on the Seine" is another beautiful book written by Ehrlich Blake. Wallace Stegner, who writes so movingly about the American West has produced a very fine book called "Wolf Willow" which has its setting on the border between Montana and Canada. He calls it a history, a story and a memory of the last plans frontier and he has presented it skillfully.

There are several new titles in the field of history. "Frontiers and Wars" is a condensation of the four early histories written by Winston Churchill about early Twentieth Century history. "A Company of Heroes" by Dale Van Every paints a graphic picture of frontier warfare during the time of the American Revolution. Another picture of the early Twentieth Century, with emphasis on America is "Mr. Wilson's War" by John Dos Passos. The author begins with the assassination of President McKinley and carries his narrative through the end of World War I.

Many people in this community are interested in the field of genealogy and new additions to this collection are always welcome. Virginia Lobdell Jennings has written a history of upper East Baton Rouge Parish called "The Plains and the People." It contains a wealth of information and is most valuable. One of our patrons has made the Library a most valuable index of Arrivals in Natchez, Fort Panmure from 1785-1790 as found in the "Annual Report of the American Historical Association, 1945, Vol. III, Spain in the Mississippi Valley, 1765-1794. This index will be kept with the book and should help many people who are searching for their ancestors.

John Adams, Book About 2nd President

John Adams, by Page Smith (Doubleday, two volumes $14.50): This is the first biography of the second president to be released since his papers and letters were made available for study. Through the plethora of detail that Smith has furnished, Adams comes through as a man of profound learning thoroughly devoted to the young republic which he headed for a time, affectionate to his family and friends but quick to take offense and become a formidable adversary. Here he moves prominantly among the remarkable group —who founded the country— Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, Hamilton and many others.

The Man Who Played God Top Book

The Man Who Played God, by R. St. John (Doubleday, $5.95) This novel concerns one man's attempt to ransome Hungarian Jews held by the Nazis during World War II. Andor Horvath's compassion for his fellow Jews and eagerness to save them from extermination co - existed with his political ambition. He risked his life many times to negotiate their freedom but he also was seldom unaware of how he wanted to appear in their eyes — to emerge as their savior and postwar leader in a Jewish free state. Horvath actually saved fewer than 2,000 out of tens of thousands, but this was a major achievement, for those times. He met Nazi arrogance with arrogance; on occasion he dined and drank with top-ranking Nazi officers, in the best and, perhaps the only way to gain his ends. He won the adulation of his people, only to lose it when accused of collaboration. The author leaves no doubt Horvath was innocent of collaboration but guilty of poor judgment. It would be unfair to reveal the denouement, for this is also a great suspense story.

Vienna Choir Boys To Perform Here

By JOHN CALE

The Vienna Choir Boys from the Austrian capital will open the second part of Northeast's concert series with a program slated here next Sunday at 8:15 p.m. The program will be built around religious motets and folk music of several nations.

Also of interest locally is the graduate piano recital of Helen Tucker Wooldridge. The program is scheduled for 4 p.m. today at Louisiana Tech's Howard Auditorium.

Mrs. Wooldridge, a native of Marion, studied with several Monroe teachers during her early training. Included on the program will be the "Appassionata Sonata" opus 57, by Beethoven; "The Maiden and the Nightengale," by Granados; "Ballade II," opus 38, by Chopin; three American preludes by Ginastera, and the "Vivace" from Sonata No. 6 by Prokofieff.

The recital is part of the fulfillment of requirements for the Master of Arts degree with a major in music education, a degree now obtainable at Louisiana Tech.

HIGH OPERA

Another event of the past week on the Tech campus was the presentation of Puccini's opera, "Tosca," by the Shreveport Symphony Society. Prior to the Tech performance, the "grass roots" company had already played two evenings in Shreveport.

John Shenaut, conductor of the Shreveport Symphony Orchestra, presided in the pit, and stars in the lead vocal parts included Anne Hagens as Tosca, Ken Dooley as Baron Scarpia, and Hall Lyons as Mario Cavaradossi.

SIX STRINGS

Those fortunate enough to have happened in on the Billy Butterfield jazz concert at Northeast's Brown Hall several months ago may recall the man who could make the six strings of a guitar talk like a harpsichord — Charlie Byrd.

The Monroe audience liked Byrd. Now comes a report from Newsweek magazine that the folks in Washington, D. C., including well known political figures, do also.

Charlie plays nightly at a cellar club called the Showboat Lounge. Among those who drop by to hear him frequently are Justice Arthur Goldberg, author Allen Drury, and Senator Hubert Humphrey.

Byrd is given credit for introducing the "bossa nova" beat from Brazil into the United States. But his solid fare on the guitar is a unique combination of jazz, standard popular numbers with the harmonies expertly worked out, and classic guitar after the manner of his teacher, Segovia.

He rationalizes his place in the music world something like this:

"I could make more money if I wanted to stay on the road the bulk of the time. But I don't know anyone who stays at home and plays exactly what he wants to play and makes as much money as I do. There are many, many better musicians than I am in the world who make a lot less than I do, and there are some worse ones who make a hundred times as much."

There's no end to the influence a good guitar man like Charles Byrd could have on an otherwise confused situation in Washington. Maybe he'll add the soothing strings of his instrument to the to- and - fro motion of a now-famous rocking chair in the White House.

Army Fights For Air Arm

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress may become the decisive battleground in a dispute between the Army and the Air Force over the Army's ambitions for a much stronger air arm of its own.

The dispute so far has been waged away from public view at high levels in the Pentagon.

The Army won the first major round, as was shown last week when President Kennedy recommended money to buy 1,000 more planes and helicopters for the Army.

But the Air Force has many friends in Congress. These friends are certain to give Air Force spokesmen a chance to state their opposition before the Armed Services and Appropriations committees."

Congress backed the Air Force last session in voting funds to push development of the 2,000-mile-an-hour RS-70 bomber on a big scale. But Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara had the last word when he refused to spend the great bulk of the additional [illegible] million Congress appropriated for the project.

In the case of the airpower dispute, the situation is different. Congress could delay or block the Army's plans by denying or cutting the money needed to carry them out.

Of course, the Army could win the battle with persuasive arguments and the indicated strong backing of McNamara, who set up the Army board which recommended far-reaching improvements in the Army's air mobility.

The Army feels it necessary to use its own planes to move its troops and gear within a combat zone, to conduct short-range reconnaissance and to provide close fire support for its combat units.

Brig. Gen. Delk Oden, the Army's aviation director, said recently: "We are concerned primarily with the utilization of the [illegible] feet or so above the earth's surface. It is in this [illegible] to conduct air mobile combat operations."

The Army says it needs rugged, relatively simple aircraft that can take off and land on a side field or in rugged terrain, and can be serviced on the spot simply and quickly.

Top Army generals contend the Air Force does not now cover their needs for in-theater airlift, short-range surveillance or close support.

But the Air Force disputes the Army's claims and basically suspects the Army may be moving into position to try to take over Air Force missions of long-range, heavy airlift, deep reconnaissance and securing air superiority over the battlefield.

The Army board convened on McNamara's orders last May proposed doubling the Army's air arm to about 12,000 planes within five years.

By comparison with the Army's 1,000 new planes, the Air Force was allotted money to buy another [illegible] aircraft, mostly jet fighters, and the Navy 641 planes.

Soviet Premier Visits Factory With Ulbricht

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev mingled with iron workers in an East German factory town Saturday while the Communist congress he left behind in East Berlin struggled with such problems as chickens which don't lay eggs according to plan.

The East German party congress, a forum for a meeting of Red leaders from 70 countries, bogged down in ponderous details of the problems badgering the regime of Communist chief Walter Ulbricht.

Khrushchev, with Ulbricht in tow, took the day off from the endless speechmaking and motored to Eisenhuettenstadt for a swift visit. Khrushchev has been going out of his way in East Berlin to make it plain he is supporting Ulbricht, who is far from popular with East Germans.

New Ships Budget Disappoints Navy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy believes it needs more new ships than the 41 provided in the military budget sent to Congress by the Defense Department and White House.

But, under the customs of the military establishment, it cannot say so on the record unless a congressional committee asks the personal opinion of individual officials and officers of the Navy during hearings.

The Defense Department does acknowledge, however, that the budget item for Navy ship construction was something less than the Navy wanted.

When a top-ranking defense official was asked by newsmen if the Navy agrees with the recomended authorization to start construction in the coming fiscal year of 41 ships, he replied tersely:

"The Navy would like to spend more."

All but seven of the new ships would be replacements, and the reason the Navy wants more than 34 ships for replacement purposes is "block obsolescence." That means a large number of ships getting overage at the same time.

Tables prepared by the Navy show that out of a fleet of 861 ships, 595 are 13 years or older including 362 over statutory age (the span which the Navy estimated as the reliable life of each ship when it was designed and built).

The problem is most acute in destroyer types, where 168 of the 226 are overage. More than a score of these were built 20 or more years ago.

Navy men look upon this as especially critical because destroyers have a major role in antisubmarine warfare—and the menace of Soviet missile submarine attack is a great and growing one.

This is reflected in the program now before Congress. The numerical emphasis in new-ship construction is on destroyer types, 10 of those ships are to be constructed.

Navy officials decline to say now how many more replacement ships for the fleet they want, above those provided in the budget decided upon by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara—who insists that once a legislative proposal is agreed upon within the Defense Department all hands should support it officially.

But a report issued by a House Armed Services subcommittee last fall said there was need to build 70 ships a year to have the fleet maintain its present strength 10 years hence.

The seven nonreplacement craft in the budget recommendations are six Polaris submarines and a Polaris submarine tender. Approval of these ships would complete the presently planned force of 41 Polaris submersibles.

The new budget contains no request for more atomic-powered surface ships. The Navy now has an atomic-powered carrier, a cruiser and a frigate in operation, another frigate under construction and one more authorized for building.

The defense official, when asked why no more have been asked for, replied "I think almost all of us are convinced that the additional cost of a nuclear surface ship is just not proportionate to any increase in capabilities."

Fog Prevents Kennedys' Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foggy weather prevented president and Mrs. Kennedy from going Saturday to Glen Ora, their leased estate near Middleburg, Va.

The Kennedys had planned to leave by helicopter early in the afternoon for Glen Ora but finally gave up the trip around 4 p.m. because of the fog.

Malcolm Kilduff, an assistant White House press secretary, said the Kennedys might go to Glen Ora on Sunday if the weather permits. The Kennedy children, Caroline and John Jr., made the trip by car earlier Saturday.

Army Fights For Air Arm

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress may become the decisive battleground in a dispute between the Army and the Air Force over the Army's ambitions for a much stronger air arm of its own.

The dispute so far has been waged away from public view, at high levels in the Pentagon.

The Army won the first major round, as was shown last week when President Kennedy recommended money to buy 1,600 more planes and helicopters for the Army.

But the Air Force has many friends in Congress. These friends are certain to give Air Force spokesmen a chance to state their opposition before the Armed Services and Appropriations committees."

Congress backed the Air Force last session in voting funds to push development of the 2,000-mile-an hour RS70 bomber on a big scale. But Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara had the last word when he refused to spend the great bulk of the additional $191 million Congress appropriated for the project.

In the case of the airpower dispute, the situation is different. Congress could delay or block the Army's plans by denying or cutting the money needed to carry them out.

Of course, the Army could win the battle with persuasive arguments and the indicated strong backing of McNamara, who set up the Army board which recommended far-reaching improvements in the Army's air mobility.

The Army feels it necessary to use its own planes to move its troops and gear within a combat zone, to conduct short-range reconnaissance, and to provide close fire support for its combat units.

Brig. Gen. Delk Oden, the Army's aviation director, said recently, "We are concerned primarily with the utilization of the first few hundred feet or so above the earth's surface. It is in this envelope. . .that we conduct air mobile combat operations."

The Army says it needs rugged, relatively simple aircraft that can take off and land on a side field or in rugged terrain, and can be serviced on the spot simply and quickly.

Top Army generals contend the Air Force does not now cover their needs for in-theater airlift, short-range surveillance or close support.

But the Air Force disputes the Army's claims—and basically suspects the Army may be moving into position to try to take over Air Force missions of long-range, heavy airlift, deep reconnaissance and securing air superiority over the battlefield.

The Army board convened on McNamara's orders last May proposed doubling the Army's air arm to about 12,000 planes within five years.

By comparison with the Army's 1,600 new planes, the Air Force was allotted money to buy another 964 aircraft, mostly jet fighters, and the Navy 681 planes.

Soviet Premier Visits Factory With Ulbricht

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev mingled with iron workers in an East German factory town Saturday while the Communist congress he left behind in East Berlin struggled with such problems as chickens which don't lay eggs according to plan.

Khrushchev, with Ulbricht in tow, took the day off from the endless speechmaking and motored to Eisenhuettenstadt for a swift visit. Khrushchev has been going out of his way in East Berlin to make it plain he is supporting Ulbricht, who is far from popular with East Germans.

New Ships Budget Disappoints Navy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy believes it needs more new ships than the 41 provided in the military budget sent to Congress by the Defense Department and White House.

But, under the customs of the military establishment, it cannot say so on the record unless a congressional committee asks the personal opinion of individual officials and officers of the Navy during hearings.

The Defense Department does acknowledge, however, that the budget item for Navy ship construction was something less than the Navy wanted.

When a top-ranking defense official was asked by newsmen if the Navy agrees with the recomended authorization to start construction in the coming fiscal year of 41 ships, he replied tersely:

"The Navy would like to spend more."

All but seven of the new ships would be replacements and the reason the Navy wants more than 34 ships for replacement purposes is "block obsolescence." That means a large number of ships getting overage at the same time.

Tables prepared by the Navy show that out of a fleet of 861 ships, 595 are 13 years or older including 362 over statutory age (the span which the Navy estimated as the reliable life of each ship when it was designed and built).

The problem is most acute in destroyer types, where 168 of the 226 are overage. More than a score of these were built 20 or more years ago.

Navy men look upon this as especially critical because destroyers have a major role in antisubmarine warfare—and the menace of Soviet missile submarine attack is a great and growing one.

This is reflected in the program now before Congress. The numerical emphasis in new-ship construction is on destroyer types, 10 of those ships are to be constructed.

Navy officials decline to say now how many more replacement ships for the fleet they want, above those provided in the budget decided upon by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara—who insists that once a legislative proposal is agreed upon within the Defense Department all hands should support it officially.

But a report issued by a House Armed Services subcommittee last fall said there was need to build 70 ships a year to have the fleet maintain its present strength 10 years hence.

The seven nonreplacement craft in the budget recommendations are six Polaris submarines and a Polaris submarine tender. Approval of these ships would complete the presently planned force of 41 Polaris submersibles.

The new budget contains no request for more atomic-powered surface ships. The Navy now has an atomic-powered carrier, a cruiser and a frigate in operation, another frigate under construction and one more authorized for building.

The defense official, when asked why no more have been asked for, replied "I think almost all of us are convinced that the additional cost of a nuclear surface ship is just not proportionate to any increase in capabilities."

The major outlet of Catahoula Lake travels only a short distance before converging with another stream, but a wealth of history and legend has developed around it.

By E. W. PLUMMER
CORRESPONDENT

French Fork is a short stream, but it has a long and colorful history.

The major outlet of Catahoula Lake, it converges with Old River at LaVacca, some 12 miles in an easterly direction from its source, from which point the two streams form Little River which drains into Black River at Jonesville.

This unique short stream is consistent only in its inconsistencies. It flows either upstream or down stream with equal facility, or it can settle down as still as a mill pond, and it can become a mighty river and overflow its entire valley to a depth of several feet, or recede to a gentle brooklet.

French Fork together with Catahoula Lake to the west and almost endless swamp lands to the north, south, and east which are traversed by a maze of bayous connecting numerous lesser lakes, make up one of the most fabulous hunting and fishing grounds in the nation, even to this day.

Before the coming of the white man, this immense section was the home and hunting ground of a tribe of Chickasaw Indians who, by Indian standards, were a wealthy people. An abundance of deer and bear furnished them with meat as well as hides for clothing and wigwams, and smaller animals provided them with furs for warm clothing.

As a consequence of their wealth, the Chickasaws were in almost constant war with their less fortunate neighboring tribes, particularly the Natchez, who often invaded their hunting grounds and plundered their villages.

'WAR DOGS'

To cope with these marauders, the Chickasaws developed a breed of "war dogs" whose uncertain origin is thought by researchers to be a litter of pups stolen by the Indians from the early Spanish explorers. This breed of dogs is unrivalled as sentinels and guards. Their "leopard" colored coats and weird "glass" eyes, lithe muscular bodies and lance-like fangs, which they proudly displayed as they snarled, gave ample evidence of their ferociousness of attack, alertness, courage and tenacity.

No intruder, whether man or beast, could escape the fangs and fury of these dedicated dogs which stood guard around their camps and villages. Many researchers believe that these dogs are the progenitors of the fabled Catahoula Hog Dog which originated in Catahoula Parish, for today's version of the Indian "war dog" has a leopard coat, "glass" eyes, unwavering fidelity to his master, and will fight any adversary to the death.

Big Chief No Knife, according to legend, was the last head man of this tribe of the Chickasaw Nation. He was given this name after he, naked handed, slew a rival who attacked him from ambush with a knife.

ARTIFACTS

A wealth of artifacts were found in the Chickasaw mounds on French Fork in the 1930's, such as ornamented pottery, spear points and arrow heads, and they evidenced a higher order of Indian culture. Those in charge of their excavation believe that the mounds were ceremonial as well as burying grounds. Some bodies were buried in a standing position, some sitting, others prone.

It could well be, according to those in charge of the excavations, that the positions in which they were buried denoted their rank. Those buried in standing positions might have been their most celebrated chiefs, those sitting their bravest warriors, and those lying prone their unranked laymen. The fact that successive layers of bodies were found, beginning at ground level, lends credence to the theory that the Indians dug no graves, but covered their dead with dirt carried from some distance; and with the passing of time, the mounds grew higher and higher to accommodate more bodies.

No one seems to know why the Indians left French Fork when the white man came in considerable numbers. One legend is that Don Pedro Sanchez, operator of Port La Vacca at the confluence of French Fork and Old river, and who was a fur dealer, bought their trapping rights in the French Fork area with "fire water" and gaudy robes given to the principals of the tribe at a great feast given in their "honor." On being bilked out of their rights, the Indians moved to the hills and sojourned for a time between Summerville and Olla on a stream now known as Chickasaw Creek, then made their way to Indian Territory (Oklahoma). The few who remained served as guides for pack horse trains to Alexandria and Natchitoches.

TRADERS, TRAPPERS

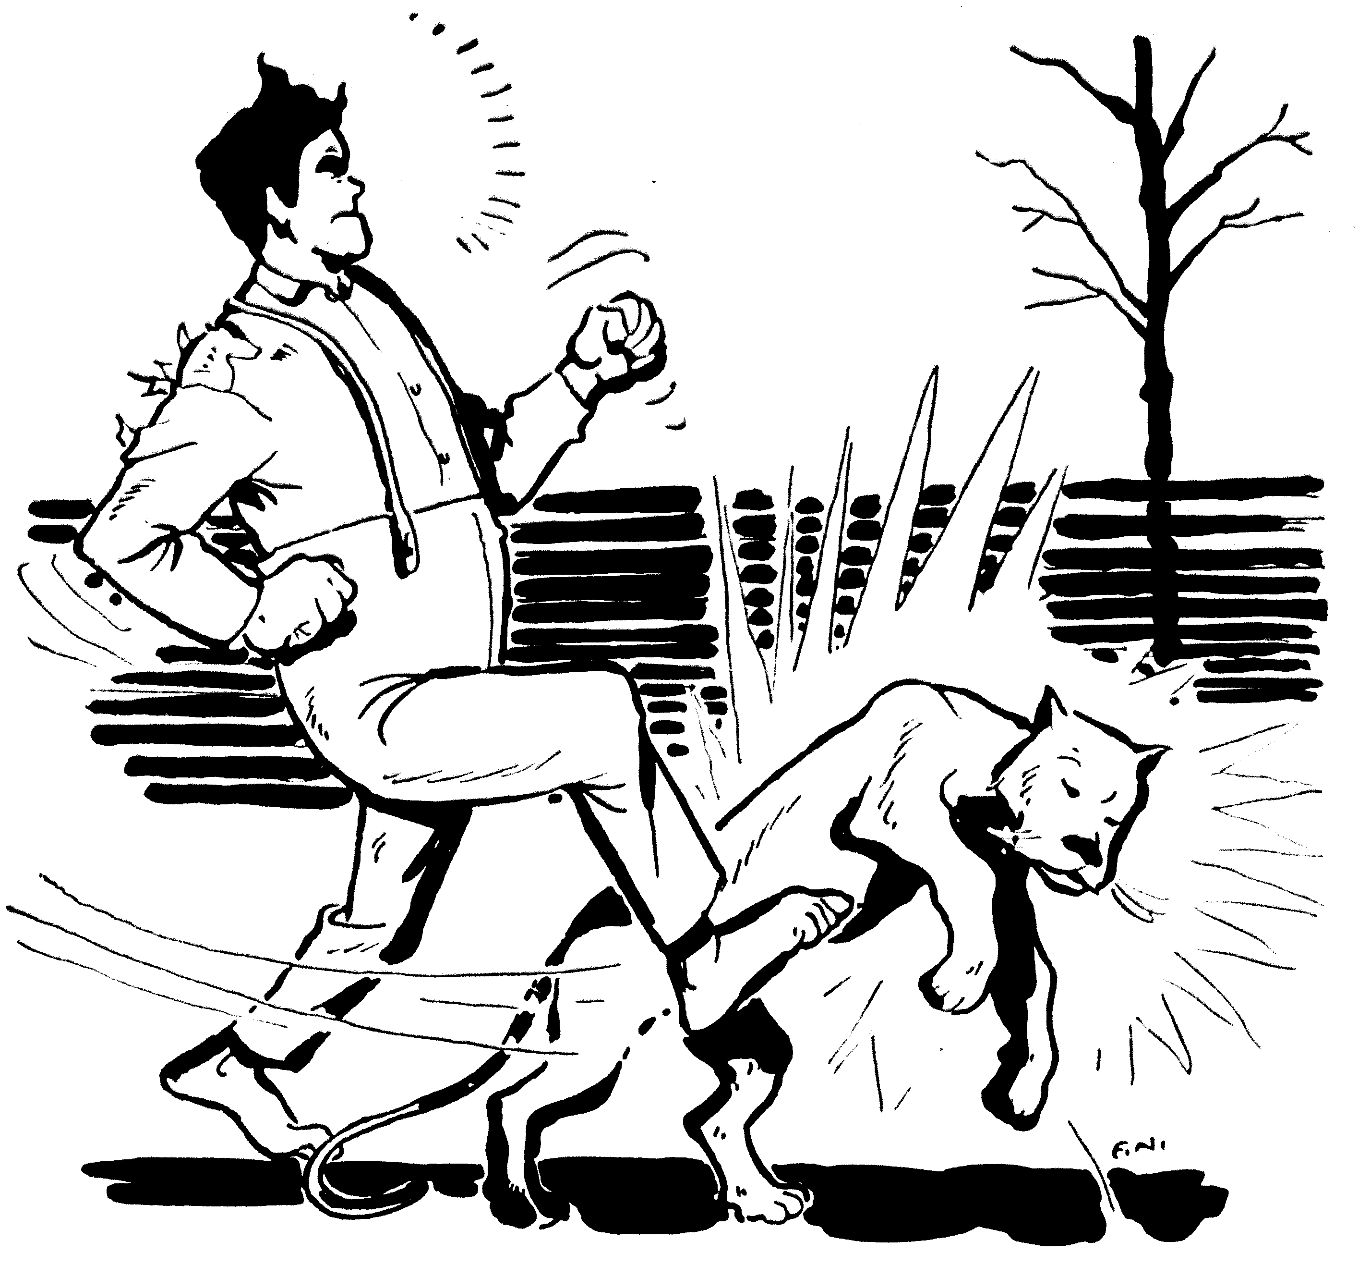
The Spaniards who came to French Fork did not, as a rule, establish homes but were traders and trappers who spent much of their time with the Indians. LaVacca, meaning "The Cow", which name was given the beautiful W. S. Calhoun plantation home, and a few family names like Rodriquez and Basco, are all that remains of the Spanish influence.

But when the French people began to arrive on French Fork in the 1760's, they established homes and farms on the highly productive front lands, where many of their descendents live to this day. The younger generations have lost their mother tongue, but such family names as DeVille, Chevalier, Sanson, Crooks, and Paul, that still prevail there, give reasons why this unique stream was named "French Fork".

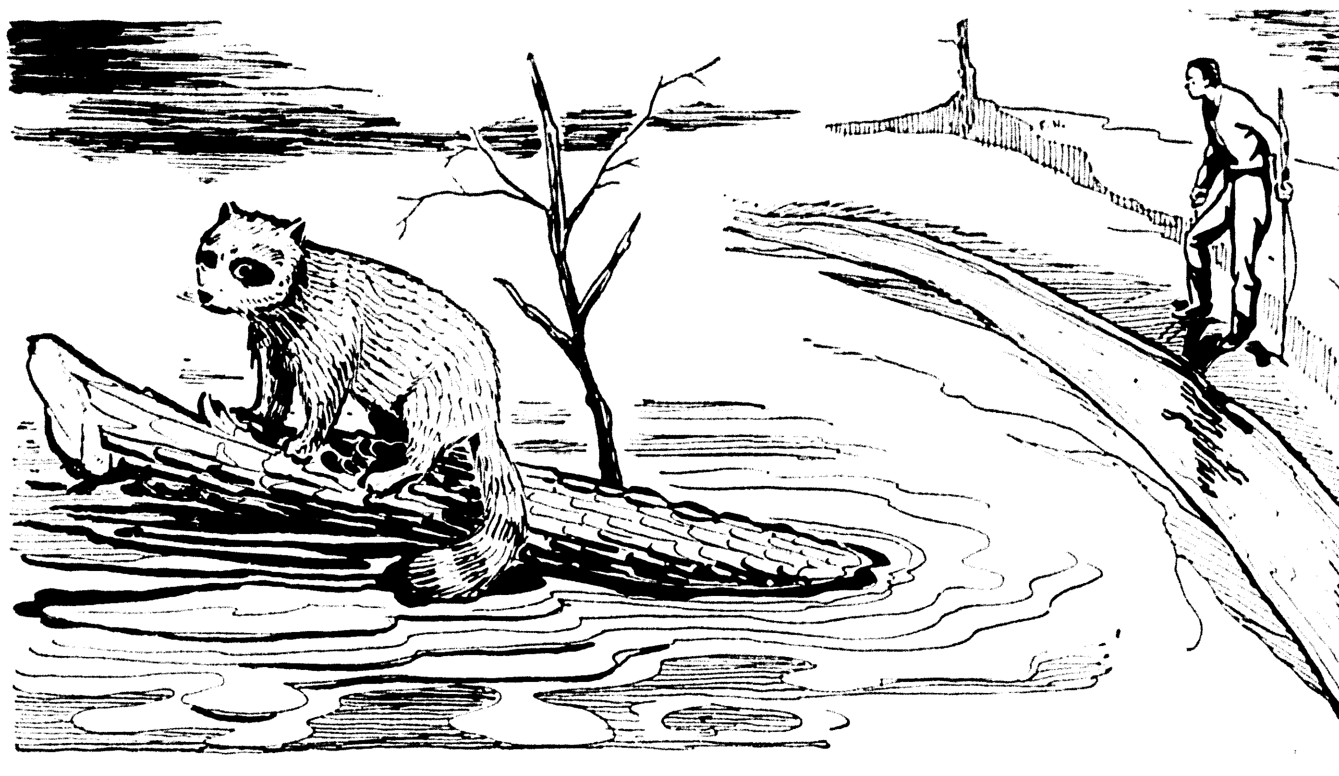
BATISE PAUL

One of the early French heroes was the burly giant, Batise Paul. One of his many feats, according to a legend that many oldsters regard as true, is that he battered a marauding panther with his bare fists. The redoubtable Batise was preparing to retire one night when he heard a calf's blat of distress in his corral. Just as he entered the enclosure to investigate a panther sprang from a tree onto his back and sank it fangs into his shoulder. Did "Bat" call for help? not on your life. A quick series of jabs with his huge gnarled fist tore every rib from the critter's backbone, and when the cat attempted to scramble away, Bat kicked the daylights out of him with his bare feet. Did Bat receive aid for his wounded shoulder? Why sure. He took a big chaw of tobacco from his mouth, massaged his wounds, and went to bed for a pleasant night's sleep.

The French Fork community still retains much of its original local color. Catahoula Lake to the west and almost endless swamp lands with a labyrinth of bayous and lesser lakes to the south make a hunting and fishing ground without parallel in Louisiana.



ACCORDING TO legend, Batise Paul, using only bare fists and bare feet, put an end to a panther.



FRENCH FORK has many moods, from overflow to the calm of a gentle brook.

Tristans Tire Of Civilization

A little over a year ago residents of the lonely South Atlantic island of Tristan da Cunha were chased out by a volcano. Now they're heading home again from Britain. "Civilization" didn't suit them.

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — In early February, a group of refugees from volcano - wrecked Tristan da Cunha will turn their back on civilization and return to live on one of the world's more remote and unhospitable islands.

Their rejection of life in Britain's welfare state-which they've been sampling since Nov. 3, 1961 -is, perhaps, the most contemptuous rebuff of modern society since Tarzan decided he preferred apes.

"We 'ave no grumbles abaht Hengland," said Willie Repetto, bachelor leader of the refugees. "Heveryone' as been kind to us, but you can't blame my people for wanting to go back."

WILLIE'S VIEW

"Hevery islanders, from the childrens upwards, wants to return." said Willie. "No one wants to stay in civilization as you calls it."

Willie was not completely correct.

In a secret ballot, supervised by the British government in December 1962, the refugees voted 148-5 to go back to their bleak and lonely volcanic island midway between South Africa and South America.

So, an advance party of about 50 is scheduled to sail from Southampton on Feb. 7 to Cape Town, and then on to Tristan.

They will plant potatoes and generally ready the island for the rest of the refugees who should arrive sometime next autumn.

The background on these people — who shun the five-day week, nationalized medicine, traffic - choked roads, electric stoves, television and other aspects of life in the age of the gadget — is as follows:

A Portuguese admiral named Tristao de Cunha discovered the three tiny islands that make up the group in 1506.

BIGGEST

One is called Inaccessible, the second Nightingale and the third and largest, Tristan da Cunha.

No one is believed to ever have lived on Inaccessible and Nightingale.

Records show that a man named Thomas Currie landed on Tristan da Cunha in 1810 and was its first more or less permanent resident.

After Napoleon was sent to St. Helena, it was feared that an effort might be made to rescue him, and while the distance from St. Helena to Tristan is almost as far as from New York to Galveston, a garrison was set up on Tristan to prevent Napoleon from getting away.

The garrison was removed in 1817, but a Sgt. William Glass, a Scot, liked the island and asked to stay on with his family. His request was granted, and the Glass family was joined by a group of women from St. Helena.

FAMILY NAMES

The present Tristan da Cunha refugees are descendants of ship wrecked Cockney sailors and settlers of European extraction, the Glass family and the women from St. Helena.

There are but seven family names on the islands. Glass is one of them.

Tristan is roughly circular with a coastline of 21 miles and for years and years its inhabitants have been minding their business, liking their island life and living off fishing, potatoes and their sheep and cattle.

For years it's been under British control and in October 1961, when its volcano erupted, the British government rushed rescue parties to the lonely outpost.

The people didn't want to leave, but lava was pouring down the sides of the volcano and their homes began to shift and crack.

Men, women and children — numbering 252 — arrived in Britain on Nov. 9, 1961.

They were taken to a bleak camp in County Surrey and later to a much better place, a former Royal Air Force camp named lshot on Southampton Waters.

On Nov. 17, 1961—thousands of miles from their island home, a Tristan died and a Tristan was born.

The first death was that of Johnny Green, 67.

MANY ILL

The islanders immediately began to feel the damp cold of the British winter and many of them, who had suffered no illness in their lives, went down with the flu.

On Jan. 4, 1962, Alfred Green, 73, then the oldest of the islanders, died. His was the fourth death in the group.

Repetto urged the young Tristans, as well as the older ones, to stick together and not to mingle with the British.

Generally, his request was carried out, but local sociologists predicted it was only a matter of time before the islanders would be integrated with the British.

Instead of integrating, the Tristans got more and more homesick for their lonely home in the South Atlantic.

Speaking before German Communists in East Berlin, the Russian premier said: "Our scientists have developed a 100-megaton bomb. This bomb cannot be used in western Europe because it would hit France and Germany and you too. This bomb could only be used overseas against a potential aggressor."

This was taken to mean that the United States was only country against which the bomb could be used but the Soviet boss may also have intended to include China, since the bomb could easily devastate that country without danger to Europe or Russia itself.

Pouring scorn on Peking's war-and-peace theories, Khrushchev warned the East German Communist party's sixth congress that communism cannot win in a nuclear war. Such a conflict, he said, would bring unimaginable destruction and death in the world.

Speaking clearly in the context of his argument with Peking over peace and war as it applies to communist expansion, Khrushchev pleaded that the fight for peace was "the prime task for socialism."

Coming from a man who, not long ago, was popping off like a summer thunderstorm, those were strangely peaceful words.

A secret agreement between the heads of the United States and Russia would seem like a logical explanation for Khrushchev's action on Cuba and for his peace talks now.

Down through history, nations have changed their enemies into friends and their friends into enemies many times. If the United States and Russia were to form an alliance against Red China it would not be the strangest thing that has ever happened.

Khrushchev would rather effect a conquest of the United States by peace, instead of war, if possible. Kennedy undoubtedly hopes for peace and the emergence of some sort of world government that will make the earth a livable place and he possibly is not too much concerned about whether the sovereignty of nations is preserved.

In the global chess game between the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the late Joseph Stalin of Soviet Russia, Roosevelt was the big loser.

If some sort of pact for joint efforts is to be worked out between the United States and Russia, it would seem that members of congress and the American people have sense enough so that they should be let in on the secret.

Honest Taxpayers

Roland Cocreham, Louisiana revenue collector, has said something that will make a lot of people smile in a "doubting Thomas" sort of way. Cocreham stated that 10 times as many taxpayers make addition and subtraction errors in their own favor as make them in favor of the government but that most of these citizens are inherently honest and that it is incorrect to assume they cheat.

"There are lots of jokes about taxes and how maybe people fudge a little," Cocreham said.

"What all of you would quickly and, I think, pleasantly discover if you had my job for a while is that almost everyone is honest and ready to do the right thing.

"I would like to tell you about something amazing which we have long suspected but never really proved until we used the electronics computers on last year's income tax returns.

"Checking through several hundred thousand returns, we found the errors in addition and subtraction averaged out exactly 10-1 in favor of the taxpayers in both number of mistakes and the total amount of money these mistakes represented.

"To someone not experienced in collecting taxes, the incorrect assumption of cheating by taxpayers might be made but the truth is far different.

"You are probably familiar with the fact that people do have a tendency to see and hear what they want to see and hear. Well, the same thing applies to arithmetic, that's all."

There is a lot of truth in what Cocreham says, and the explanation is sound.

If a taxpayer makes out his income tax form and it appears reasonable, he won't spend much time checking it and therefore may overlook some errors in addition or subtraction. If it looks as if the amount he is going to have to pay is enough to jolt him all the way down to his toes, he'll keep digging away at the return until he finds whatever error there may be in favor of the government. So, really, most of those who make mistakes in addition or subtraction are honest.

If a citizen wants to cheat, he may claim more dependents than he is entitled to but he won't make mathematical errors because he will know the machines won't let them get by. Now, however, the electronics machines don't just add and subtract. They assimilate various required reports on income and may point a finger at you even if the return adds up right.

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

After reading the letter of the man whose dog was killed by a car on the road, I sympathize with him about the dog, but I disagree with him about the people of Louisiana. I have been in 26 states and Louisiana has as good a people as his Yankee state or anywhere else in the world.

I am also what you call a [illegible] Yankee but I am ashamed of it. I have been married to a Rebel 29 years and I love the south.

He wrote his greatest mistake of his life was when they retired in Louisiana. I disagree with him. I think his greatest mistake was when he said one could travel the nation over and not find a more ignorant, filthy, cruel people than in this part of Louisiana.

I have been all through the south and I know. Let me live in the good ole south and keep the [illegible].

Test Ban Applied

Kennedy Re-imposes Unannounced Moratorium On This Work

President Kennedy has re-imposed a moratorium on this country's testing of nuclear weapons.

This unannounced momentous action was taken despite continued Russian testing.

Last fall Premier Khrushchev announced the Soviet would end its long series of atmospheric nuclear tests in November. Despite this widely publicized declaration, there has been no let-up in Russian tests. The latest took place January 5.

Several weeks ago this column disclosed that these new Soviet tests have been most extraordinary. They include a number of ballistic missile firings, ranging from ICBMs to anti-missile missiles. In one of these tests, three IRBM were destroyed by a single nuclear blast from the warhead of what U. S. experts believe is the latest Soviet anti-missile missile.

The U.S. has had no comparable tests.

The country's renewed unilateral suspension of atmospheric nuclear weapons testing was revealed by the President under questioning at his controversial for - background - only press conference in Palm Beach, December 31.

He was asked, "Are we headed for another round of tests?"

"Not now," replied the President. "We are not going to test in the atmosphere for a while. Our underground tests will continue. We are still trying to work out a nuclear test agreement (with the Russians)."

Other than these unreported off-the-record remarks, there has been no word of this new non-testing policy.

Leaders of the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee are much disturbed by this backstage move. Officials of the Pentagon and Atomic Energy Commission will be summoned to report fully on this far - reaching decision.

THE PRESIDENT'S EXPLANATION — One of the 30-odd newsmen who took part in this year-end background press conference pointed out to the President that "you resumed atmospheric nuclear testing to maintain our edge our technical edge, in-weaponry."

"We haven't heard much about these tests," continued the reporter. "Are you satisfied we still have that margin?"

"Yes," replied the President, and then asserted that "technical margin" is becoming increasingly "less significant." Methods of delivering nuclear weapons are steadily assuming greater weight.

Following is his exposition of that view, which manifestly was decisive in his unannounced decision to reinstate this country's moratorium on nuclear tests:

"Means of delivery get to be the significant factor; whether you can put so many kilotons or megatons into a bomb of so many pounds really is not as vital a question as how much of a missile force you have and how much conventional forces, and how much transport you have, and your willingness to use all these. So the actual sophistication of a weapon is not as decisive a point perhaps.

"In answer to your question, I would say that we are still ahead of the Russians in some areas, and even with them in others. They have built a larger bomb than we have, but that is because we have never felt we had a strategic requirement for it."

OUTLOOK FOR PEACE — The President balked at being pinned down on his relations with Khrushchev since the Cuban showdown; on whether as a result of the latter there has been a significant shift in the balance of world power, and on the outlook for peace this year.

While he talked at some length on all these matters, he carefully sidestepped definite conclusions.

"It is very difficult to predict whether Khrushchev is anxious to have a detente with the United States," the President said. "I don't know . . . What we are trying to do is to protect our interest and not have a war. If we suffer a major defeat, or if they suffer a major defeat, in some ways that may change the balance of power. But it also increases the danger of war."

Have the Sino - Soviet and Sino-Indian conflicts helped improve Khrushchev's relations with the President, he was asked. It was pointed out this is General de Gaulle's belief.

"I don't think we can say they are improving yet," said the President, "because I think we have been through too harsh an experience . . . I think it would be premature to say there is any evidence of improvement yet . . . I would say it is rather difficult to make any judgments really about the balance of power. I think the balance of power is still on our side, but we have a lot of problems in all the undeveloped world."

On the prospects for peace this year, the President was slightly hopeful, but very cautiously so.

"Can you compare your estimate of the chances of keeping the peace in 1963 with what you thought they were at the beginning of 1962?" he was asked.

"Well, I would say they are slightly better," the President replied.

In response to other questions the President disclosed:

He wants to do considerable traveling in Latin America this year. He would like to go to Japan, and make a state visit to Britain, but has no plans for either. Africa is out, because a trip there would take too much time.

It is possible he may meet with General de Gaulle in the next few months, but, "That is by no means assured."

U. S. troops would have been sent to Laos if a cease - fire agreement had not been reached. "We couldn't permit the Communists to overrun that country," said the President, "and I think that was probably why we got the cease-fire at a time when the military balance of power was in the hands of the Pathet Laos."

Some gains have been scored by the Alliance for Progress in Latin America, but the problems there are "staggering." It is the President's belief that "we are not doing quite enough for Latin America." He pointed out the U.S. has done a great deal more for Western Europe and is still doing much there.

FOREIGN LOBBYIST INVESTIGATION — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has turned over to the Justice Department a number of "apparent or possible violations of federal law" by lobbyists of foreign governments.

That's what Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman, has informed committee members in a private report.

This three-page document mentions no names or specific cases. However, it indicates the evidence against the foreign lobbyists was obtained from income tax returns.

Fulbright plans to start hearings on his probe early next month. In preparation for them, his staff has examined Justice Department records of 250 of the 400 registered foreign lobbyists. In addition, a lengthy detailed questionnaire was sent to 25 lobbyists representing foreign sugar interests.

The so - called "sugar lobby" is a major target of the investigation. Fulbright demanded the probe following extensive lobbyist activities during Congress' consideration last year of the new sugar act.

Eleven law schools throughout the country are doing research work for the Senate committee on "legal aspects" of lobbying by foreign representatives.

Tax Cut Offered

Reduction Proposal Already Placed In Legislative Hopper

Although the Administration tax proposals will not be completely detailed until President Kennedy sends his special tax message to Congress, a tax reduction plan has already hit the legislative hopper.

In it a Florida Democrat and a Tennessee Republican have teamed up for the third successive Congress to propose a progressive tax reduction plan to be effective over a period of five years.

The authors, Representatives A. S. Herlong, Jr., Democrat, Florida, and Representative Howard H. Baker, Republican, Tennessee, instead of slashing taxes across the board at one full sweep would cut them $3,850,000,000 a year for each of the next five years.

As is well known the highest tax on corporations is 52 percent, while the highest tax on individual income is 91 percent. Herlong and Baker propose to bring the highest bracket of both corporate and individual incomes down to 42 percent.

Of the $3,850,000,000 of revenue reduction estimated annually under the plan, $2,850,000,000 would go to individuals and $1,000,000,000 to corporations.

"A top personal tax rate similar to the top corporate tax rate would be a small concession to make in order to turn our high-powered people loose to lead the way to high-level growth," Herlong and Baker said in a joint statement.

The Florida and Tennessee Representatives further said:

"This legislative program is not designed to stimulate an inherently weak economy, but to release the world's strongest economy from the tax rates which bind it."

While the Herlong-Baker bill proposes to give every tax payer at least a 25 percent tax reduction, the greatest emphasis on reduction of the graduated scale would be in the middle and top brackets.

The first bracket rate would come down from its present 20 percent to 15 percent by annual steps. This would account for $6,015,000,000 or 43 percent of the total personal tax savings.

The $18,000-$20,000 bracket of taxable income after deductions and exemptions bears a 53 percent rate. The Herlong - Baker scale would reduce this, by annual steps, to 24 percent.

The $32,000-$38,000 bracket now taxed 65 percent, would come down to 28 percent.

The $100,000-$150,000 bracket of taxable income now at 89 percent would be reduced in the plan to 38 percent in five years.

The authors' assertion is that over the life of their plan the proposed tax cuts would provide approximately $14,250,000,000 in tax savings for individuals and $5,000,000,000 for corporations.

The steeply climbing rates in the middle and upper income brackets, the two Congressmen asserted, "constitute the most inhibiting and retarding forces working against economic growth.

"They choke off venture capital at its source, curtail business starts and expansion and thus prevent creation of new jobs.

"Present uneconomic tax rates restrict economic growth, limit the number of new jobs, and provide too little revenue for the support of the Government. Removal or modification of these tax rates deterrents or drags not only would be good business for the country, it would also be good business for the Government."

Describing their proposed tax cuts as "healthy but not excessive," Herlong and Baker said in a statement that the reform they propose "would turn the economy loose" for growth needed to provide jobs for the 1,500,000 persons who will be joining the labor annually in the next five years.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U.S. Senator From Arizona

If there is a great national demand for a tax cut without a corresponding or comparable reduction in government spending, it certainly hasn't yet become apparent.

The mail reaching my office on the subject of the tax reduction shows a decided lack of enthusiasm for this exercise in fiscal irresponsibility. Most of the people who write to me believe that (1) the right kind of a tax cut is desirable, (2) it should go hand-in-hand with cuts in government spending and (3) the administration's program won't spur the economy unless the two actions are tied together.

I suggest the public attitude toward the much-heralded tax cut promised by the New Frontier has surprised the President and his advisors. Strangely enough, the great enthusiasm with which proposals for tax reduction are usually met is not forthcoming on the basis of further deficit financing.

It strikes me that the people are beginning to show their concern at the great rate of public expenditure and rising debt in a time of prosperity. The prospects of a federal budget approximating $100 billion is raising serious questions of how long the United States can maintain a policy of extravagance and still protect its economic underpinnings for the world-wide challenges it faces in the cold war.

It stands to reason — and more and more people are beginning to understand this — that we can't go on forever spending more than we take in no matter how urgent the demands are for further expenditures.

The demands of the military and space development are great and growing. We should understand and accept this as essential to the security of the United States and to the cause of freedom throughout the world. At the same time, it should become a primary reason for holding down other expenditures.

It can be reasonably asked, for example, why welfare expenditures should have increased by billions of dollars in a 10-year period marked by the greatest prosperity this nation, or any nation, has ever experienced. This is one of the non-defense categories which has swelled the national budget far beyond reason.

There also is reason to question the tremendous outlays we are making in the field of foreign aid. Of course, we are told over and over again that these expenditures are part of the fight against communism, that they are essential to the maintenance of the cause of freedom, that to cut them would do injury to the image throughout the United States, throughout the world.

But these huge expenditures have gone on for years and years, and the results have been notably lacking. There certainly has been no disposition on the part of Communist countries, to whom we send hard-earned American tax dollars, to embrace freedom or to support the United States in its contest with Soviet ideology. And there is no evidence of non-committed nations supporting our position in East-West confrontations or on the question of nuclear testing or any of the other myriad problems which separate us from the Soviet Union along the long front of the cold war.

Not only in the mail of senators and congressmen, but also in some public-opinion polls taken throughout the country, there is a [illegible] lack of enthusiasm for the tax cut [illegible] as advanced by spokesmen for the Kennedy administration. In fact, there is discernible in the country a degree of outright opposition to the proposal for cutting down government revenues without reducing spending.

Americans who live on a family budget and must match their expenditures to their income understand this problem. They know the kind of trouble they encounter when things get far out of balance. And they can't help but question a calculated policy of spending and continued deficits on the part of their government.

How do you stand, sir?

War Of Turtle Doves

The world's two biggest K's, President John Kennedy of the United States and Premier Nikita Khrushchev of Russia, are fighting each other like a couple of turtle doves with olive branches in their beaks. If Khrushchev were to act any sweeter he would melt like sugar in a horse's mouth. Kennedy is acting as if he feels as cozy as a cat in front of a fire on a cold day.

Communist China must feel like a rejected child, although it must be admitted that nation acted like a rebellious offspring before Khrushchev turned on the heat.

If Kennedy and Khrushchev haven't made some sort of secret deal between themselves to be blood brothers they are doing the best acting job in history in pouring on the honey.

Khrushchev has been quoted as saying he would rather have Kennedy president of the United States than any man in the world. The Cuban crisis came up at exactly the right time to help Kennedy in getting many of his candidates elected to the House and Senate. Even the Republicans and most other Kennedy critics called off their dogs at the crucial moment and let the Kennedy men go into Congress.

Khrushchev, who had been acting as truculent, suddenly became as meek as a newly-shorn lamb when President Kennedy came out with what appeared to be an ultimatum and told him to get his nuclear warheads and big bomber planes out of Cuba. The strange part of it was that Khrushchev did just that, as far as we know, though he may have plenty of the warheads still hidden there, and acted as if he enjoyed it. He seemed to be playing a role in a prearranged drama.

In Berlin a few days ago, Khrushchev told his comrades that the United States has 40,000 atomic or nuclear warheads and communist policy cannot be based on war.

If all the American bombs were dropped, he said, 700 million to 800 million people would be killed and whole nations wiped out.

Speaking before German communists in East Berlin, the Russian premier said: "Our scientists have developed a 100-megaton bomb. This bomb cannot be used in western Europe because it would hit France and Germany and you too. This bomb could only be used overseas against a potential aggressor."

This was taken to mean that the United States was only country against which the bomb could be used but the Soviet boss may also have intended to include China, since the bomb could easily devastate that country without danger to Europe or Russia itself.

Pouring scorn on Peking's war-and-peace theories, Khrushchev warned the East German Communist party's sixth congress that communism cannot win in a nuclear war. Such a conflict, he said, would bring unimaginable destruction and death in the world.

Speaking clearly in the context of his argument with Peking over peace and war as it applies to communist expansion, Khrushchev pleaded that the fight for peace was "the prime task for socialism."

Coming from a man who, not long ago, was popping off like a summer thunderstorm, those were strangely peaceful words.

A secret agreement between the heads of the United States and Russia would seem like a logical explanation for Khrushchev's action on Cuba and for his peace talks now.

Down through history, nations have changed their enemies into friends and their friends into enemies many times. If the United States and Russia were to form an alliance against Red China it would not be the strangest thing that has ever happened.

Khrushchev would rather effect a conquest of the United States by peace, instead of war, if possible. Kennedy undoubtedly hopes for peace and the emergence of some sort of world government that will make the earth a livable place and he possibly is not too much concerned about whether the sovereignty of nations is perserved.

In the global chess game between the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the late Joseph Stalin of Soviet Russia, Roosevelt was the big loser.

If some sort of pact for point efforts is to be worked out between the United States and Russia, it would seem that members of congress and the American people have sense enough so that they should be let in on the secret.

"Yes," replied the President, and then asserted that "technical margin" is becoming increasingly "less significant." Methods of delivering nuclear weapons are steadily assuming greater weight.

Following is his exposition of that view, which manifestly was decisive in his unannounced decision to reinstate this country's moratorium on nuclear tests:

"Means of delivery get to be the significant factor; whether you can put so many kilotons or megatons into a bomb of so many pounds really is not as vital a question as how much of a missile force you have and how much conventional forces, and how much transport you have, and your willingness to use all these. So the actual sophistication of a weapon is not as decisive a point perhaps.

"In answer to your question, I would say that we are still ahead of the Russians in some areas, and even with them in others. They have built a larger bomb than we have, but that is because we have never felt we had a strategic requirement for it."

OUTLOOK FOR PEACE — The President balked at being pinned down on his relations with Khrushchev since the Cuban showdown; on whether as a result of the latter there has been a significant shift in the balance of world power, and on the outlook for peace this year.

While he talked at some length on all these matters, he carefully sidestepped definite conclusions.

"It is very difficult to predict whether Khrushchev is anxious to have a detente with the United States," the President said. "I don't know . . . What we are trying to do is to protect our interest and not have a war. If we suffer a major defeat, or if they suffer a major defeat, in some ways that may change the balance of power. But it also increases the danger of war."

Have the Sino - Soviet and Sino-Indian conflicts helped improve Khrushchev's relations with the President, he was asked. It was pointed out this is General de Gaulle's belief.

"I don't think we can say they are improving yet," said the President, "because I think we have been through too harsh an experience . . . I think it would be premature to say there is any evidence of improvement yet . . . I would say it is rather difficult to make any judgments really about the balance of power. I think the balance of power is still on our side, but we have a lot of problems in all the undeveloped world."

On the prospects for peace this year, the President was slightly hopeful, but very cautiously so.

"Can you compare your estimate of the chances of keeping the peace in 1963 with what you thought they were at the beginning of 1962?" he was asked.

"Well, I would say they are slightly better," the President replied.

In response to other questions the President disclosed:

He wants to do considerable traveling in Latin America this year. He would like to go to Japan, and make a state visit to Britain, but has no plans for either. Africa is out, because a trip there would take too much time.

It is possible he may meet with General de Gaulle in the next few months, but, "That is by no means assured."

U. S. troops would have been sent to Laos if a cease - fire agreement had not been reached. "We couldn't permit the Communists to overrun that country," said the President, "and I think that was probably why we got the cease-fire at a time when the military balance of power was in the hands of the Pathet Laos."

Some gains have been scored by the Alliance for Progress in Latin America, but the problems there are "staggering." It is the President's belief that "we are not doing quite enough for Latin America." He pointed out the U.S. has done a great deal more for Western Europe and is still doing much there.

FOREIGN LOBBYIST INVESTIGATION — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has turned over to the Justice Department a number of "apparent or possible violations of federal law" by lobbyists of foreign governments.

That's what Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman, has informed committee members in a private report.

This three-page document mentions no names or specific cases. However, it indicates the evidence against the foreign lobbyists was obtained from income tax returns.

Fulbright plans to start hearings on his probe early next month. In preparation for them, his staff has examined Justice Department records of 250 of the 400 registered foreign lobbyists. In addition, a lengthy detailed questionnaire was sent to 25 lobbyists representing foreign sugar interests.

The so - called "sugar lobby" is a major target of the investigation. Fulbright demanded the probe following extensive lobbyist activities during Congress' consideration last year of the new sugar act.

Eleven law schools throughout the country are doing research work for the Senate committee on "legal aspects" of lobbying by foreign representatives.

Tax Cut Offered

Reduction Proposal Already Placed In Legislative Hopper

Although the Administration tax proposals will not be completely detailed until President Kennedy sends his special tax message to Congress, a tax reduction plan has already hit the legislative hopper.

In it a Florida Democrat and a Tennessee Republican have teamed up for the third successive Congress to propose a progressive tax reduction plan to be effective over a period of five years.

The authors, Representatives A. S. Herlong, Jr., Democrat, Florida, and Representative Howard H. Baker, Republican, Tennessee, instead of slashing taxes across the board at one full sweep would cut them $3,850,000,000 a year for each of the next five years.

As is well known the highest tax on corporations is 52 percent, while the highest tax on individual income is 91 percent. Herlong and Baker propose to bring the highest bracket of both corporate and individual incomes down to 42 percent.

Of the $3,850,000,000 of revenue reduction estimated annually under the plan, $2,850,000,000 would go to individuals and $1,000,000,000 to corporations.

"A top personal tax rate similar to the top corporate tax rate would be a small concession to make in order to turn our high-powered people loose to lead the way to high-level growth," Herlong and Baker said in a joint statement.

The Florida and Tennessee Representatives further said:

"This legislative program is not designed to stimulate an inherently weak economy, but to release the world's strongest economy from the tax rates which bind it."

While the Herlong-Baker bill proposes to give every tax payer at least a 25 percent tax reduction, the greatest emphasis on reduction of the graduated scale would be in the middle and top brackets.

The first bracket rate would come down from its present 20 percent to 15 percent by annual steps. This would account for $6,015,000,000 or 43 percent of the total personal tax savings.

The $18,000-$20,000 bracket of taxable income after deductions and exemptions bears a 53 percent rate. The Herlong - Baker scale would reduce this, by annual steps, to 24 percent.

The $32,000-$38,000 bracket now taxed 65 percent, would come down to 28 percent.

The $100,000-$150,000 bracket of taxable income now at 89 percent would be reduced in the plan to 38 percent in five years.

The authors assertion is that over the life of their plan the proposed tax cuts would provide approximately $14,250,000,000 in tax savings for individuals and $5,000,000,000 for corporations.

The steeply climbing rates in the middle and upper income brackets, the two Congressmen asserted "constitute the most inhibiting and retarding forces working against economic growth.

"They choke off venture capital at its source, curtail business starts and expansion and thus prevent creation of new jobs.

"Present uneconomic tax rates restrict economic growth, limit the number of new jobs, and provide too little revenue for the support of the Government. Removal or modification of these tax rates deterrents or drags not only would be good business for the country; it would also be good business for the Government."

Describing their proposed tax cuts as "healthy but not excessive" Herlong and Baker said in a statement that the reform they propose "would turn the economy loose" for growth needed to provide jobs for the 1,500,000 persons who will be joining the labor annually in the next five years.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U.S. Senator From Arizona

If there is a great national demand for a tax cut without a corresponding or comparable reduction in government spending, it certainly hasn't yet become apparent.

The mail reaching my office on the subject on the tax reduction shows a decided lack of enthusiasm for this exercise in fiscal irresponsibility. Most of the people who write to me believe that (1) the right kind of a tax cut is desirable, (2) it should go hand-in-hand with cuts in government spending and (3) the administration's program won't spur the economy unless the two actions are tied together.

I suggest the public attitude toward the much-heralded tax cut promised by the New Frontier has surprised the President and his advisors. Strangely enough, the great enthusiasm with which proposals for tax reduction are usually met is not forthcoming on the basis of further deficit financing.

It strikes me that the people are beginning to show their concern at the great rate of public expenditure and rising debt in a time of prosperity. The prospects of a federal budget approximating $100 billion is raising serious questions of how long the United States can maintain a policy of extravagance and still protect its economic underpinnings for the world-wide challenges it faces in the cold war.

It stands to reason — and more and more people are beginning to understand this — that we can't go on forever spending more than we take in no matter how urgent the demands are for further expenditures.

The demands of the military and space development are great and growing. We should understand and accept this as essential to the security of the United States and to the cause of freedom throughout the world. At the same time, it should become a primary reason for holding down other expenditures.

It can be reasonably asked, for example, why welfare expenditures should have increased by billions of dollars in a 10-year period marked by the greatest prosperity this nation, or any nation, has ever experienced. This is one of the non-defense categories which has swelled the national budget far beyond reason.

There also is reason to question the tremendous outlays we are making in the field of foreign aid. Of course, we are told over and over again that these expenditures are part of the fight against communism, that they are essential to the maintenance of the cause of freedom, that to cut them would do injury to the image throughout the United States, throughout the world.

But these huge expenditures have gone on for years and years, and the results have been notably lacking. There certainly has been no disposition on the part of Communist countries, to whom we send hard-earned American tax dollars, to embrace freedom or to support the United States in its contest with Soviet ideology. And there is no evidence of non-committed nations supporting our position in East-West confrontations or on the question of nuclear testing or any of the other myriad problems which separate us from the Soviet Union along the long front of the cold war.

Not only in the mail of senators and congressmen, but also in some public-opinion polls taken throughout the country, there is a decided — almost historic — lack of enthusiasm for the tax - cut ideas as advanced by spokesmen for the Kennedy administration. In fact, there is discernible in the country a degree of outright opposition to the proposal for cutting down government revenues without reducing spending.

Americans who live on a family budget and must match their expenditures to their income understand this problem. They know the kind of trouble they encounter when things get far out of balance. And they can't help but question a calculated policy of profligacy and continued deficits on the part of their government.

How do you stand, sir?

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1887, the Senate approved the leasing of Pearl Harbor, in the Hawaiian Islands, as a base for the Navy.

In 1936, King George V of England died, with his son succeeding to the throne as Edward VIII.

In 1941, Franklin D. Roosevelt was inaugurated for his third term as President.

A thought for the day—A few hours after Italy declared war on France, Franklin D. Roosevelt said: "On this tenth day of June, 1940, the hand that held the dagger has struck it into the back of its neighbor."

Cold War Balance Sheet And U.S. Strategy

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Every U.S. administration since the close of World War II has sought to strengthen the free world against Communist aggression. Here is a report on U.S. strategy in a war in which nobody talks about victory.)

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Diplomatic Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP)—After two years of battling the Kremlin—and the Red Chinese—on all fronts, key officials in the Kennedy administration have about decided that the cold war by any other name would be easier to deal with.

The difficulty is that the traditional term for the long and costly struggle with Communist power implies a two-sided fight and a rigid, simple aim which, in the view of President Kennedy and Secretary of State Rusk, are not adequate to the real facts.

Some restudy and redefinition of U.S. world aims as well as possible changes in strategy and tactics of the East-West conflict may come about in the last two years of Kennedy's present term, if, indeed, they are not already in motion. Such a new look at the nature of the struggle seems to be implied by Kennedy's order of an inquiry into the U.S. foreign aid program.

To do this job, the President has set up a committee under the leadership of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, once the top U.S. official in Germany and more recently a leading figure in the ransoming of the invasion prisoners from Cuba. Kennedy has asked Clay to look at the foreign aid program in terms of U.S. strategic interests.

To find out whether those interests are being served by the expenditure of three to four billion dollars of foreign assistance each year, Clay will certainly have to define U.S. strategy and what it seeks to achieve in the world.

Kennedy and Rusk and other top administration leaders have virtually abandoned use of the term cold war to describe the East-West conflict. Officials concede there is objection to the use of the word "enemy" because of the implication of a state of hostility between Washington and Moscow.

OBJECTIONS

Other objections can be raised on the ground that people ordinarily conceive of a war as lasting for a limited period of time. Kennedy thinks that the United States and other friendly nations will have to carry burdens like those they now have, including huge outlays for defense and some kind of foreign assistance, until the year 2000.

His estimate agrees with that of leaders of the previous Eisenhower and Truman administrations. They felt that the struggle which began after World War II would continue for 40 or 50 years.

More fundamental are the serious and extremely important policy problems which arise for the administration in each session of Congress.

Depending on which party is in power and which is out, the Republicans and the Democrats have alternatively denounced each other for losing and for not trying to win the cold war. In office, the Democrats and the Republicans alike have followed very similar basic policies which were worked out on a bipartisan basis at the outset of the cold war in the period 1945-50.

They aim at preventing Communist expansion into new lands; but they do not aim at the destruction of Communist rule in the Soviet Union, for example, or in Red China.

KENNEDY POLICY

In Cuba now, Kennedy policy calls for ending the Communist rule of Prime Minister Fidel Castro but by means short of direct military action—meaning economic and political pressures in support of Castro's Cuban enemies.

The late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles denounced the Truman administration's policy of containment as an immoral policy but never succeeded in a practical sense in carrying out his proposed substitute for it—a policy of liberation for the Eastern European Iron Curtain countries.

In the long dispute over what kind of policy the United States should have in the conflict with the Soviet Union, the year 1956 was a turning point.

That was the year of the Hungarian revolution, when the United States had the opportunity of military intervention in Eastern Europe and decided not to move lest an intrusion into the Soviet Union's security zone touch off a great war.

In the same year, when Britain and France joined Israel in an attack on Egypt, the United States denounced Britain, France and Israel at the United Nations. Cold war considerations would seem to have required the support of their allies or at least a hands-off attitude. But they were concerned, they said, for developing future U.S. friendship in Africa and Asia and for preserving, at whatever cost, the principle of non-use of force. The Suez issue could have wrecked the Atlantic alliance.

Kennedy and Rusk, when they talk of U.S. cold war aims at all, prefer to stick to broad generalities and to avoid discussing whether they aim at "victory" over the Soviet Union. Any kind of war seems to offer only three possible outcomes—win, lose, or draw. But administration officials do not see the future shape of the world in those terms.

In his State of the Union message a year ago, Kennedy described the goal of U.S. foreign policy—which is largely preoccupied with problems of the Communist struggle—as "a peaceful world of free and independent states."

From the outset of his term as president in January 1961, Kennedy has put his major emphasis on trying to settle disputes such as the Berlin controversy with the Soviet Union, trying to progress toward arms control through negotiations, or trying to ease tensions by eliminating minor harassments such as name calling in public statements and formal notes. Under Kennedy's direction, the style of U.S. diplomacy toward the Soviet Union has changed to a more formal kind of diplomacy while at times he has maintained extensive correspondence with Premier Khrushchev on dangerous problems with very little tough talk.

Where policy issues have been involved, Kennedy has appeared to seek a compromise settlement or a minimum advantage for the United States. In the war-threatening dispute with Khrushchev over Soviet missiles implanted in Cuba last October, Kennedy would have gone to war if necesary to get the missiles out. But when Khrushchev showed signs of withdrawing them peacefully, Kennedy was at some pains to allow him to save face in doing so.

He thus avoided claims of victory and he did not try to exploit Khrushchev's Cuban defeat.

The Cuban episode brought out more clearly than any other U.S.-Soviet confrontation, that both the Soviet leader and the American president consider their possession of nuclear weapons as a severe restraint on their freedom of action.

In such circumstances, Kennedy and Rusk and other administration officials sometimes seem not so much to plan to win the cold war in any ordinary meaning of that word as they do to outlive it.

In fact, when they talk of an ultimate American triumph, they see it as one which would be welcomed by, and beneficial to, the Russians and the Red Chinese as well as other peoples.

When Republican senators assailed the administration last summer with charges that it had a "no win" policy, Rusk's initial reaction appeared to be to evade the issue if possible. He evidently deplored the prospect of a domestic political debate on an issue of war or peace between two nuclear powers.

Eventually, however, he had to deal with the challenge from critics, but he defined victory in such a way as to give it the broadest possible meaning — the meaning that everyone wins and nobody loses.

INTEND TO WIN

"Of course we intend to win," he said in a speech at Minneapolis, Minn. in August. "And we are going to win."

By "we" he said he meant not only the people of the United States but those of most of the rest of the world. By "victory" he said he meant "not the victory of one nation over another or one people over another, but a worldwide victory for freedom."

He called for a world free of aggression, made up of independent nations, dedicated to economic and social justice under rule of law, with democratic political practices.

"Our hope and purpose is to win without a great war and the damage which the weapons of today would inflict upon the human race," he said.

Every secretary of state seems to have counted primarily on failures within the Communist power system to advance American hopes and prospects in the world as much as they counted on what the United States itself could do.

They have worked consistently, for example, to build up the Allied world, to strengthen and protect the neutralist nations and to keep Communist hands from grabbing new territory in Asia or Africa or Latin America. But they have produced few thrusts of anti-Communist power into the Communist bloc itself.

The Red China split with the Soviet Union, which has shaken the Communist world to its deepest foundations, was not engineered or abetted by the United States or any other Western power in the slightest degree.

It was a product of the conflict between Red Chinese national interests and the international requirement of a power system controlled in Moscow. It could prove to be a fateful break in the Communist system, changing the shape of the world's future and of the East-West conflict.

Like the Red China attack on India, it seems to afford a striking example of the shifting nature of the world struggle.

In a revolutionary age, new concepts, both of the nature of the battle and of the ultimate outcome may have to be sought.

Hypnosis Viewed Seriously Today

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The ancient art of hypnosis, long regarded as a mere novelty, is being viewed more seriously these days. Now a California doctor says new techniques can aid a patient's recovery when other means fail.

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON
Associated Press Science Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A despairing patient may find renewed will to live in being reminded that someone depends on him, a motivation far stronger than purely personal considerations, says a San Francisco surgeon.

New techniques of hypnosis can open this path to recovery when ordinary means of communication fail to, says Dr. David B. Cheek, gynecologist and staff surgeon of three of the city's leading hospitals.

Dr. Cheek preaches and teaches hypnosis. He has used it with patients for almost 20 years.

"We know that a shift from despair to hope may bring about an amazing shift from illness to health under many circumstances, but we have not explored adequately the subconscious mechanisms responsible for this," Dr. Cheek says.

He credits hypnosis, however, with revealing many insights into mental and emotional processes.

He has learned, for example, that an anesthetized person undergoing an operation hears—but doesn't consciously remember — what is said in the operating room. The words may speed recovery. Or they may undermine the basic drive for survival.

WRONG MEANINGS

The unreasoning subconscious can attach wrong meanings, Dr. Cheek points out. A surgeon's "it's over now" may mean the operation is completed. But an anesthetized cancer patient may think the surgeon means he is dying. He may despair and die.

Dr. Cheek uses ideomotor questioning—where answers come as unconscious muscular responses rather than speech—to help his patients and open new doors into the subconscious.

He finds out by ideomotor questioning what a patient of his has heard during an operation and whether she thinks it has influenced her. Then he uses hypnotic techniques to raise the whole matter to a conscious level and help the patient rationally overcome misapprehension and fears.

"Subconscious feelings of guilt and identification can block recovery; we should know how to discover them," Dr. Cheek asserts.

Dr. Cheek uses it before an operation or delivery to condition the patient. He may use it to explore and resolve emotional problems resulting from an earlier operation, perhaps one many years in the past.

He words his ideomotor questions during hypnosis to imply faith in the patient's capacity to take planned surgery well and go on to complete recovery. This implication of confidence can be used effectively during ordinary surgical anesthesia, he feels.

If a patient of his faces surgery of a sort that might make her afraid of cancer being found, Dr. Cheek might use ideomotor questions to ascertain her attitude:

Q. Does your subconscious know you do not have cancer?

A. (by finger movements) I do not want to answer.

Q. Will you be able to answer tomorrow? Next week?

A. Yes.

WILLING

Q. (when patient is willing to answer) Please orient back in time to the origin of any feeling you might have cancer. Let me know when you reach that time by lifting your "yes" finger.

Dr. Cheek says further questioning usually reveals she has identified with someone who had cancer or feels she deserves to have it because of wrongdoing, real or imagined.

"At the conclusion of the search, I repeat the question," he says. "Does your subconscious still think you have cancer?' The wording implies that I think she will answer 'no' and this is the usual answer.

"Such optimistic questioning is highly unscientific but of much value in increasing the confidence of the patient," he adds, "and confidence helps the patient."

Hyponosis enables a patient to reject pain awareness at a subconscious level. This improves resistance to infection and speeds the recovery from localized infection, Dr. Cheek wrote in a guest editorial appearing in the Western Journal of Surgery, Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Dr. Cheek notes that some 2,000 general practitioners throughout the United States are using hypnosis "adroitly and thoughtfully for pain relief, for brief analysis of phychological factors in somatic illness, for improving the self-respect of their patients."

Fine, but far from enough, he feels, because "all frightened and chronically sick patients are good subjects for hypnosis if respect is paid to their needs, if their sick egos are bolstered and if their subconscious minds are not bulled."

The methods of ideomotor questioning must be simple, respectful and permissive, he warns.

Hypnosis is no panacea, he declares.

"Hypnosis is a psychiatric tool, but clinicians who are not psychiatrists should know how to use it, for it is a quick, safe and powerful adjunct when treated with the same respect we show for the ordinary needs of our patients," Dr. Cheek comments.

Jazz Clubs In Hungary

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Jazz clubs are being set up under auspices of the Hungarian Communist Youth Organization. One is in Budapest, and two smaller ones are in the provincial towns of Miskolc and Pecs.

The Budapest club has 700 members, with thousands of outsiders coveting membership. For lack of bigger rooms, the membership cannot be extended just yet, club officials say.

Meeting once a week, the club's members listen delightedly to music played by a succession of youthful amateur bands and some smaller professional ones. Most members are students, whose ages average 21.

The Budapest club even has a monthly journal open for all jazz fans to write in.

"Our club rooms are too small and have bad acoustics," says the first issue, "but we seem to have high pretensions already—wouldn't we have been glad a year ago to have a jazz club at all?"

Sign Maybe Guide To Modern Sudan

By WEBB MCKINLEY

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP)—On Nile Boulevard in Khartoum a traffic sign in English warns: "Avoid dazzling others."

Although it is meant for after-dark drivers wheeling along under the banyan trees beside the Blue Nile, the sign could be a guide to modern Sudan.

This is Africa's biggest country, with a million square miles. It seeks not to dazzle others but only to get along with them. Quietly, and almost uniquely in this part of the world, it succeeds.

Sudan is friendly with President Nasser of the United Arab Republic and with his enemies, the kings of Jordan and Saudi Arabia. It stays on goods terms with the United States and maintains correct relations with the Soviet Union and Communist China. It has troops in Kuwait helping guard against Iraqi threats, and it has an envoy in Baghdad who gets along with Iraq's Premier Kassem.

DON'T QUARREL

"We don't quarrel with people—we're too simple," says Foreign Minister Ahmed Keir with a grin. Then more seriously, "No, we believe in neutrality exactly as it's defined in the dictionary. It is not a slogan with us."

In its geography and people, Sudan is a place where different strains meet and, one way or another, coexist.

The Blue and White Niles join at Khartoum. They keep their separate hues for several miles downstream, then merge and flow 1,750 miles to the Mediterranean.

In southern Sudan the desert gives way to the African rain tropics, and the desert Arabs are replaced by Negro tribesmen living in conical thatched huts.

The country has been run since 1958 by seven generals, headed by Ferik Ibrahim Abboud, a bouncy man in his mid-60s. If it is a military dictatorship, it is a mild one.

There have been occasional cries for return to parliamentary rule, which the country tried with unhappy results for two years before the generals stepped in. Now the civilian opposition is confused and nearly mute.

The first step would be popular elections for some 80 local councils this spring. These in turn would elect nine provincial councils, which would then choose a 72-member central council. This final body would approve the national budget. In theory this could lead to constitutional government and return the army to its barracks in three or four years.

The biggest political problem, however, has nothing to do with elections. It concerns the Negroes in the south, who make up about one-fourth of the 11 million population.

The junta keeps a tight seal on news from the country's primitive tropics. Reports filter back, however, of strikes, clashes with authorities and flights into Uganda and the Congo.

The reasons appear to stem from Sudan's policy of "Arabicizing" the south and promoting Islam among pagan and Christian peoples.

The southerners are campaigning, not for total independence, but for north-south Sudanese federation. With the government aiming at merger and pacification, they have little chance of getting it.

Sudan's other big problem is transportation. The longest paved road, built with U.S. aid, extends about 20 miles into the desert from Khartoum. The rail bottleneck from Port Sudan on the Red Sea is so fierce that a shipment to Khartoum often takes six months.

American aid grants to Sudan since its independence in 1956 have totaled about $50 million. Foreign Minister Keir pins hopes on an American loan to help build a $75-million highway from Port Sudan to Khartoum.

HICKSVILLE, N. Y. (UPI) — A mobile electronic teaching device, enabling any classroom to be converted into a language laboratory, has been developed here by Edu - Tronics, Inc.

The new M-30 unit, claimed as the first major break - through in designed mobility for this type of device, consists of a console containing tape deck, power controls, storage facilities and specially - constructed, acoustically-engineered headset and noise-canceling microphones. By pre-fabricating a flexible cable with student positions, the M-30 does away with fixed permanent installations.

A Review And Portrait Of President Kennedy After Two Years In Office

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Just two years ago a vigorous young president, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, took over the reins of government in Washington, impatient to "get the country moving again." He's had fabulous ups and downs since then, close brushes with world disaster, and it's understandable that today he's a somewhat changed man. In this article a veteran Washington correspondent sums up the changes, measuring the Kennedy of 1963, looking ahead to 1964.)

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has been breaking trail along the New Frontier for two years now, picking his way carefully through nuclear perils and treacherous economic tides.

Along the way, too, the man in the White House has become seasoned and tempered in the fires of politics and international furors. He is a little less impatient, a little more tolerant of delay, a little more resigned to compromise. Bits of brashness and cockiness have dropped away.

The President is more mature, more cautious now. Yet he is more confident than he was two years ago.

FOCAL POINT

While Kennedy and his administration have been a focal point of complaints, criticism and controversy at times, the President has grown in this period into a national leader of unquestioned prestige—and into an international leader of commanding stature.

It was 24 months ago that Kennedy stood bareheaded and solemn before the newly remodeled portico of the United States Capitol. He glanced across a sunny, snowy plaza and thousands of ruddy, upturned faces. He took the oath of office.

In a ringing address, he appealed to his fellow Americans to ask what they could do for their country, not what their country could do for them—in freedom's "hour of maximum danger."

Kennedy was 43 then, the youngest man ever chosen by the people to be their President.

In the interval since, dangers swept down upon the President and the nation from around the globe. On occasion, one more spark could have exploded nuclear holocaust.

On the domestic scene, Kennedy struggled with unemployment that refused to retreat, a budget that wouldn't balance, a Congress that balked at jumping through a hoop. As with any administration, the record was one of advances and setbacks.

Halfway through his first term, problems at home still plague the chief executive. The arms race gulps up ever more billions. Permanent peace remains an illusive will-o'-the-wisp, although Kennedy thinks the prospects had brightened slightly by the turn of this year.

Under the impact of history-shaping events, there have been changes in this man in the past two years. There have been changes, too, at the White House and in the government.

Cabinet meetings, long a symbol of the power and functioning of the administrative arm of the government, have become something of a ceremonial holdover from the past. They take place now at infrequent intervals.

Kennedy is his own secretary of state to a large extent, although he leans for help and advice on Dean Rusk, the man who has the title. Kennedy takes a hand in press relations and other activities to a degree that amazes current historians.

Rusk is one of perhaps a score of close associates on whom Kennedy draws for facts, an interpretation of the facts, and guidance. But the major decisions of government are Kennedy's decisions.

DAY - BY - DAY

Men identified closely with the President day by day say they have seen no major, fundamental alteration of Kennedy's character or personality. The changes have been subtle, impossible of exact analysis, and fashioned by two years of training in what often is called the world's toughest job.

Understandably, there is a fleck or two more gray in Kennedy's tousled, light brown hair. But at 45 he has few deep wrinkles. He still is lean and lithe, vigorous and energetic. He has to keep the energy under control — no golf these days — because of an old back injury aggravated in a tree-planting ceremony 20 months ago.

Even so, Kennedy is a restless man on the move. When he sits, he rocks. He still can go at top speed all day after sitting up all night during a crisis over Cuba or over racial integration at the University of Mississippi. He seldom spends a full weekend at the White House and neither does Mrs. Kennedy. It may be another six years before Caroline and John Jr. know where home really is.

The warmth, wit and friendliness in the Kennedy makeup come bubbling to the surface frequently. So does his Irish temper. Underneath, there is steel. Increased amounts of realism and practicality have been mixed in with these qualities in the last two years.

Kennedy came to the White House with great hopes and an effervescent eagerness for, as he put it, getting the country moving again toward peace and prosperity.

He considered no job too big to be solved, no decision too difficult for him to make. Kennedy had complete faith in himself and in an ability to make the right decisions at the right instants.

This cocksureness has melted away. Coolness and tempered confidence have replaced it. Kennedy has learned that appraisals and predictions often must be qualified. He has learned, too, that in the handling of both domestic and foreign affairs he can't wave a wand or a big stick and produce instant magic or miracles.

In genteel fashion, Kennedy has been warring for two years with a Congress in which he once served. Sometimes he wins, sometimes he loses, and sometimes he compromises.

This year, the big legislative goal is to reduce and reform taxes in order to spur the economy and slash unemployment rolls. Kennedy still wants an aid for education bill and a program of medical care for the aged. His party still is in nominal control.

Numerically, Democrats in Congress came through the November election with just about the same margins over the Republicans as before. But Kennedy is completely aware that those margins are optical illusions that can disappear when you reach for them. Again, as for years, it will be a coalition of conservative Republicans and Democrats that will control the legislative mechanism at crucial moments.

So Kennedy seems to be more resigned than he was two years ago to compromising in order to get at least part of what he wants. And even with compromising, some hot legislative skirmishes are sure to break out.

Thus at this point there is no certainty as to what kind of record Kennedy will be able to lay before the people for inspection when he tries for a second term in 1964. He takes it for granted, and so does everyone else, that he will be running then—he has done everything but announce his candidacy formally.

In the international field, Kennedy has seen nuclear war brush perilously close to America and the world. He faced the most dangerous threat of all unflinchingly and successfully.

The three times of peril which come most readily to Kennedy's mind:

1. The threat Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev delivered in Vienna to take over Berlin within six months.

2. The Communist attempt to gobble up Laos.

3. The Soviet attempt to establish nuclear missile and bomber bases in Cuba.

France, England In Plane Race

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP)—France and Britain have set a speed limit in their race to build the first supersonic airliner.

By going slower, they hope to reach their goal faster.

The key figure is Mach 2.2. This means 2.2 times the speed of sound.

Engineers calculate that slower speeds would subject the plane to costly drag, while higher speeds would balloon construction costs.

"We picked Mach 2.2 as the speed that would keep us within the limits of present experience," says Andre Puget, president of the Sud-Aviation Co., and head of a joint French-British committee for the project.

The delta-wing, needle-nose plane is expected to cruise at about 60,000 feet with a speed of 1,450 miles an hour. This would mean a New York-London flight in three hours or less. The plane will be made in both medium- and long-range versions, with a capacity of about 100 passengers on each model.

United States aircraft companies and government agencies have been thinking in terms of a Mach 3 airliner, carrying 150, as the first step into the supersonic field. Research is not yet far enough advanced to permit any hard plans for construction.

The British and French governments have promised a development fund of $448 million for the Mach 2.2 project. British Aircraft Corp. and Sud-Aviation, the companies doing the work, will have to make further heavy investments to go into production. Schedules call for the prototype to fly in 1966 and airline service to start in 1970.

Puget explained: "At Mach 2.2 we can rely mainly on aluminum alloys, with titanium or steel for critical heat areas. Above this speed, new materials and techniques will be needed. At Mach 2.2 we can use present-day fuels, but higher speeds will require new fuel. Plastics now in production can be used for the windows. New electronic control equipment will be needed, but the principles are known and the equipment will be ready."

He added that engineers are confident there will be no difficulty in building leakproof fuel tanks or trouble from overheating of fuel.

"We are ahead of the Americans only in that we have made the decision to go ahead," Puget said. "They have the resources and the technical knowledge to go directly to the Mach 3 aircraft. If they can build one for March 3, there is no reason why they can't leap ahead to Mach 5. But there is bound to be a place for both their plane and ours. There is no reason for any competition to develop."

Operating procedures will be adopted to take the Mach 2.2 plane to about 45,000 feet before passing the sound barrier. This is expected to modulate the sonic boom reaching the earth to avoid window breakage and other damage. From some airports, the planes can move over the sea to crash the sound barrier.

No extension of runways should be needed. The Mach 2.2 is designed to land at approximately the same speed as subsonic jets.

Studies have estimated the French-British plane can be sold for little more than big subsonic jets—or for roughly $7 million.

Cold War Balance Sheet And U.S. Strategy

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Every U.S. administration since the close of World War II has sought to strengthen the free world against Communist aggression. Here is a report on U.S. strategy in a war in which nobody talks about victory.)

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Diplomatic Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP)—After two years of battling the Kremlin—and the Red Chinese—on all fronts, key officials in the Kennedy administration have about decided that the cold war by any other name would be easier to deal with.

The difficulty is that the traditional term for the long and costly struggle with Communist power implies a two-sided fight and a rigid, simple aim which, in the view of President Kennedy and Secretary of State Rusk, are not adequate to the real facts.

Some restudy and redefinition of U.S. world aims as well as possible changes in strategy and tactics of the East-West conflict may come about in the last two years of Kennedy's present term, if, indeed, they are not already in motion. Such a new look at the nature of the struggle seems to be implied by Kennedy's order of an inquiry into the U.S. foreign aid program.

To do this job, the President has set up a committee under the leadership of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, once the top U.S. official in Germany and more recently a leading figure in the ransoming of the invasion prisoners from Cuba. Kennedy has asked Clay to look at the foreign aid program in terms of U.S. strategic interests.

To find out whether those interests are being served by the expenditure of three to four billion dollars of foreign assistance each year, Clay will certainly have to define U.S. strategy and what it seeks to achieve in the world.

Kennedy and Rusk and other top administration leaders have virtually abandoned use of the term cold war to describe the East-West conflict. Officials concede there is objection to the use of the word "enemy" because of the implication of a state of hostility between Washington and Moscow.

OBJECTIONS

Other objections can be raised on the ground that people ordinarily conceive of a war as lasting for a limited period of time. Kennedy thinks that the United States and other friendly nations will have to carry burdens like those they now have, including huge outlays for defense and some kind of foreign assistance, until the year 2000.

His estimate agrees with that of leaders of the previous Eisenhower and Truman administrations. They felt that the struggle which began after World War II would continue for 40 or 50 years.

More fundamental are the serious and extremely important policy problems which arise for the administration in each session of Congress.

Depending on which party is in power and which is out, the Republicans and the Democrats have alternatively denounced each other for losing and for not trying to win the cold war. In office, the Democrats and the Republicans alike have followed very similar basic policies which were worked out on a bipartisan basis at the outset of the cold war in the period 1945-50.

They aim at preventing Communist expansion into new lands; but they do not aim at the destruction of Communist rule in the Soviet Union, for example, or in Red China.

KENNEDY POLICY

In Cuba now, Kennedy policy calls for ending the Communist rule of Prime Minister Fidel Castro but by means short of direct military action—meaning economic and political pressures in support of Castro's Cuban enemies.

The late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles denounced the Truman administration's policy of containment as an immoral policy but never succeeded in a practical sense in carrying out his proposed substitute for it—a policy of liberation for the Eastern European Iron Curtain countries.

In the long dispute over what kind of policy the United States should have in the conflict with the Soviet Union, the year 1956 was a turning point.

That was the year of the Hungarian revolution, when the United States had the opportunity of military intervention in Eastern Europe and decided not to move lest an intrusion into the Soviet Union's security zone touch off a great war.

In the same year, when Britain and France joined Israel in an attack on Egypt, the United States denounced Britain, France and Israel at the United Nations. Cold war considerations would seem to have required the support of their allies or at least a hands-off attitude. But they were concerned, they said, for developing future U.S. friendship in Africa and Asia and for preserving, at whatever cost, the principle of non-use of force. The Suez issue could have wrecked the Atlantic alliance.

Kennedy and Rusk, when they talk of U.S. cold war aims at all, prefer to stick to broad generalities and to avoid discussing whether they aim at "victory" over the Soviet Union. Any kind of war seems to offer only three possible outcomes—win, lose, or draw. But administration officials do not see the future shape of the world in those terms.

In his State of the Union message a year ago, Kennedy described the goal of U.S. foreign policy—which is largely preoccupied with problems of the Communist struggle—as "a peaceful world of free and independent states."

From the outset of his term as president in January 1961, Kennedy has put his major emphasis on trying to settle disputes such as the Berlin controversy with the Soviet Union, trying to progress toward arms control through negotiations, or trying to ease tensions by eliminating minor harassments such as name calling in public statements and formal notes. Under Kennedy's direction, the style of U.S. diplomacy toward the Soviet Union has changed to a more formal kind of diplomacy while at times he has maintained extensive correspondence with Premier Khrushchev on dangerous problems with very little tough talk.

Where policy issues have been involved, Kennedy has appeared to seek a compromise settlement or a minimum advantage for the United States. In the war-threatening dispute with Khrushchev over Soviet missiles implanted in Cuba last October, Kennedy would have gone to war if necesary to get the missiles out. But when Khrushchev showed signs of withdrawing them peacefully, Kennedy was at some pains to allow him to save face in doing so.

He thus avoided claims of victory and he did not try to exploit Khrushchev's Cuban defeat.

The Cuban episode brought out more clearly than any other U.S.-Soviet confrontation, that both the Soviet leader and the American president consider their possession of nuclear weapons as a severe restraint on their freedom of action.

In such circumstances, Kennedy and Rusk and other administration officials sometimes seem not so much to plan to win the cold war in any ordinary meaning of that word as they do to outlive it.

In fact, when they talk of an ultimate American triumph, they see it as one which would be welcomed by, and beneficial to, the Russians and the Red Chinese as well as other peoples.

When Republican senators assailed the administration last summer with charges that it had a "no win" policy, Rusk's initial reaction appeared to be to evade the issue if possible. He evidently deplored the prospect of a domestic political debate on an issue of war or peace between two nuclear powers.

Eventually, however, he had to deal with the challenge from critics, but he defined victory in such a way as to give it the broadest possible meaning — the meaning that everyone wins and nobody loses.

INTEND TO WIN

"Of course we intend to win," he said in a speech at Minneapolis, Minn. in August. "And we are going to win."

By "we" he said he meant not only the people of the United States but those of most of the rest of the world. By "victory" he said he meant "not the victory of one nation over another or one people over another, but a worldwide victory for freedom."

He called for a world free of aggression, made up of independent nations, dedicated to economic and social justice under rule of law, with democratic political practices.

"Our hope and purpose is to win without a great war and the damage which the weapons of today would inflict upon the human race," he said.

Every secretary of state seems to have counted primarily on failures within the Communist power system to advance American hopes and prospects in the world, as much as they counted on what the United States itself could do.

They have worked consistently, for example, to build up the Allied world, to strengthen and protect the neutralist nations and to keep Communist hands from grabbing new territory in Asia or Africa or Latin America. But they have produced few thrusts of anti-Communist power into the Communist bloc itself.

The Red China split with the Soviet Union, which has shaken the Communist world to its deepest foundations, was not engineered or abetted by the United States or any other Western power in the slightest degree.

It was a product of the conflict between Red Chinese national interests and the international requirement of a power system controlled in Moscow. It could prove to be a fateful break in the Communist system, changing the shape of the world's future and of the East-West conflict.

Like the Red China attack on India, it seems to afford a striking example of the shifting nature of the world struggle.

In a revolutionary age, new concepts, both of the nature of the battle and of the ultimate outcome may have to be sought.

Hypnosis Viewed Seriously Today

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The ancient art of hypnosis, long regarded as a mere novelty, is being viewed more seriously these days. Now a California doctor says new techniques can aid a patient's recovery when other means fail.

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON
Associated Press Science Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A despairing patient may find renewed will to live in being reminded that someone depends on him, a motivation far stronger than purely personal considerations, says a San Francisco surgeon.

New techniques of hypnosis can open this path to recovery when ordinary means of communication fail to, says Dr. David B. Cheek, gynecologist and staff surgeon of three of the city's leading hospitals.

Dr. Cheek preaches and teaches hypnosis. He has used it with patients for almost 20 years.

"We know that a shift from despair to hope may bring about an amazing shift from illness to health under many circumstances, but we have not explored adequately the subconscious mechanisms responsible for this," Dr. Cheek says.

He credits hypnosis, however, with revealing many insights into mental and emotional processes.

He has learned, for example, that an anesthetized person undergoing an operation hears—but doesn't consciously remember — what is said in the operating room. The words may speed recovery. Or they may undermine the basic drive for survival.

WRONG MEANINGS

The unreasoning subconscious can attach wrong meanings, Dr. Cheek points out. A surgeon's "it's over now" may mean the operation is completed. But an anesthetized cancer patient may think the surgeon means he is dying. He may despair and die.

Dr. Cheek uses ideomotor questioning—where answers come as unconscious muscular responses rather than speech—to help his patients and open new doors into the subconscious.

He finds out by ideomotor questioning what a patient of his has heard during an operation and whether she thinks it has influenced her. Then he uses hypnotic techniques to raise the whole matter to a conscious level and help the patient rationally overcome misapprehension and fears.

"Subconscious feelings of guilt and identification can block recovery; we should know how to discover them," Dr. Cheek asserts.

Dr. Cheek uses it before an operation or delivery to condition the patient. He may use it to explore and resolve emotional problems resulting from an earlier operation, perhaps one many years in the past.

He words his ideomotor questions during hypnosis to imply faith in the patient's capacity to take planned surgery well and go on to complete recovery. This implication of confidence can be used effectively during ordinary surgical anesthesia, he feels.

If a patient of his faces surgery of a sort that might make her afraid of cancer being found, Dr. Cheek might use ideomotor questions to ascertain her attitude:

Q. Does your subconscious know you do not have cancer?

A. (by finger movements) I do not want to answer.

Q. Will you be able to answer tomorrow? Next week?

A. Yes.

WILLING

Q. (when patient is willing to answer) Please orient back in time to the origin of any feeling you might have cancer. Let me know when you reach that time by lifting your "yes" finger.

Dr. Cheek says further questioning usually reveals she has identified with someone who had cancer or feels she deserves to have it because of wrongdoing, real or imagined.

"At the conclusion of the search, I repeat the question," he says. "Does your subconscious still think you have cancer?' The wording implies that I think she will answer 'no' and this is the usual answer.

"Such optimistic questioning is highly unscientific but of much value in increasing the confidence of the patient," he adds, "and confidence helps the patient."

Hyponosis enables a patient to reject pain awareness at a subconscious level. This improves resistance to infection and speeds the recovery from localized infection, Dr. Cheek wrote in a guest editorial appearing in the Western Journal of Surgery, Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Dr. Cheek notes that some 2,000 general practitioners throughout the United States are using hypnosis "adroitly and thoughtfully for pain relief, for brief analysis of phychological factors in somatic illness, for improving the self-respect of their patients."

Fine, but far from enough, he feels, because "all frightened and chronically sick patients are good subjects for hypnosis if respect is paid to their needs, if their sick egos are bolstered and if their subconscious minds are not bulled."

The methods of ideomotor questioning must be simple, respectful and permissive, he warns.

Hypnosis is no panacea, he declares.

"Hypnosis is a psychiatric tool, but clinicians who are not psychiatrists should know how to use it, for it is a quick, safe and powerful adjunct when treated with the same respect we show for the ordinary needs of our patients," Dr. Cheek comments.

Jazz Clubs In Hungary

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Jazz clubs are being set up under auspices of the Hungarian Communist Youth Organization. One is in Budapest, and two smaller ones are in the provincial towns of Miskolc and Pecs.

The Budapest club has 700 members, with thousands of outsiders coveting membership. For lack of bigger rooms, the membership cannot be extended just yet, club officials say.

Meeting once a week, the club's members listen delightedly to music played by a succession of youthful amateur bands and some smaller professional ones. Most members are students, whose ages average 21.

The Budapest club even has a monthly journal open for all jazz fans to write in.

"Our club rooms are too small and have bad acoustics," says the first issue, "but we seem to have high pretensions already—wouldn't we have been glad a year ago to have a jazz club at all?"

Sign Maybe Guide To Modern Sudan

By WEBB MCKINLEY

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP)—On Nile Boulevard in Khartoum a traffic sign in English warns: "Avoid dazzling others."

Although it is meant for after-dark drivers wheeling along under the banyan trees beside the Blue Nile, the sign could be a guide to modern Sudan.

This is Africa's biggest country, with a million square miles. It seeks not to dazzle others but only to get along with them. Quietly, and almost uniquely in this part of the world, it succeeds.

Sudan is friendly with President Nasser of the United Arab Republic and with his enemies, the kings of Jordan and Saudi Arabia. It stays on goods terms with the United States and maintains correct relations with the Soviet Union and Communist China. It has troops in Kuwait helping guard against Iraqi threats, and it has an envoy in Baghdad who gets along with Iraq's Premier Kassem.

DON'T QUARREL

"We don't quarrel with people—we're too simple," says Foreign Minister Ahmed Keir with a grin. Then more seriously, "No, we believe in neutrality exactly as it's defined in the dictionary. It is not a slogan with us."

In its geography and people, Sudan is a place where different strains meet and, one way or another, coexist.

The Blue and White Niles join at Khartoum. They keep their separate hues for several miles downstream, then merge and flow 1,750 miles to the Mediterranean.

In southern Sudan the desert gives way to the African rain tropics, and the desert Arabs are replaced by Negro tribesmen living in conical thatched huts.

The country has been run since 1958 by seven generals, headed by Ferik Ibrahim Abboud, a bouncy man in his mid-60s. If it is a military dictatorship, it is a mild one.

There have been occasional cries for return to parliamentary rule, which the country tried with unhappy results for two years before the generals stepped in. Now the civilian opposition is confused and nearly mute.

The first step would be popular elections for some 80 local councils this spring. These in turn would elect nine provincial councils, which would then choose a 72-member central council. This final body would approve the national budget. In theory this could lead to constitutional government and return the army to its barracks in three or four years.

The biggest political problem, however, has nothing to do with elections. It concerns the Negroes in the south, who make up about one-fourth of the 11 million population.

The junta keeps a tight seal on news from the country's primitive tropics. Reports filter back, however, of strikes, clashes with authorities and flights into Uganda and the Congo.

The reasons appear to stem from Sudan's policy of "Arabicizing" the south and promoting Islam among pagan and Christian peoples.

The southerners are campaigning, not for total independence, but for north-south Sudanese federation. With the government aiming at merger and pacification, they have little chance of getting it.

Sudan's other big problem is transportation. The longest paved road, built with U.S. aid, extends about 20 miles into the desert from Khartoum. The rail bottleneck from Port Sudan on the Red Sea is so fierce that a shipment to Khartoum often takes six months.

American aid grants to Sudan since its independence in 1956 have totaled about $50 million. Foreign Minister Keir pins hopes on an American loan to help build a $75-million highway from Port Sudan to Khartoum.

A Review And Portrait Of President Kennedy After Two Years In Office

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Just two years ago a vigorous young president, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, took over the reins of government in Washington, impatient to "get the country moving again." He's had fabulous ups and downs since then, close brushes with world disaster, and it's understandable that today he's a somewhat changed man. In this article a veteran Washington correspondent sums up the changes, measuring the Kennedy of 1963, looking ahead to 1964.)

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has been breaking trail along the New Frontier for two years now, picking his way carefully through nuclear perils and treacherous economic tides.

Along the way, he encountered in crises over Cuba his worst defeat and his greatest triumph.

Along the way, too, the man in the White House has become seasoned and tempered in the fires of politics and international furors. He is a little less impatient, a little more tolerant of delay, a little more resigned to compromise. Bits of brashness and cockiness have dropped away.

The President is more mature, more cautious now. Yet he is more confident than he was two years ago.

FOCAL POINT

While Kennedy and his administration have been a focal point of complaints, criticism and controversy at times, the President has grown in this period into a national leader of unquestioned prestige—and into an international leader of commanding stature.

It was 24 months ago that Kennedy stood bareheaded and solemn before the newly remodeled portico of the United States Capitol. He glanced across a sunny, snowy plaza and thousands of ruddy, upturned faces. He took the oath of office.

In a ringing address, he appealed to his fellow Americans to ask what they could do for their country, not what their country could do for them—in freedom's "hour of maximum danger."

Kennedy was 43 then, the youngest man ever chosen by the people to be their President.

In the interval since, dangers swept down upon the President and the nation from around the globe. On occasion, one more spark could have exploded nuclear holocaust.

On the domestic scene, Kennedy struggled with unemployment that refused to retreat, a budget that wouldn't balance, a Congress that balked at jumping through a hoop. As with any administration, the record was one of advances and setbacks.

Halfway through his first term, problems at home still plague the chief executive. The arms race gulps up ever more billions. Permanent peace remains an illusive will-o'-the-wisp, although Kennedy thinks the prospects had brightened slightly by the turn of this year.

Under the impact of history-shaping events, there have been changes in this man in the past two years. There have been changes, too, at the White House and in the government.

Cabinet meetings, long a symbol of the power and functioning of the administrative arm of the government, have become something of a ceremonial holdover from the past. They take place now at infrequent intervals.

Kennedy is his own secretary of state to a large extent, although he leans for help and advice on Dean Rusk, the man who has the title. Kennedy takes a hand in press relations and other activities to a degree that amazes current historians.

Rusk is one of perhaps a score of close associates on whom Kennedy draws for facts, an interpretation of the facts, and guidance. But the major decisions of government are Kennedy's decisions.

He added that engineers are confident there will be no difficulty in building leakproof fuel tanks or trouble from overheating of fuel.

"We are ahead of the Americans only in that we have made the decision to go ahead," Puget said. "They have the resources and the technical knowledge to go directly to the Mach 3 aircraft. If they can build one for March 3, there is no reason why they can't leap ahead to Mach 5. But there is bound to be a place for both their plane and ours. There is no reason for any competition to develop."

Operating procedures will be adopted to take the Mach 2.2 plane to about 45,000 feet before passing the sound barrier. This is expected to modulate the sonic boom reaching the earth to avoid window breakage and other damage. From some airports, the planes can move over the sea to crash the sound barrier.

No extension of runways should be needed. The Mach 2.2 is designed to land at approximately the same speed as subsonic jets.

Studies have estimated the French-British plane can be sold for little more than big subsonic jets—or for roughly $7 million.

Drilling Continues To Pace Activity In Monroe District

Drillers in the Monroe Gas Field of Ouachita and Union Parishes continued to pace the activity last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District. Six of 11 reported completions were recorded in that reservoir by District Manager Duncan S. Cook, five in Ouachita Parish and one in Union.

Other finals in a week marked by dwindling new activity included three in Concordia Parish and one in LaSalle.

New locations, numbering only 12, included three in Union Parish, the Monroe Field, and others in Catahoula, Franklin, Grant, LaSalle, Richland and Tensas Parishes.

Of a total of 23 wells listed as actively drilling or testing, three were in Ouachita Parish, but most, seven, were in Tensas, with Caldwell, Catahoula, Grant, LaSalle, Richland and Union Parishes rounding out the number.

Luxury Car Business Is Said On Rise

DETROIT (AP) — If you are planning to spend something more than $5,000 for your new car this year you probably will have to wait longer than usual for delivery.

The super luxury car market is booming and because of limited production facilities, the luxury manufacturers are being pressed a little harder than most.

Cadillac, Lincoln and Imperial — the "high priced three" — are single plant cars. Cadillac's one assembly plant is on the fringe of downtown Detroit. Imperial shares a Detroit Chrysler plant with the Chrysler car and the Dodge 880 while Lincoln shares with Thunderbird one of Ford's newest assembly plants at suburban Wixom.

Cadillac is running its final assembly line on two nine hour shifts five days a week. General manager Harold Warner says this is the maximum if quality is to be maintained.

Ford President John Dykstra reported this month the Lincoln-Thunderbird plant has been operating at full overtime capacity since the start of the 1963 model year in October.

The Imperial plant also is the sole assembly facility for both Chrysler cars and the big Dodge. It has been running two shifts, five days a week, with considerable Saturday overtime.

Cadillac has announced a multi-million-dollar expansion for its Detroit plant but this will take time.

In the year just ended the combined sales total of these three makes exceeded 200,000, the best since 1957. Cadillac reported a record of 155,457 retail deliveries, Lincoln accounted for 32,168 with Imperial taking the rest.

Warner said that even in this price class the general tendency to buy fancier cars could be detected this past year. He said the de Ville models of the Cadillac now account for the biggest volume. These run from $350 to $400 more than the least expensive models.

When Lincoln changed its product line completely three years ago, it dropped all but two models and concentrated these near the top of the price class. The Lincoln four-door sedan carries a sticker price of $6,270 and the four-door convertible is $6,916. These prices compare with $5,214 for the least expensive Cadillac sedan and $5,243 for the Imperial custom four-door.

Imperial sales, too, have been concentrated in the top price models. The Crown and LeBaron series both more expensive than the custom, account for some 70 per cent of all deliveries.

All three makers build to dealer orders and inventories rarely are extensive.

"In our price class, the big volume always comes near the start of a model year," said Lee Mays, general sales manager for Cadillac. "But this year it was even more than we expected. Our test will be how long the pace continues. Normally the luxury car sales soften in the spring and summer months when the cheaper cars boom."

Johnson Hails Democrat Unity In Peace Quest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats led by Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson brushed aside domestic differences Saturday to hail party unity behind President Kennedy in his quest for world peace.

In a state of solvency they haven't enjoyed in years, Democratic National Committee members heard predictions of a sweeping victory for the Kennedy-Johnson team in 1964 and unanimously pledged support of the President's legislative program.

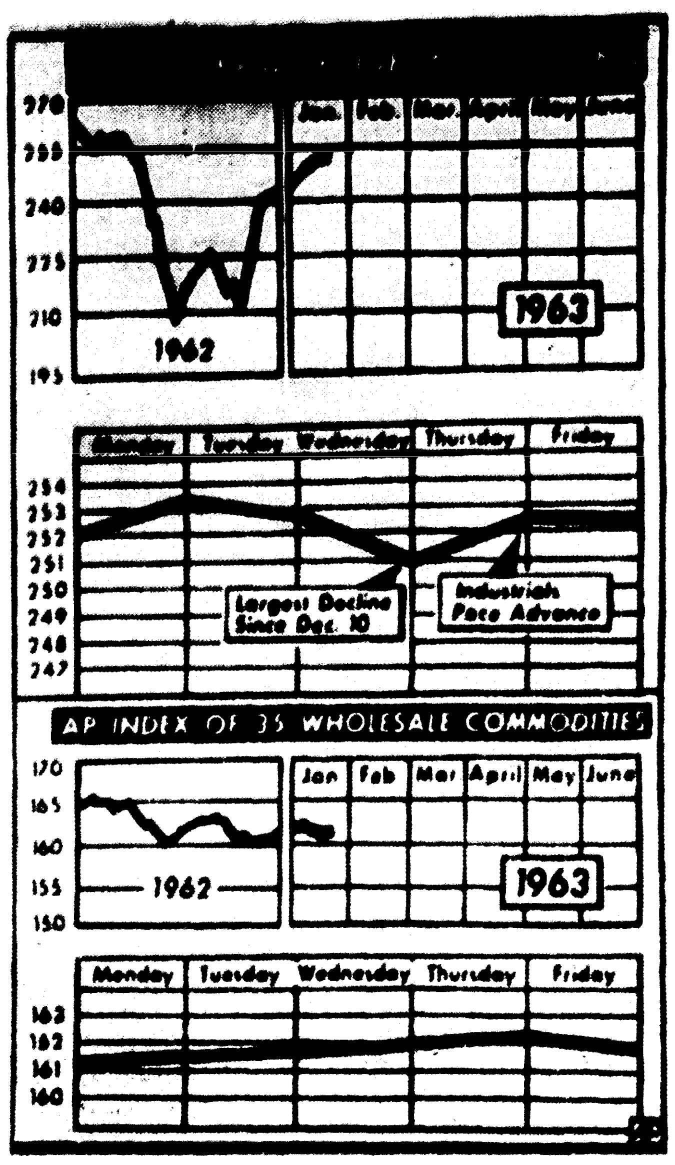
The central theme of a series of speakers at the committee's one-day session was that "Everything's going our way."

This optimism was bolstered by the satisfying report that a $1,000-a-plate dinner and a $100-a-ticket gala Friday night had poured more than $1 million into party coffers. This was enough to take care of $800,000 in debts and leave the committee with pocket change to begin the campaign.

Johnson told a windup luncheon that because of what he called Kennedy's forthright actions in the Cuban crisis "freedom is stronger everywhere in the world."

"We have pulled the fangs of the Cuban rattlesnake and made it clear there were no limits to our determination to defend our security," he told applauding committee members.

"By calling the bluff in Cuba, we made freedom in Berlin and Southeast Asia much surer.



FOR THE FIFTH consecutive week The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved higher, closing Friday at 252.3 from 252.0 a week ago. The commodity index, led by nonferrous metals, advanced this week to 161.9, up from 161.2 last week. (AP Wirephoto)

Depletion Allowance May Make Headlines

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The oil industry's controversial 27½ per cent depletion tax allowance may pop back into national headlines this week.

The allowance figured prominently in the 1960 presidential campaign.

There are widespread but unconfirmed reports President Kennedy plans to ask Congress, possibly on Thursday, to reduce the allowance to State of the Union message promised tax reform proposals but spelled out existing loopholes and special preferences.

Most speculation has indicated he will ask that oil's depletion allowance be cut about 5 per cent.

The reports have not indicated whether both domestic and foreign operations would be affected. During the 1960 campaign, Kennedy called for an overall study to determine if inequities exist but said foreign operations possibly should be treated differently from domestic operations. Vice President Richard Nixon endorsed the full 27½ per cent allowance.

Depletion allowances apply to more than 100 minerals and metals but the maximum 27½ per cent applies only to oil and gas.

Other allowances range from 5 per cent for sand, gravel, and oyster shell to 23 per cent for sulphur and uranium. Speculation about a cut, however, has centered only on the maximum percentage enjoyed by oil and gas.

A recommendation by the President would set off the first full-scale attack on depletion since the statute was passed by Congress in 1926. The statute followed the 1913 enactment of the first income tax law.

The 1913 law recognized a difference between capital and income. It authorized minerals and metals producers an allowance for capital decline caused by production.

Oilmen contend a depletion allowance for each producing lease is not a loophole but a tax provision that is essential if they are to overcome part of their losses from expensive exploration programs that prove to be failures. The domestic industry drilled 8,985 exploratory tests last year but found only 835 oil and 600 gas wells. The remaining 7,550 tests were dry holes.

The allowance applies only to production and does not apply to such operations as transportation, refining, and marketing.

Oilmen also say the 27½ per cent allowance on gross income actually averages out at only 23 per cent in that it cannot exceed 50 per cent of net income.

There have been six unsuccessful attempts since 1958 to cut oil's allowance through amendments submitted on the Senate floor. None proposed a 5 per cent reduction.

The unsuccessful amendments proposed an outright reduction to 15 per cent and graduated reductions down to 15 per cent.

Kennedy, as a senator, voted against an outright cut proposed in 1958 by Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., but voted minutes later for a graduated reduction submitted by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. He voted for a graduated cut again in 1960 when Sen. Paul R. Douglas, D-Ill., resubmitted the proposal.

Oilmen are hopeful other minerals industries will rally to their support if the anticipated full-scale attack develops. They argue that a reduction for oil and gas would open the way for attacks on the allowances enjoyed by other minerals.

Should the all-out attack develop, several influential congressional leaders who championed oil depletion in the past will be missing.

Lyndon B. Johnson led the successful Senate floor defenses in 1958, 1959, and 1960 and then was elected vice president.

Deaths have removed two other powerful figures—House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla.

Business Briefs

ATTENDS MEET

W. E. Bond Jr., sales representative for Louisiana Power & Light Company in the West Monroe area has attended a week-long lighting course at General Electric's Nela Park at Cleveland.

Bond was among electric utility company representatives from throughout the United States at the special course. The course, offered from Jan. 14 through 18, was entitled, "[illegible] Fundamental Course in Industrial and Commercial Lighting."

NEW DIRECTORS

Three new members of the board of directors of Biedenharn Realty Company were elected at the meeting held Jan. 14. Henry Biedenharn, executive vice president of the company announced that W. F. Gratton, Miles H. Sager Jr., and Hadyn Cutler Jr., were the new directors elected.

APPOINTED

Southern Bell Telephone Company has announced the appointment of W. T. Edwards as Chief Engineer for Louisiana. He succeeds Fred M. Fister who has been appointed assistant vice president in the company's headquarters office at Atlanta, Ga.

Edwards comes to Louisiana from North Carolina where he also served as chief engineer for that state.

TRANSFERRED

J. M. (Jack Steel, 38-year veteran of the natural gas industry, and Woodrow W. Lynch, clerk in pipe line operations, have been transferred to the North Louisiana area office of United Gas at Monroe, it was announced by F. B. Winbery, area manager.

Steele has been Shreveport district pipeline superintendent for United Gas Pipe Line Company since 1948, and will occupy a similar position in the North Louisiana area office.

Lynch joined United Gas in 1955 as clerk in the Shreveport district of the pipe line company. Since 1960, he has been clerk in the office of the district pipe line superintendent and will occupy the same position here.

Both Steel and Lynch already have assumed their new work at Monroe.

AWARDS DINNER

Trunkline Gas Co. will honor employees of its Epps Pipeline District and Epps area communications at a dinner at the Rendezvous here. Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

The employees are being honored for safety achievement, having completed one year or more without a disabling injury.

Those receiving awards include District Foreman R. R. Koehl, W. J. Clay, C. C. Ray and W. A. Richardson, all 11 years; F. B. Murphy and F. J. Crouch, both 10 years; District Superintendent R. E. Otis, Communications Engineer H. E. Gober and O. C. Albritton, all 8 years; and O. C. Clack and V. McBroon both 6 years. Also being honored at the banquet is A. P. Cater.

Market Keeps Clean Slate With Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week kept its 1963 record clean and accomplished a net advance for the fifth straight week despite some heavy profit taking.

Brokers said the market had been anticipating President Kennedy's tax cut proposal for some time and, when it came, the news provided an additional spurt to prices but nothing much in the way of new incentive.

Two days after Kennedy proposed a $13.5-billion tax slash to take effect in three annual steps, the market underwent its first sharp correction of the new year. Other declines in 1963 had barely qualified as real drops. Had the market decided to reverse direction, here was a possible impulse—but the next day a vigorous rally wiped out all but a fraction of the previous day's decline.

The rally was accompanied by news of Kennedy's proposal for a record $98.8-billion budget, including $51 billion for military spending, a peacetime record. Some of the bullish sentiment was undoubtedly linked to the President's financial program, but Wall Street was soon made aware by Washington reports that a legislative battle would precede enactment of any alterations in the tax structure or the budget.

Underlying the strength of stocks, enough to overcome long overdue profit taking, was the sentiment, frequently expressed, that the President's program would tend toward inflation, despite his denials.

While the gains in these averages were trifling, advances among individual stocks outnumbered declines by 774 to 529 among the 1,495 issues traded. New highs for 1962-63 totaled 134 and new lows 11.

Also helping sentiment on Wall Street was Soviet Premier Khrushchev's East Berlin speech, regarded as dimming the prospects for any big international crisis which might upset the stock market.

Booming news from the auto industry and prospects that for the first time in more than 10 years Detroit would put two outstanding auto years back-to-back, helped the stock market.

The bond markets traced an irregular pattern. U.S. government issues declined while corporates traded on the New York Stock Exchange inched upward. Corporate volume on the Exchange fell to $25,282,000 par value from $30,887,000 the previous week.

MISSISSIPPI OIL

Greene Wildcat Test Conducted

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Cities Service Petroleum Co., tested oil from a fourth sand Saturday in its Greene County wildcat, the Robinson Land Co. No. 1, sec. 15-4n-8w, located near Sand Hill.

Testing is thought to be from a perforated zone in the Tuscaloosa at 7,900 feet. Production already has been established in three deeper sands, two in the Rodessa at 12,002-16 feet and 11,890-916 feet, and one in the Mooringsport at 11,371-8e feet.

The new discovery was drilled to a total depth of 13,060 feet with seven inch casing set to 12,711 feet.

A new producing horizon has been opened in the Laurel field of Jones County with Central Oil Co.'s unit No. 1-10, sec. 1-8n-12w. The well is testing from a Paluxy sand at 11,248-51 feet at the rate of 192 barrels of 27 gravity oil per day.

Two important wildcat tests drilled in Smith County. I. P. Larue and Victor P. Smith Production Co. were below 9,000 feet in their Duncan No. 1, sec. 5-10n-14w, about two miles north of Taylorsvile. Pacid Oil Co. was below 8,400 feet in its Austin No. 1, sec. 3-10n-16w, about two miles west of Mize.

In the one-well Irene field of Pike County, Campbell and Moore staked location for a northeast offset to the discovery well. The new test is the Lansing No. 1, sec. 6-2n-7e, a scheduled 11,200 try.

In Copiah County, Noble, Dixilyn Corp., Broadhead and Stewart drilled below 8,700 feet in their wildcat, the Henderson No. 1, sec. 31-9n-7e. Contract depth is 10,500 feet.

Two wildcat tests were underway in Pike County. Barton and Attaya drilled below 10,700 feet in their wildcat, the Alford No. 1, sec 13-3n-8e, about six miles east of McComb, and Geo. H. Jett Drilling Co., was below 8,900 feet in its Hamilton No. 1, sec. 12-3n-8e, about in the same general area. Both ventures were scheduled to be drilled to 11,000 feet.

In Pearl River County, Victor P. Smith and LaGrange Petroleum Corp., were below 11,100 feet in their wildcat, the Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-3s-14w, about eight miles southeast of Poplarville.

Also in Pearl River County, Starboard Oil and C. A. Lee Drilling Co. have location cleared for their wildcat, the Batson No. 1, sec. 20-3s-16w.

In the Tinsley field of Yazoo County, Jones-OBrien Inc., finaled their Stevens No. A-3, sec. 13-10n-3w, pumping 86 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 4,305-19 feet.

In the Lazy Creek field of Pike County, Shell Oil Co. completed its Board of Supervisers No. 2-A, sec. 16-4n-8e, flowing 240 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 10,745-56 feet.

At Church Hill in Jefferson County, Tex-Star Oil & Gas Corp. completed its Lisbony No. 6-A, sec 3-8n-2w, pumping 105 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 5,447-81 feet.

T. H. SCOTT of Monroe was re-elected national director of the Deep South Farm Equipment Association at the group's annual convention in New Orleans. The group is composed of farm equipment dealers from throughout Louisiana and the southern half of Mississippi.

Fugitive Flags Wrong Cabbie

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Quick," said the man as he hopped in a cab, "get me out of here; the police are after me."

"Not only are the police after you, they've got you," said the driver, highway patrolman George Sternberger. He was posing as a cabbie to try to halt cab holdups.

Richard Sell, 24, had flagged down the cab, police said, after his car struck a fence while being pursued by a patrol car for running a red light. Sell was charged with driving with a revoked license.

Cotton Price Closings Up During Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices of cotton futures close $1.60 to $5.85 a bale higher this week after several days of fluctuation.

The uncertain prices, in addition to active trading throughout the week, was attributed by observers to uncertainties concerning proposed legislation and the effect it might have on the 1963 crop support program.

Contributing to the indecision was that possibility of sales of Commodity Credit Corporation stocks to domestic users at prices competitive with those paid by foreign buyers.

Aiding in the recovery that followed was scattered support by commission houses, the continuing advance in prices at 15 spot markets and a further tightening of the free supply of cotton due to recent large entries into the government loan stock.

Growers pledged 520,000 bales to the government loan in the week ended Jan. 11, the largest weekly amount this season, it brought the grand total, after allowance for rejection, to 5,591,000 bales.

Withdrawals from the loan through Jan. 11 totaled 499,000 bales, leaving 5,092,000 bales in government hands.

This collateral, plus 4,875,000 bales of 1961 and prior crops owned by the CCC, indicates total government holdings of close to 10 million bales.

Exports for the week ended last Tuesday were the smallest since last November, totaling only 28,000 bales, compared with 109,000 a week earlier and 107,000 in the comparable week last year.

For the current season through Jan. 1st, exports totaled 1,141,000, compared with 2,424,000 to the same date a year ago.

JFK To Name New Diplomats

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy announced his intention Saturday of appointing two new U.S. ambassadors—Carl T. Rowan to Finland and Charles D. Withers to the newly independent African nation of Rwanda.

Rowan, 37 and a Negro, will be the first of his race elevated to a U.S. ambassador in Europe. He is now deputy assistant secretary of state for public affairs.

Rowan, whose appointment was reported unofficially earlier, will succeed Bernard A. Gufler who is being reassigned.

Soybean Futures Show Big Gains

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures ended last week with their broadest net gains in almost two years on the Board of Trade. Every contract except May posted uninterrupted gains.

Advances ran to about nine cents on the January delivery as public speculative participation broadened steadily. At the end of the week, the open interest had climbed 11 million bushels, most of it in the May and July contracts.

The grains also finished the week with substantial advances in corn and rye and moderate gains in wheat and oats. But activity in those pits was limited much more to professional traders on the exchange floor.

HUNGRY For The Truth

FARMS GROW STRANGE THINGS

This industrial site was a rice field on a remote bayou. A member-owned Electric Cooperative brought in magical electric power. Today, the land sprouts a modern industrial complex and many good jobs.

Such is the miracle of rural electrification. This sort of thing happens all the time in cotton fields, on up-state hill farms or under great oaks of the deltas . . . thanks to the vision and investments of home-owned and operated Electric Cooperatives. For years, Electric Cooperatives have been quietly serving areas nobody else cared to serve with low-cost electricity. That pioneer spirit is paying countless dividends for both Town and Country—jobs, profits, industrial development, recreation facilities, more main street business, etc.

Low-cost rural power means progress for everybody. . . both town and country.

Luxury Car Business Is Said On Rise

DETROIT (AP) — If you are planning to spend something more than $5,000 for your new car this year you probably will have to wait longer than usual for delivery.

The super luxury car market is booming and because of limited production facilities, the luxury manufacturers are being pressed a little harder than most.

Cadillac, Lincoln and Imperial — the "high priced three" — are single plant cars. Cadillac's one assembly plant is on the fringe of downtown Detroit. Imperial shares a Detroit Chrysler plant with the Chrysler car and the Dodge 880 while Lincoln shares with Thunderbird one of Ford's newest assembly plants at suburban Wixom.

Cadillac is running its final assembly line on two nine-hour shifts five days a week. General manager Harold Warner says this is the maximum if quality is to be maintained.

Ford President John Dykstra reported this month the Lincoln-Thunderbird plant has been operating at full overtime capacity since the start of the 1963 model year in October.

The Imperial plant also is the sole assembly facility for both Chrysler cars and the big Dodge. It has been running two shifts, five days a week, with considerable Saturday overtime.

Cadillac has announced a multi-million-dollar expansion for its Detroit plant but this will take time.

In the year just ended the combined sales total of these three makes exceeded 200,000, the best since 1957. Cadillac reported a record of 155,457 retail deliveries. Lincoln accounted for 32,168 with Imperial taking the rest.

Warner said that even in this price class the general tendency to buy fancier cars could be detected this past year. He said the de Ville models of the Cadillac now account for the biggest volume. These run from $350 to $400 more than the least expensive models.

When Lincoln changed its product line completely three years ago, it dropped all but two models and concentrated these near the top of the price class. The Lincoln four-door sedan carries a sticker price of $6,270 and the four-door convertible is $6,916. These prices compare with $5,214 for the least expensive Cadillac sedan and $5,243 for the Imperial custom four-door.

Imperial sales, too, have been concentrated in the top price models. The Crown and LeBaron series both more expensive than the custom, account for some 70 per cent of all deliveries.

All three makers build to dealer orders and inventories rarely are extensive.

"In our price class, the big volume always comes near the start of a model year," said Lee Mays, general sales manager for Cadillac. "But this year it was even more than we expected. Our test will be how long the pace continues. Normally the luxury car sales soften in the spring and summer months when the cheaper cars boom."

Johnson Hails Democrat Unity In Peace Quest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats led by Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson brushed aside domestic differences Saturday to hail party unity behind President Kennedy in his quest for world peace.

In a state of solvency they haven't enjoyed in years, Democratic National Committee members heard predictions of a sweeping victory for the Kennedy-Johnson team in 1964 and unanimously pledged support of the President's legislative program.

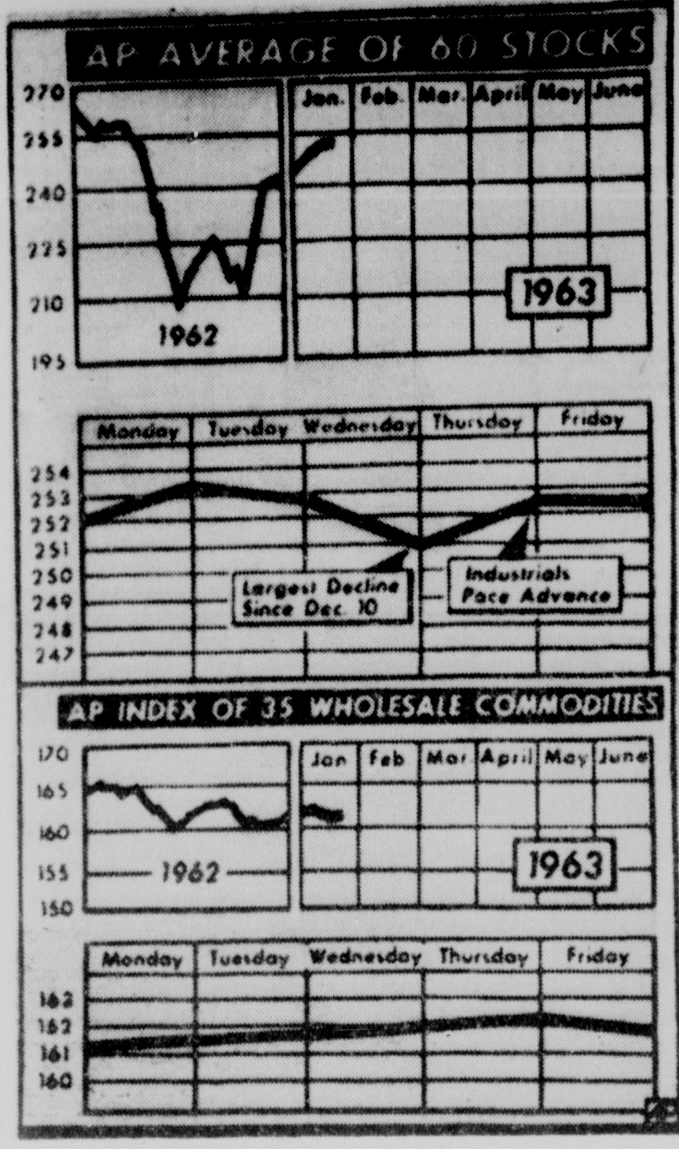
The central theme of a series of speakers at the committee's one-day session was that "Everything's going our way."

This optimism was bolstered by the satisfying report that a $1,000-a-plate dinner and a $100-a-ticket gala Friday night had poured more than $1 million into party coffers. This was enough to take care of $800,000 in debts and leave the committee with pocket change to begin the campaign.

Johnson told a windup luncheon that because of what he called Kennedy's forthright actions in the Cuban crisis "freedom is stronger everywhere in the world."

"We have pulled the fangs of the Cuban rattlesnake and made it clear there were no limits to our determination to defend our security," he told applauding committee members.

"By calling the bluff in Cuba, we made freedom in Berlin and Southeast Asia much surer.



FOR THE FIFTH consecutive week The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved higher, closing Friday at 252.3 from 252.0 a week ago. The commodity index, led by nonferrous metals, advanced this week to 161.9, up from 161.2 last week. (AP Wirephoto)

Depletion Allowance May Make Headlines

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The oil industry's controversial 27½ per cent depletion tax allowance may pop back into national headlines this week.

The allowance figured prominently in the 1960 presidential campaign.

There are widespread but unconfirmed reports President Kennedy plans to ask Congress, possibly on Thursday, to reduce the allowance to State of the Union message promised tax reform proposals but spelled out existing loopholes and special preferences.

Most speculation has indicated he will ask that oil's depletion allowance be cut about 5 per cent.

The reports have not indicated whether both domestic and foreign operations would be affected. During the 1960 campaign, Kennedy called for an overall study to determine if inequities exist but said foreign operations possibly should be treated differently from domestic operations. Vice President Richard Nixon endorsed the full 27½ per cent allowance.

Depletion allowances apply to more than 100 minerals and metals but the maximum 27½ per cent applies only to oil and gas.

Other allowances range from 5 per cent for sand, gravel, and oyster shell to 23 per cent for sulphur and uranium. Speculation about a cut, however, has centered only on the maximum percentage enjoyed by oil and gas.

A recommendation by the President would set off the first full-scale attack on depletion since the statute was passed by Congress in 1926. The statute followed the 1913 enactment of the first income tax law.

The 1913 law recognized a difference between capital and income. It authorized minerals and metals producers an allowance for capital decline caused by production.

Oilmen contend a depletion allowance for each producing lease is not a loophole but a tax provision that is essential if they are to overcome part of their losses from expensive exploration programs that prove to be failures. The domestic industry drilled 8,985 exploratory tests last year but found only 835 oil and 600 gas wells. The remaining 7,550 tests were dry holes.

The allowance applies only to production and does not apply to such operations as transportation, refining, and marketing.

Oilmen also say the 27½ per cent allowance on gross income actually averages out at only 23 per cent in that it cannot exceed 50 per cent of net income.

There have been six unsuccessful attempts since 1958 to cut oil's allowance through amendments submitted on the Senate floor. None proposed a 5 per cent reduction.

The unsuccessful amendments proposed an outright reduction to 15 per cent and graduated reductions down to 15 per cent.

Kennedy, as a senator, voted against an outright cut proposed in 1958 by Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., but voted minutes later for a graduated reduction submitted by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. He voted for a graduated cut again in 1960 when Sen. Paul R. Douglas, D-Ill., resubmitted the proposal.

Oilmen are hopeful other minerals industries will rally to their support if the anticipated full-scale attack develops. They argue that a reduction for oil and gas would open the way for attacks on the allowances enjoyed by other minerals.

Should the all-out attack develop, several influential congressional leaders who championed oil depletion in the past will be missing.

Lyndon B. Johnson led the successful Senate floor defenses in 1958, 1959, and 1960 and then was elected vice president.

Deaths have removed two other powerful figures—House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla.

Market Keeps Clean Slate With Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week kept its 1963 record clean and accomplished a net advance for the fifth straight week despite some heavy profit taking.

Brokers said the market had been anticipating President Kennedy's tax cut proposal for some time and, when it came, the news provided an additional spurt to prices but nothing much in the way of new incentive.

Two days after Kennedy proposed a $13.5-billion tax slash to take effect in three annual steps, the market underwent its first sharp correction of the new year. Other declines in 1963 had barely qualified as real drops. Had the market decided to reverse direction, here was a possible impulse —but the next day a vigorous rally wiped out all but a fraction of the previous day's decline.

The rally was accompanied by news of Kennedy's proposal for a record $98.8-billion budget, including $51 billion for military spending, a peacetime record. Some of the bullish sentiment was undoubtedly linked to the President's financial program, but Wall Street was soon made aware by Washington reports that a legislative battle would precede enactment of any alterations in the tax structure or the budget.

Underlying the strength of stocks, enough to overcome long overdue profit taking, was the sentiment, frequently expressed, that the President's program would tend toward inflation, despite his denials.

While the gains in these averages were trifling, advances among individual stocks outnumbered declines by 774 to 529 among the 1,495 issues traded. New highs for 1962-63 totaled 134 and new lows 11.

Also helping sentiment on Wall Street was Soviet Premier Khrushchev's East Berlin speech, regarded as dimming the prospects for any big international crisis which might upset the stock market.

Booming news from the auto industry and prospects that for the first time in more than 10 years Detroit would put two outstanding auto years back-to-back, helped the stock market.

The bond markets traced an irregular pattern. U.S. government issues declined while corporates traded on the New York Stock Exchange inched upward. Corporate volume on the Exchange fell to $25,282,000 par value from $30,887,000 the previous week.

Soybean Futures Show Big Gains

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures ended last week with their broadest net gains in almost two years on the Board of Trade. Every contract except May posted uninterrupted gains.

Advances ran to about nine cents on the January delivery as public speculative participation broadened steadily. At the end of the week, the open interest had climbed 11 million bushels, most of it in the May and July contracts.

The grains also finished the week with substantial advances in corn and rye and moderate gains in wheat and oats. But activity in those pits was limited much more to professional traders on the exchange floor.

MISSISSIPPI OIL

Greene Wildcat Test Conducted

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Cities Service Petroleum Co., tested oil from a fourth sand Saturday in its Greene County wildcat, the Robinson Land Co. No. 1, sec. 15-4n-8w, located near Sand Hill.

Testing is thought to be from a perforated zone in the Tuscaloosa at 7,900 feet. Production already has been established in three deeper sands, two in the Rodessa at 12,002-16 feet and 11,890-916 feet, and one in the Mooringsport at 11,371-8e feet.

The new discovery was drilled to a total depth of 13,060 feet with seven inch casing set to 12,711 feet.

A new producing horizon has been opened in the Laurel field of Jones County with Central Oil Co.'s unit No. 1-10, sec. 1-8n-12w. The well is testing from a Paluxy sand at 11,248-51 feet at the rate of 192 barrels of 27 gravity oil per day.

Two important wildcat tests drilled in Smith County, I. P. Larue and Victor P. Smith Production Co. were below 9,000 feet in their Duncan No. 1, sec. 5-10n-14w, about two miles north of Taylorsville. Pacid Oil Co. was below 8,400 feet in its Austin No. 1, sec. 3-10n-16w, about two miles west of Mize.

In the one-well Irene field of Pike County, Campbell and Moore staked location for a northeast offset to the discovery well. The new test is the Lansing No. 1, sec. 6-2n-7e, a scheduled 11,200 try.

In Copiah County, Noble, Dixilyn Corp., Broadhead and Stewart drilled below 8,700 feet in their wildcat, the Henderson No. 1, sec. 31-9n-7e. Contract depth is 10,500 feet.

Two wildcat tests were underway in Pike County. Barton and Attaya drilled below 10,700 feet in their wildcat, the Alford No. 1, sec 13-3n-8e, about six miles east of McComb, and Geo. H. Jett Drilling Co., was below 8,900 feet in its Hamilton No. 1, sec. 12-3n-8e, about in the same general area. Both ventures were scheduled to be drilled to 11,000 feet.

In Pearl River County, Victor P. Smith and LaGrange Petroleum Corp., were below 11,100 feet in their wildcat, the Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-3s-14w, about eight miles southeast of Poplarville.

Also in Pearl River County, Starboard Oil and C. A. Lee Drilling Co. have location cleared for their wildcat, the Batson No. 1, sec. 20-3s-16w.

In the Tinsley field of Yazoo County, Jones-OBrien Inc., finaled their Stevens No. A-3, sec. 13-10n-3w, pumping 86 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 4,805-19 feet.

In the Lazy Creek field of Pike County, Shell Oil Co. completed its Board of Supervisors No. 2-A, sec. 16-4n-8e, flowing 240 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 10,745-56 feet.

At Church Hill in Jefferson County, Tex-Star Oil & Gas Corp. completed its Lisbony No. 6-A, sec 3-8n-2w, pumping 105 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 5,447-81 feet.

T. H. SCOTT of Monroe was re-elected national director of the Deep South Farm Equipment Association at the group's annual convention in New Orleans. The group is composed of farm equipment dealers from throughout Louisiana and the southern half of Mississippi.

Fugitive Flags Wrong Cabbie

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Quick," said the man as he hopped in a cab, "get me out of here; the police are after me."

"Not only are the police after you, they've got you," said the driver, highway patrolman George Sternberger. He was posing as a cabbie to try to halt cab holdups.

Richard Sell, 23, had flagged down the cab, police said, after his car struck a fence while being pursued by a patrol car for running a red light. Sell was charged with driving with a revoked license.

Cotton Price Closings Up During Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices of cotton futures close $1.60 to $5.85 a bale higher this week after several days of fluctuation.

The uncertain prices, in addition to active trading throughout the week, was attributed by observers to uncertainties concerning proposed legislation and the effect it might have on the 1963 crop support program.

Contributing to the indecision was that possibility of sales of Commodity Credit Corporation stocks to domestic users at prices competitive with those paid by foreign buyers.

Aiding in the recovery that followed was scattered support by commission houses, the continuing advance in prices at 15 spot markets and a further tightening of the free supply of cotton due to recent large entries into the government loan stock.

Growers pledged 520,000 bales to the government loan in the week ended Jan. 11, the largest weekly amount this season, it brought the grand total, after allowance for rejection, to 5,591,000 bales.

Withdrawals from the loan through Jan. 11 totaled 499,000 bales, leaving 5,092,000 bales in government hands.

This collateral, plus 4,875,000 bales of 1961 and prior crops owned by the CCC, indicates total government holdings of close to 10 million bales.

Exports for the week ended last Tuesday were the smallest since last November, totaling only 28,000 bales, compared with 109,000 a week earlier and 107,000 in the comparable week last year.

For the current season through Jan. 1st, exports totaled 1,141,000, compared with 2,424,000 to the same date a year ago.

JFK To Name New Diplomats

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy announced his intention Saturday of appointing two new U.S. ambassadors—Carl T. Rowan to Finland and Charles D. Withers to the newly independent African nation of Rwanda.

Rowan, 37 and a Negro, will be the first of his race elevated to a U.S. ambassador in Europe. He is now deputy assistant secretary of state for public affairs.

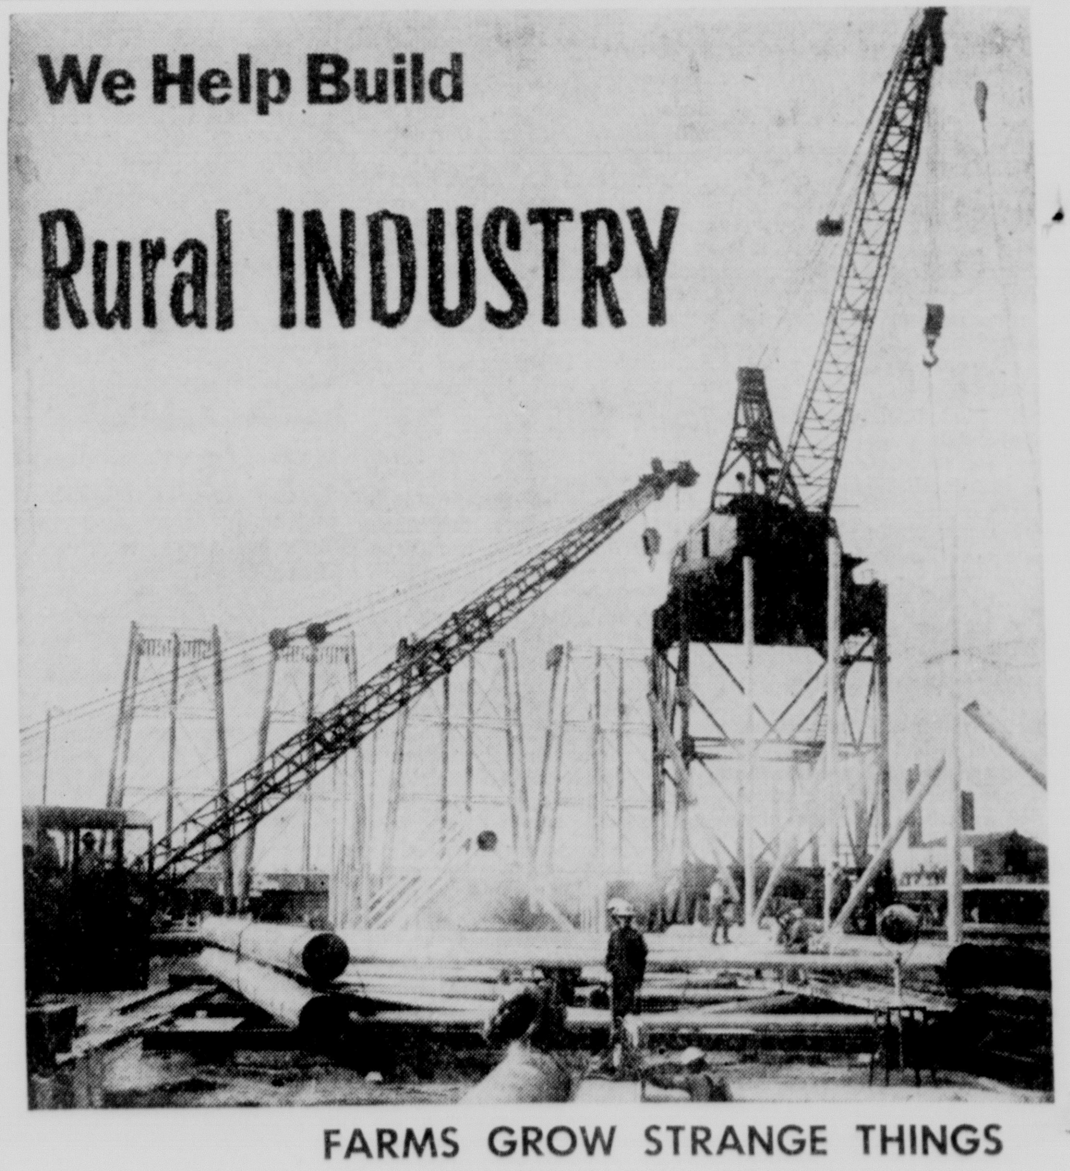
Rowan, whose appointment was reported unofficially earlier, will succeed Bernard A. Gufler who is being reassigned.



FARMS GROW STRANGE THINGS

This industrial site was a rice field on a remote bayou. A member-owned Electric Cooperative brought in magical electric power. Today, the land sprouts a modern industrial complex and many good jobs.

Such is the miracle of rural electrification. This sort of thing happens all the time in cotton fields, on up-state hill farms or under great oaks of the deltas . . . thanks to the vision and investments of home-owned and operated Electric Cooperatives. For years, Electric Cooperatives have been quietly serving areas nobody else cared to serve with low-cost electricity. That pioneer spirit is paying countless dividends for both Town and Country—jobs, profits, industrial development, recreation facilities, more main street business, etc.

Low-cost rural power means progress for everybody. . . both town and country.

AAU-NCAA

Groups Finally Get Settlement

NEW YORK (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced settlement Saturday night of the long and bitter AAU-NCAA power struggle in track and field, and the two groups immediately announced they were lifting the suspensions of athletes and the boycotts of meets.

They also said in a statement they believed the settlement would assure the United States of the "greatest Olympic team in history."

The suspensions and boycotts will be lifted as soon as "the authorities can be notified and take the necessary action," the two groups said in a statement.

Most colleges had been refusing to allow their athletes to compete in the big AAU-sanctioned indoor meets, and the AAU had ruled some other collegians ineligible.

The announcement of the settlement came after two days of hard bargaining between the two warring groups, including a marathon nine-hour session Saturday that began at 11 a.m., and went on to 8 p.m. without a break.

Old Soldier MacArthur acted as arbitrator at the direction of President Kennedy, who had feared the power struggle would ruin the U.S. Olympic team.

Under the agreement MacArthur will remain as the man who will settle disputes that arise, at least until the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo.

The settlement was based on a four-point plan offered by the general at the start of the negotiations Friday.

The points are:

1. An immediate amnesty for all athletes who have been disqualified by either group in the dispute.
2. A lifting of the ban on use of athletic facilities by either group.
3. A board be formed of three AAU and three NCAA representatives of the NCAA-backed U.S. Track and Field Federation to pass on eligibility for the 1964 Olympic team, with any disagreement passed to MacArthur as final arbitrator.
4. A recommendation to the President that he call an athletic congress after the 1964 Olympics of leading men in all sports organizations to work out a plan under which all groups would pool their resources for a united effort in sports.

The AAU feared that the last two points might cut down on their authority. The 75-year-old organization has been the sole sanctioning agent in this country for the International Track and Field Federation, governing body of this sport throughout the world, for one-half century.

The third point in the settlement gives the colleges equal voice in passing on the eligibility of athletes for international competition.

The sports congress called for in the fourth point could lead to increased power for the colleges and other groups in fields where the AAU has long held sway.

In the settlement, MacArthur set himself up as a watch dog of the sports peace until the 1964 Olympics. He agreed to settle any disputes that arise under the agreement until then.

After that, it was possible the war might break out again with the AAU battling to keep its international authority out of the hands of the collegians.

Both sides had to give a little although it appeared on the surface the AAU had surrendered a little more.

The 82-year-old general reportedly did some head-knocking in the closed door sessions to bring the bitter rivals in line. He held the delegates in session from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m., without lunch, and then called them back together at 5 p.m. and worked them until 8 p.m., when agreement was finally reached.

"He let them get hungry," one observer said, "and showed them he really meant business.

Tribe's Game With McNeese Is Postponed

LAKE CHARLES (Special) — Northeast State's Saturday night basketball contest against Gulf States Conference foe McNeese was postponed due to power failure in Lake Charles.

Heavy rains hit Lake Charles Saturday and much of the McNeese campus was under water. No lights were available due to the power failure and the game had to be postponed.

The GSC tilt will be played January 30 or February 1.

The Northeast squad, which traveled to Lake Charles early Saturday, was expected to return to Monroe Saturday night or Sunday morning.

Navy Manages To Get Victory

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Navy was hot, cold and then tepid Saturday but managed to take a 78-69 basketball victory from Hofstra.

Kentucky Loses Again; Vols Do Trick By 78-69

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Tennessee's upset-minded Volunteers all but knocked Kentucky out of the Southeastern Conference basketball race Saturday with a surprising 78-69 overtime victory.

The regulation game ended 63-63, but Tennessee scored nine straight points in the first 3½ minutes of the overtime while holding Kentucky scoreless to take a 72-63 lead.

Kentucky trimmed the lead to 76-69 with 25 seconds to play, but the Wildcats couldn't closer.

Tennessee, down 33-20 at halftime, stormed back after intermission to tie it at 57-57 with 6 minutes 25 seconds left when Tommy Wilson hit a field goal. The contest was nip-and-tuck for the next five minutes, Tennessee taking the ball and playing for the last shot with 1:46 to go.

Jerry Parker led Tennessee with 18 points. The Vols had three others in double figures, Wilson with 16, A. W. Davis with 14 and Bob Hogsett with 13.

Nash led Kentucky with 19 points, and Ted Deeken added 181.

Jim Taylor Says He Is Doing Fine

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — "I'm doing all right," fullback Jim Taylor of the National Football League champion Green Bay Packers said Saturday after a week in a local hospital.

Taylor is undergoing tests for a liver infection. The tests won't be complete until Tuesday. He referred further questions to his physician.

Dr. Bruce Baer said he still had no reason to rule out hepatitis as the ailment which caused Taylor to start losing weight.

Dr. Baer said liver function tests showed Taylor was making very satisfactory improvement.

The 26-year-old Taylor was The Associated Press NFL player of the year. He flew home for treatment after a Burbank, Calif., physician said he had hepatitis.

Maury Wills Voted California's Best

The Los Angeles Dodgers' Maury Wills, who has won almost as many honors as he stole bases last season, was voted California's Athlete of the Year for 1962 Saturday in the fifth annual poll conducted by The Associated Press.

Sports writers and sportscasters from AP member newspapers and radio and television, one from each facility—voted Wills in by more than 2-1 for the first place votes.

The runner-up was Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants who, got just one point more than the third place finisher, diminutive Jim Beatty, America's great mile runner who now calls Los Angeles home.

According to Jack Young, Optimist Club president, plans for the celebration were started back in October, before widespread national acclaim was heaped on Stovall.

Since that time the former West Monroe High gridder was named to the AP, UPI, Coaches Association and Look magazine All-America teams.

He was a unanimous All-Southeastern Conference selection, runner-up in the closet balloting in history for the Heisman Trophy, and was picked the Ark-La-Tex college athelte of the year, in addition to being selected back of the year by the Washington (D.C.) Touchdown Club.

The mushrooming list of tributes made it imperative the day be held and each new one added to its significance.

Throughout most of Saturday's busy round of events the quiet-spoken Stovall was accompanied by his pretty wife, the former Judy Kay Ward of Alexandria, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Stovall.

In the parade with him and his teammates, were a number of local high school and junior high bands and several floats.

Several of the other Tigers had expressed interest in attending the celebration, but were unable to come because of exams.

LSU Head Coach Charlie McClendon arrived in time for the banquet. He had intended to fly up from Baton Rouge earlier, but weather conditions forced him to change his plans and come by car.

BANQUET SPEAKER

Louisiana State was also represented by Dr. John Hunter, the school's president. Dr. Hunter was principal speaker at the banquet attended by more than 300 people.

Stovall told his audience it was a day he would always remember. He also thanked his teammates and the members of the LSU coaching staff for making the last four years the happiest and most successful of his life.

The crowd, which almost completely filled the dining room at the Paragon Club, gave Stovall a standing ovation when he was introduced.

Presentation of the car was made by Dr. Lake C. Oxford, chairman of the Optimist Club committee for Jerry Stovall Day. A section in the wall was opened and the car wheeled into the room in front of the speakers stand.

Jerry watched for a second with a look of surprise on his face, then grabbed the speakers microphone and said, "Please, don't scratch that fender."

Stovall said he thanked everyone from the bottom of his heart, then added that he "just hoped somebody would back it out" for him. Stovall did not have a car previously.

Dr. Hunter began his talk, saying he had just learned how important Jerry really was to the area. He related overhearing two boys talking about him. One asked the other, who is that John Hunter. Hunter said. "The other thought for a minute, then he said, I think he is president at that school where Jerry Stovall plays."

Hunter called Stovall an individual with that rare quality of true leadership that is needed to shoulder the responsibilities of the future. He said Stovall was an example of what could be accomplished on the gridiron and off it.

State Representative Lawrence Gibbs, who was master of ceremonies, related the first time he met Jerry. "He was a spotter at a West Monroe football game. He told me that next year he was going to play football."

"I looked at him," Gibbs went on. "There he was, a skinny kid with horn - rimmed glasses and a broken arm, and I said to myself, "son, I doubt you'll ever play football.' "

Howard Barker, former West Monroe football coach, related presenting Jerry with his first trophy. It was after Jerry won the West Monroe marble championship. He was 10-years-old.

"He isn't built like an athlete," Barker said, "and in my opinion he isn't a great natural athlete. Jerry Stovall, made himself what he is today," Barker said.

Cecil Pirkey, present Rebel grid mentor, told Coach McClendon, "You have an experience coming that I've already had. You're going to have to learn to get along without Jerry Stovall."

"Jerry came to me," Pirkey continued, "and said he had a chance to go to LSU but he wasn't sure he could play their brand of football. I told him," Pirkey said, "that if I had ever coached a boy with the ability to play major college football, he was it."

Jerry was also presented the Walter Camp medal, symbolic of the Coaches' Association All-America team.

Before the banquet, both Jerry and "Coach Mac" were surrounded by a swarm of autograph seeking small fry. It probably exemplified Jerry Stovall Day as good as anything else that happened.

Eidson, Scharf Carry Jackets To Win, 70-55

ATLANTA (AP) — Phil Eidson and Ron Scharf, just promoted to the starting line-up, led nationally ranked Georgia Tech to a 70-55 basketball triumph over Florida State Saturday night.

Eidson scored 14 points and sophomore Scharf 12 to lead seventh-ranked Tech to its 12th victory in 13 games. Eidson, a junior, and Scharf won first-string berths for their work last Monday when Tech bowed 81-69 to Mississippi State in its only setback of the season.

FSU's Charlie Long paced a furious comeback by the Seminoles in the closing minutes and grabbed scoring honors with 17 points. Florida State outscored Tech 21-9 during the final 8 minutes after the Yellow Jackets had taken a commanding 61-34 lead on two consecutive baskets by Eidson midway of the second half.

Tech, much stronger on the backboards than Florida State, dominated the rebounding 52-37. The Yellow Jackets took 72 shots to only 58 for FSU.

Royals Get Win Over NY Knicks

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Royals leaped off to an early lead Saturday night and won, 114-108 despite repeated rallies by the New York Knickerbockers in a National Basketball Association game.

The score was tied for the last time at 2-all, but the Knicks got within one point of the Royals several times throughout the game before a season - high attendance of 10,011.

The Knicks' last chance came with 1 minute, 6 seconds left, but the Royals outscored the New Yorkers, 4-2 to take the victory.

The game's last minutes were married by three players fouling out—Wayne Embry and Hub Reed of the Royals and Richie Guerin of the Knicks.

Orioles Get Brown

BALTIMORE, (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles announced Saturday that catcher Dick Brown, acquired in an off-season trade with the Detroit Tigers, has signed his 1963 contract.

Demons Nudge Tech 82-80 In Overtime GSC Thriller

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — Freshmen Kenny Arthur's driving layup with three seconds remaining gave Northwestern State an 82-80 overtime Gulf States Conference win over rival Louisiana Tech here Saturday night.

The Demons led 36-33 at halftime, but Tech came back in the second period to lead by as much as four points.

Trailing 69-65 with three and a half minutes left, Northwestern tied it up on a field goal by James Hardin, three-point play by Sam Watts and Tommy Mathis' fielder in the final 41 seconds.

Mathis was fouled but missed the free throw and the contest went into overtime.

Tech took an early lead in the overtime period, but again the NSC quintet came back. The Bulldogs lost Ray Penny, Ron McNabb and Donnie Allen in the closing moments of the game. Northwestern lost its top scorer Mathis with two and a quarter minutes left in the overtime period.

Ledet made good on a free throw to give the Demons an 80-78 lead.

Mathis, with 23 points, was the top scorer of the evening. Sophomore Watts, playing his best game, poured in 21 and Kenny Arthur had 10.

For the Bulldogs five players hit in double figures. Joe Abdendroth had 18, Miller 17, Penny 15, Jerry Hood 14 and McNabb 13.

It was Northwestern's first GSC win and give the Demons a 1 - 3 league record. Tech dropped to 1-4. For the season Northwestern is 4-9 and Tech 7-7.

The score was tied six times in the first half, 11 in the second and three in the overtime — a total of 20 times.

Bill Cunningham Gets Tar Heels Cage Win, 86-81

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) —Bill Cunningham crammed 23 of his 33 points into the last half Saturday and led North Carolina to a come-from-behind 86-81 basketball victory over Virginia.

The Tar Heels, heavily favored, trailed by six points at intermission and were down by eight, 44-36, when Cunningham and Yogi Poteet began leading the comeback charge.

The score was tied seven times and the lead changed hands nine times before a Cunningham layup with 8 minutes 15 seconds remaining in the game finally put the Tar Heels in front to stay at 67-65.

Bryan McSweeney's goal upped the Carolina lead to four moments later and after that the Cavaliers never got within immediate striking distance in the regionally televised Atlantic Coast Conference game.

Poteet had 20 points and McSweeney added 11 for North Carolina, which scored its fifth ACC victory in six outings. Virginia, now 1-6 in the conference, got 25 points from Gene Engel, 18 from Chip Conner, and 13 from Kenny Goble, who was playing in his first varsity game.

Tide, Baskin In Meet Victories

Baskin's 45-44 victory was sparked by Mary Jarrette's 20 points. Yvonne Many had 32 for the losing Grayson team.

In boys action Wisner raced by Baskin, 50-27, and Columbia won over Holly Ridge, 56-46.

JERRY STOVALL, the great Louisiana State University All-American who is from West Monroe, returned to the Twin Cities Saturday to participate in a series of events in his honor, including a parade and banquet. AAU-NCAA

Groups Finally Get Settlement

NEW YORK (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced settlement Saturday night of the long and bitter AAU-NCAA power struggle in track and field, and the two groups immediately announced they were lifting the suspensions of athletes and the boycotts of meets.

They also said in a statement they believed the settlement would assure the United States of the "greatest Olympic team in history."

The suspensions and boycotts will be lifted as soon as "the authorities can be notified and take the necessary action," the two groups said in a statement.

Most colleges had been refusing to allow their athletes to compete in the big AAU-sanctioned indoor meets, and the AAU had ruled some other collegians ineligible.

The announcement of the settlement came after two days of hard bargaining between the two warring groups, including a marathon nine-hour session Saturday that began at 11 a.m., and went on to 8 p.m. without a break.

Old Soldier MacArthur acted as arbitrator at the direction of President Kennedy, who had feared the power struggle would ruin the U.S. Olympic team.

Under the agreement MacArthur will remain as the man who will settle disputes that arise, at least until the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo.

The settlement was based on a four-point plan offered by the general at the start of the negotiations Friday.

The points are:

1. An immediate amnesty for all athletes who have been disqualified by either group in the dispute.
2. A lifting of the ban on use of athletic facilities by either group.
3. A board be formed of three AAU and three NCAA representatives of the NCAA-backed U.S. Track and Field Federation to pass on eligibility for the 1964 Olympic team, with any disagreement passed to MacArthur as final arbitrator.
4. A recommendation to the President that he call an athletic congress after the 1964 Olympics of leading men in all sports organizations to work out a plan under which all groups would pool their resources for a united effort in sports.

The AAU feared that the last two points might cut down on their authority. The 75-year-old organization has been the sole sanctioning agent in this country for the International Track and Field Federation, governing body of this sport throughout the world, for one-half century.

The third point in the settlement gives the colleges equal voice in passing on the eligibility of athletes for international competition.

The sports congress called for in the fourth point could lead to increased power for the colleges and other groups in fields where the AAU has long held sway.

In the settlement, MacArthur set himself up as a watch dog of the sports peace until the 1964 Olympics. He agreed to settle any disputes that arise under the agreement until then.

After that, it was possible the war might break out again with the AAU battling to keep its international authority out of the hands of the collegians.

Both sides had to give a little although it appeared on the surface the AAU had surrendered a little more.

The 82-year-old general reportedly did some head-knocking in the closed door sessions to bring the bitter rivals in line. He held the delegates in session from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m., without lunch, and then called them back together at 5 p.m. and worked them until 8 p.m., when agreement was finally reached.

"He let them get hungry," one observer said, "and showed them he really meant business.

Hunter said, "The other thought for a minute, then he said, I think he is president at that school where Jerry Stovall plays."

Hunter called Stovall an individual with that rare quality of true leadership that is needed to shoulder the responsibilities of the future. He said Stovall was an example of what could be accomplished on the gridiron and off it.

State Representative Lawrence Gibbs, who was master of ceremonies, related the first time he met Jerry. "He was a spotter at a West Monroe football game. He told me that next year he was going to play football."

"I looked at him," Gibbs went on. "There he was, a skinny kid with horn - rimmed glasses and a broken arm, and I said to myself, "son, I doubt you'll ever play football.' "

Howard Barker, former West Monroe football coach, related presenting Jerry with his first trophy. It was after Jerry won the West Monroe marble championship. He was 10-years-old.

"He isn't built like an athlete," Barker said, "and in my opinion he isn't a great natural athlete. Jerry Stovall, made himself what he is today," Barker said.

Cecil Pirkey, present Rebel grid mentor, told Coach McClendon, "You have an experience coming that I've already had. You're going to have to learn to get along without Jerry Stovall."

"Jerry came to me," Pirkey continued, "and said he had a chance to go to LSU but he wasn't sure he could play their brand of football. I told him," Pirkey said, "that if I had ever coached a boy with the ability to play major college football, he was it."

Jerry was also presented the Walter Camp medal, symbolic of the Coaches' Association All-America team.

Before the banquet, both Jerry and "Coach Mac" were surrounded by a swarm of autograph seeking small fry. It probably exemplified Jerry Stovall Day as good as anything else that happened.

Kentucky Loses Again; Vols Do Trick By 78-69

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Tennessee's upset-minded Volunteers all but knocked Kentucky out of the Southeastern Conference basketball race Saturday with a surprising 78-69 overtime victory.

The regulation game ended 63-63, but Tennessee scored nine straight points in the first 3½ minutes of the overtime while holding Kentucky scoreless to take a 72-63 lead.

Kentucky trimmed the lead to 76-69 with 25 seconds to play, but the Wildcats couldn't closer.

Tennessee, down 33-20 at halftime, stormed back after intermission to tie it at 57-57 with 6 minutes 25 seconds left when Tommy Wilson hit a field goal. The contest was nip-and-tuck for the next five minutes, Tennessee taking the ball and playing for the last shot with 1:46 to go.

Jerry Parker led Tennessee with 18 points. The Vols had three others in double figures, Wilson with 16, A. W. Davis with 14 and Bob Hogsett with 13.

Nash led Kentucky with 19 points, and Ted Deeken added 181.

Tribe's Game With McNeese Is Postponed

LAKE CHARLES (Special) — Northeast State's Saturday night basketball contest against Gulf States Conference foe McNeese was postponed due to power failure in Lake Charles.

Heavy rains hit Lake Charles Saturday and much of the McNeese campus was under water. No lights were available due to the power failure and the game had to be postponed.

The GSC tilt will be played January 30 or February 1.

The Northeast squad, which traveled to Lake Charles early Saturday, was expected to return to Monroe Saturday night or Sunday morning.

Navy Manages To Get Victory

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Navy was hot, cold and then tepid Saturday but managed to take a 78-69 basketball victory from Hofstra.

Jim Taylor Says He Is Doing Fine

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — "I'm doing all right," fullback Jim Taylor of the National Football League champion Green Bay Packers said Saturday after a week in a local hospital.

Taylor is undergoing tests for a liver infection. The tests won't be complete until Tuesday. He referred further questions to his physician.

Dr. Bruce Baer said he still had no reason to rule out hepatitis as the ailment which caused Taylor to start losing weight.

Dr. Baer said liver function tests showed Taylor was making very satisfactory improvement.

The 26-year-old Taylor was The Associated Press NFL player of the year. He flew home for treatment after a Burbank, Calif., physician said he had hepatitis.

Maury Wills Voted California's Best

The Los Angeles Dodgers' Maury Wills, who has won almost as many honors as he stole bases last season, was voted California's Athlete of the Year for 1962 Saturday in the fifth annual poll conducted by The Associated Press.

Sports writers and sportscasters from AP member newspapers and radio and television, one from each facility—voted Wills in by more than 2-1 for the first place votes.

The runner-up was Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants who, got just one point more than the third place finisher, diminutive Jim Beatty, America's great mile runner who now calls Los Angeles home.

Eidson, Scharf Carry Jackets To Win, 70-55

ATLANTA (AP) — Phil Eidson and Ron Scharf, just promoted to the starting line-up, led nationally ranked Georgia Tech to a 70-55 basketball triumph over Florida State Saturday night.

Eidson scored 14 points and sophomore Scharf 12 to lead seventh-ranked Tech to its 12th victory in 13 games. Eidson, a junior, and Scharf won first-string berths for their work last Monday when Tech bowed 81-69 to Mississippi State in its only setback of the season.

FSU's Charlie Long paced a furious comeback by the Seminoles in the closing minutes and grabbed scoring honors with 17 points. Florida State outscored Tech 21-9 during the final 8 minutes after the Yellow Jackets had taken a commanding 61-34 lead on two consecutive baskets by Eidson midway of the second half.

Tech, much stronger on the backboards than Florida State, dominated the rebounding 52-37. The Yellow Jackets took 72 shots to only 58 for FSU.

Royals Get Win Over NY Knicks

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Royals leaped off to an early lead Saturday night and won, 114-108 despite repeated rallies by the New York Knickerbockers in a National Basketball Association game.

The score was tied for the last time at 2-all, but the Knicks got within one point of the Royals several times throughout the game before a season - high attendance of 10,011.

The Knicks' last chance came with 1 minute, 6 seconds left, but the Royals outscored the New Yorkers, 4-2 to take the victory.

The game's last minutes were married by three players fouling out—Wayne Embry and Hub Reed of the Royals and Richie Guerin of the Knicks.

Orioles Get Brown

BALTIMORE, (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles announced Saturday that catcher Dick Brown, acquired in an off-season trade with the Detroit Tigers, has signed his 1963 contract.

Demons Nudge Tech 82-80 In Overtime GSC Thriller

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — Freshmen Kenny Arthur's driving layup with three seconds remaining gave Northwestern State an 82-80 overtime Gulf States Conference win over rival Louisiana Tech here Saturday night.

The Demons led 36-33 at halftime, but Tech came back in the second period to lead by as much as four points.

Trailing 69-65 with three and a half minutes left, Northwestern tied it up on a field goal by James Hardin, three-point play by Sam Watts and Tommy Mathis' fielder in the final 41 seconds.

Mathis was fouled but missed the free throw and the contest went into overtime.

Tech took an early lead in the overtime period, but again the NSC quintet came back. The Bulldogs lost Ray Penny, Ron McNabb and Donnie Allen in the closing moments of the game. Northwestern lost its top scorer Mathis with two and a quarter minutes left in the overtime period.

Ledet made good on a free throw to give the Demons an 80-78 lead.

Mathis, with 23 points, was the top scorer of the evening. Sophomore Watts, playing his best game, poured in 21 and Kenny Arthur had 10.

For the Bulldogs five players hit in double figures. Joe Abdendroth had 18, Miller 17, Penny 15, Jerry Hood 14 and McNabb 13.

It was Northwestern's first GSC win and give the Demons a 1 - 3 league record. Tech dropped to 1-4. For the season Northwestern is 4-9 and Tech 7-7.

The score was tied six times in the first half, 11 in the second and three in the overtime — a total of 20 times.

Bill Cunningham Gets Tar Heels Cage Win, 86-81

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) —Bill Cunningham crammed 23 of his 33 points into the last half Saturday and led North Carolina to a come-from-behind 86-81 basketball victory over Virginia.

The Tar Heels, heavily favored, trailed by six points at intermission and were down by eight, 44-36, when Cunningham and Yogi Poteet began leading the comeback charge.

The score was tied seven times and the lead changed hands nine times before a Cunningham layup with 8 minutes 15 seconds remaining in the game finally put the Tar Heels in front to stay at 67-65.

Bryan McSweeney's goal upped the Carolina lead to four moments later and after that the Cavaliers never got within immediate striking distance in the regionally televised Atlantic Coast Conference game.

Poteet had 20 points and McSweeney added 11 for North Carolina, which scored its fifth ACC victory in six outings. Virginia, now 1-6 in the conference, got 25 points from Gene Engel, 18 from Chip Conner, and 13 from Kenny Goble, who was playing in his first varsity game.

Tide, Baskin In Meet Victories

Baskin's 45-44 victory was sparked by Mary Jarrette's 20 points. Yvonne Many had 32 for the losing Grayson team.

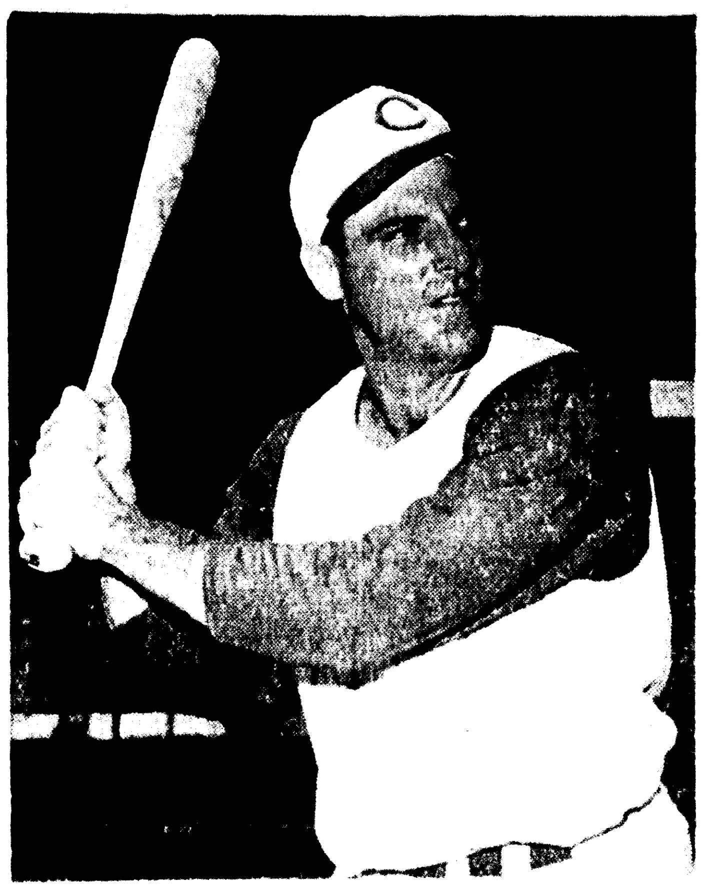
CINCINNATI SLUGGER

Freese To Participate In Coming Boys Clinic



GENE FREESE, the third baseman who hit 26 homers to help lead Cincinnati to the 1961 National League pennant, will be one of the instructors at the Optimist Club Boys Baseball Clinic Feb 2-3 at Benoit Recreation Center. Freese played in only 18 games last season because of a broken leg suffered in spring training.

Gene Freese, the slugging third baseman who helped spark the Cincinnati Reds to the National League pennant in 1961, will be one of the instructors at the Optimist Club Boys Baseball Clinic in Monroe Feb. 2-3.

After hitting 26 homers, driving in 87 runs and batting .277 with the Reds in 1961, Freese broke a leg during spring training in 1962 and missed most of the season. His absence was considered the primary reason the Reds failed to repeat as league champions.

The Feb. 2-3 clinic is open to all boys free of charge. Clinic officials this week announced two changes in the clinic schedule. The clinic will be held at Benoit Recreation Center at 1700 Oaklawn Drive instead of Legion Stadium and an instruction session is set at 10:30 a.m. Feb. 2 for boys of all ages instead of a session for young boys at that time and another for older boys that afternoon.

The Benoit Recreation Center has two baseball fields and boys age 8 to 13 will receive instruction on one of them at 10:30 Feb. 2 and boys 14-18 will receive instruction at the same time on the other field. Another instruction session is set Sunday afternoon, Feb. 3, at 1:30.

Freese is the third major leaguer to agree to instruct at the Optimist Clinic. Previously Wayne Causey of the Kansas City Athletics and Billy Muffett, who has pitched with the Red Sox, Giants and Cardinals and is now with the Yankee organization had been announced as clinic instructors.

A native of Wheeling, West Virginia who now lives in New Orleans, Freese was a minor league standout with the old New Orleans Pelicans of the Southern Association before going up to the majors. He played with the Phillies and White Sox before being traded to the Reds in 1961.

Freese's power hitting with the White Sox and Reds established him as one of the top third basemen in baseball. The 1961 campaign was one of his best.

He beat the Phillies [illegible] May [illegible] with a three - run homer and hit two home runs May 31, one in the eighth as the Reds edged the Dodgers, 8-7. He batted in six runs on a homer and two singles as the Reds swept a Sunday doubleheader from the Cardinals June 11 and one week later collected seven hits as Cincy swept a pair from Philadelphia.

Freese's homer decided a 2-0 victory over the Pirates July 4th and three days later he blasted a two - run roundtripper and two singles in a victory over Los Angeles. The Dodgers were one of Freese's favorite victims in 1961 and Aug. 16 he hit two homers in a 8-0 victory over the West Coast club and smacked a three - run homer against them Aug. 27. His final big day of 1961 came against the Pirates Sept. 19 when he batted in four runs with two homers.

After breaking his leg during spring training in 1962, Freese did not rejoin the Reds until Aug. 19. He hit two singles in his first start Aug. 20 but was able to play in only 18 games that season.

His leg now apparently in perfect shape, Freese is expected to take back over his third base spot with the Reds this spring.

FOR BASEBALL FANS

Amateur League To Replace Loss

[illegible] the American [illegible] fall program [illegible] this year [illegible] [illegible] the loss.

The American Legion Amateur League which was created recently will field eight clubs, all from Ouachita Parish and will furnish baseball fans with a higher brand of ball. The age of these players will be from 18 and up.

The American Legion, through its Stadium Committee, will provide the necessary funds for putting the stadium back in good shape. A new score board will have to be erected. All fences will have to be repainted. The grandstand and bleachers will also need repainting. The lighting system will need going over and put back in first class shape. The playing field will [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] amateur [illegible].

All participating teams will [illegible] uniforms and the [illegible] equipment will be furnished by local sponsors and [illegible]. More Ouachita Parish firms will contribute to bring baseball back here. All games will be played at Legion Stadium four nights each week.

The new league has selected officers who are ready and willing to go all out and help this form of recreation that is a great help towards combating juvenile delinquency.

Buddy Blair, with years of experience in playing and managing professional baseball has been a splendid choice for President. Don Lomax, former president of the Delta League for many years, will make an able assistant and will hold down the office of vice president. He will assist in handling the managers and all league affairs relative to rules and regulations.

R. D. Farr Jr., who handled the American Legion Junior baseball program for many years in the past will lend his assistance towards the good of the organization. One of the teams under his control developed and provided four big league players. Little Red Swanson, pitcher, was signed by the Pittsburgh Pirates. Bill Hardy, shortstop was signed by the Boston Red Sox. Fred Frickie, first baseman, was signed by the Cleveland Indians. Wayne Causey, third baseman, was signed by the Baltimore Orioles.

Saul Adler, general manager, will assist in the over all picture and look after the financing of the league. As president of Monroe Little League and a board of directors of 21 civic minded citizens, he has the support of that organization.

All Little League members, City Recreation Department and city officials have expressed their support toward this movement and feel that it will get the support of the Twin Cities as there are many baseball fans still interested.

The officers of the league expect to make a drive for funds through sponsors and co-sponsors and it is hoped that the public will respond and will support this movement to bring Baseball back to the Twin Cities. Any firm or individual desiring to contribute towards the success of this project may contact either Buddy Blair or Saul Adler.

ON SUNNY DAY

Nightmare Greets Palmer, Nicklaus

Each tired a crisp 1-under-par 35 for the first nine in Saturday's round of the $50,000 Bing Crosby tournament and rare, warming winter weather on the often cold, wind-swept course seemed ready to help them toward leading scores.

So what happened? Nicklaus came home in 41 and Palmer went him one worse at 42 in a pair of half-rounds that could give hope to the worst hackers in the nation.

Nicklaus was consistent in his trip down the 3,525-yard back nine — he bogeyed five consecutive holes. Palmer got a birdie on the 11th to go two under par and then went an incredible seven over [illegible] for the last seven holes.

Missed the green, chipped 10 feet short and two-putted the 386-yard 11th.

Plunked a 3-iron drive into a hole behind the 205-yard 12th and two-putted after his chip.

Three-putted from 20 feet on the 400-yard ninth.

Missed the green and two putted the 555-yard 14th when wind carried his second shot off line and his third rolled over the green.

Dropped a short 9-iron into a trap at the 406-yard 15th and two-putted.

Palmer's fortunes were more bizarre as he:

Drove short into a soft sand trap in front of the 12th and two-putted for a bogey after recovering long.

Double-bogeyed the 13th with a drive into an off-fairway trap, a shanked 3-iron shot from the trap, a short-of-green pitch from a road and two putts after he finally made the green.

Smashed a 2-iron tee shot on the 218-yard 17th that hit the green, then bounced over a rise, down a hill and into a tidepool on a large flat rock at the ocean's edge. Deciding the lie was unplayable, Palmer palyed an off green provisional tee shot that he hit with a 3-iron, and dropped a 7-foot putt for a double bogey 5.

Palmer refused to blame club choice for any of his fairway problems, though after several errant shots he huddled at length with his caddie who gestured frequently and shook his head in apparent disagreement.

"I should have shot 69 to 70 under these conditions," said Nicklaus, who won the National Amateur title over this same demanding course in 1961.

Ouachita Meet Is Concluded

In second and third in the girls bracket was Woodlawn and Swartz. For the boys second went to Bastrop and third to Ouachita.

The boys all-star team had Hemphill of Fiske Union, Higginbotton from Bastrop, Pardue of Ouachita, Calloway of Logtown, and Walters from Fiske Union.

Jonesboro Wins Over Cooper 5

JONESBORO (Special) — Jonesboro's powerful Tigers upped their season mark to 20-5 Saturday night by downing Cooper High of Vicksburg, 82-60.

Weston 5 Wins Calvin Tourney

CALVIN (Special) — Weston High tipped past Sikes 64-67 to win the Calvin basketball tournament here Saturday. Mark Culpepper scored 22 points to pace the win. Connie Rolen had 16 for the losers.

In the girls finals, Winnfield raced past Weston 60-38, led by the 29 point scoring of Diane Maxie. Ann Hurst scored 32 for Weston.

Emerson In Win

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Roy Emerson defeated Ken Fletcher 6-3, 6-3, 6-1 Saturday for the Australian tennis championship and immediately said he would try to duplicate last year's success of Rod Laver in taking the net titles of Australia, Wimbledon, United States and France.

AT CROSBY'S TOURNEY

Bob Duden Surprises All, Grabs Meet Lead

By JACK STEVENSON

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)— Unheralded Bob Duden of Portland, Ore., surprised everyone by firing a 5-under-par 67 at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club Saturday to slip into the third round lead of Bing Crosby's $50,000 golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 210.

Duden, a 42-year-old pro who never has won a PGA co-sponsor tournament and generally plays only those on the West Coast, birdied five of the last six holes.

Deadlocked in second place at 211 were Billy Casper with a 73 at Pebble Beach Saturday and Julius Boros with a 70 at Cypress Point.

As a throng of about 40,000 swarmed over the courses, less than 100 watched Duden, a player noted for using a pendulum putter, a club that resembles a small croquet mallet with a curved kshaft and is swung between the feet.

Palmer finishing at 217, U.S. Open champion Nicklaus at 216 and Hill at 213, sharing that spot with Mason Rudolph, who had a 69 at Monterey Peninsula.

Duden, the Oregon State champion, sank an 8-foot putt for a birdie at the eighth hole to finish his first nine 1-under-par at 34. He lost the stroke on the 10th when his tee shot went down a hill.

His rally started at the 13th when he just missed an eagle 3 and carded a birdie 4. He dropped a 15-foot putt for a birdie on the 14th and chipped within 4 feet of the cup for a birdie on 15. On the 16th he dropped a 12-footer, missed from the same distance for a par at 17 and finished out with a birdie on the par 5 when his second shot reached the green apron.

"It was a fine round for me," said Duden, who left the course virtually unnoticed and was called from the shower to give an account of his round.

Palmer, who challenged for the lead after nine holes, went seven strokes over par on the final seven holes in his blowup. Nicklaus bogeyed five straight on the back nine and Hill missed two putts of 3 feet and one of 2 in losing the lead.

Casper shot even par golf until the 17th when he hit his tee shot into a trap. He missed a birdie chance at the 18th when a 12-foot putt refused to drop. Boros also had a chance for a birdie on his final hole but his 12-foot putt also missed.

After Saturday's round, the field was cut to the low 65 pros and 56 pro-amateur teams for Sunday's 18-hole televised finale over the Pebble Beach course. Saturday's round also was televised but Duden played on a course where there weren't any TV cameras.

Weather conditions ranged from frost and wind when Casper started at 8 a.m. and missed a birdie on the second hold as his putt hit a piece of ice, to warm sunshine by mid-afternoon with 25,000 thronging the Pebble Beach course and most of the remaining 15,000 at Cypress Point.

Duden and his amateur partner, Ted Gleichman of Ventura, Calif., took second place in the pro-amateur division with a best ball 63 Saturday and 192 total.

Duden carded a 70 at Pebble Beach in the first round and 73 at Cypress Point his second round. He was invited to compete in the Crosby because he was the Oregon Open and Oregon PGA king.

Stroud Pumps Maroons' Win In 26 To Lead

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP) — W. D. Stroud pumped in 26 points to lead Mississippi State to a 78-64 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over arch-rival Mississippi Saturday night.

The red-haired Stroud clicked for 13 points in each half as he paced the Maroons to their 12th victory in 15 starts. Mississippi State went ahead 3-2 in the opening seconds on Doug Hutton's free throw and led the rest of the way.

Ole Miss neared the gap to within one point midway of the first half, but State drew away again for a 33-28 intermission bulge.

Stroud opened the second half with five straight points as the Maroons quickly pulled away for a 10-point lead.

Mississippi's Donnie Kessinger, who entered the game with a 19-point average, hit on only 1 of 10 field goal attempts in the first half. Late in the game, he managed to find the range and chalked up 10 points.

Mel Edmonds kept the Rebels within striking distance but got no assistance. He collected 18 points.

Leland Mitchell hit 16 points for State and Joe Dan Gold added 12.

State hit 32 of 76 field goals for 42.1 per cent, while Ole Miss hit 28 of 72 for 38.9 per cent.

Grambling Topples Alcorn A&M, 88-83

Grambling broke away from a 16-16 tie and led 48-39 at the half. Alcorn put on a full court press in the second half and with 30 seconds remaining moved to within one point of the lead at 84-83.

Grambling now has a 15-1 season mark and 4-0 in the Southwestern Conference. Alcorn is 6-7 for the season and 0-4 in the conference.

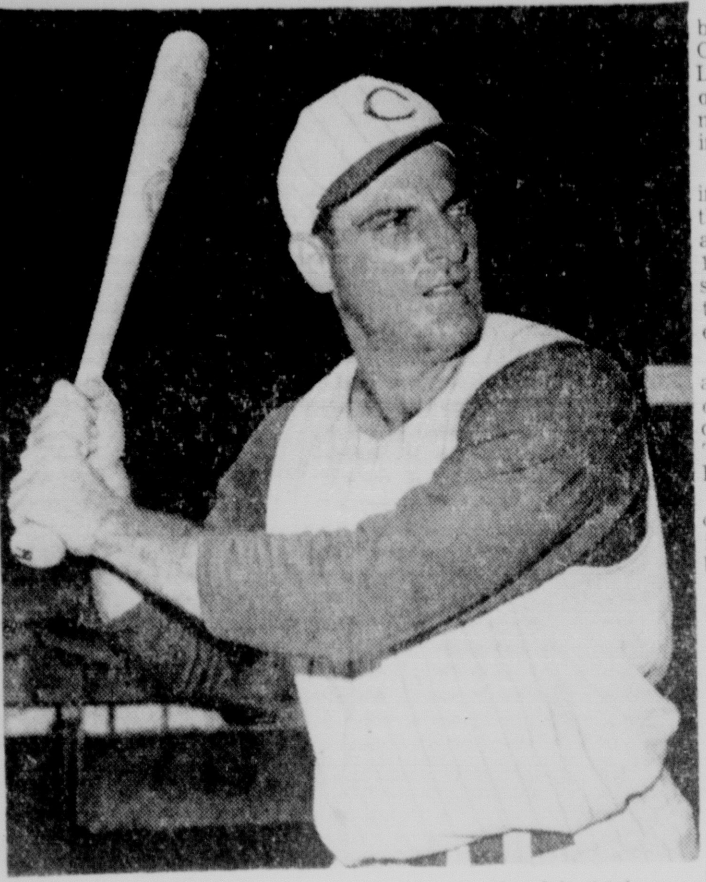
CINCINNATI SLUGGER

Freese To Participate In Coming Boys Clinic



GENE FREESE, the third baseman who hit 26 homers to help lead Cincinnati to the 1961 National League pennant, will be one of the instructors at the Optimist Club Boys Baseball Clinic Feb. 2-3 at Benoit Recreation Center. Freese played in only 18 games last season because of a broken leg suffered in spring training.

Gene Freese, the slugging third baseman who helped spark the Cincinnati Reds to the National League pennant in 1961, will be one of the instructors at the Optimist-Club Boys Baseball Clinic in Monroe Feb. 2-3.

After hitting 26 homers, driving in 87 runs and batting .277 with the Reds in 1961, Freese broke a leg during spring training in 1962 and missed most of the season. His absence was considered the primary reason the Reds failed to repeat as league champions.

The Feb. 2-3 clinic is open to all boys free of charge. Clinic officials this week announced two changes in the clinic schedule. The clinic will be held at Benoit Recreation Center at 1700 Oaklawn Drive instead of Legion Stadium and an instruction session is set at 10:30 a.m. Feb. 2 for boys of all ages instead of a session for young boys at that time and another for older boys that afternoon.

The Benoit Recreation Center has two baseball fields and boys age 8 to 13 will receive instruction on one of them at 10:30 Feb. 2 and boys 14-18 will receive instruction at the same time on the other field. Another instruction session is set Sunday afternoon, Feb. 3, at 1:30.

Freese is the third major leaguer to agree to instruct at the Optimist Clinic. Previously Wayne Causey of the Kansas City Athletics and Billy Muffett, who has pitched with the Red Sox, Giants and Cardinals and is now with the Yankee organization, had been announced as clinic instructors.

A native of Wheeling, West Virginia, who now lives in New Orleans, Freese was a minor league standout with the old New Orleans Pelicans of the Southern Association before going up to the majors. He played with the Phillies and White Sox before being traded to the Reds in 1961.

Freese's power hitting with the White Sox and Reds established him as one of the top third basemen in baseball. The 1961 campaign was one of his best.

He beat the Phillies, 4-2, May 16 with a three-run homer and hit two home runs May 31, one in the eighth, as the Reds edged the Dodgers, 8-7. He batted in six runs on a homer and two singles as the Reds swept a Sunday doubleheader from the Cardinals June 11 and one week later collected seven hits as Cincy swept a pair from Philadelphia.

Freese's homer decided a 2-0 victory over the Pirates July 4th and three days later he blasted a two-run roundtripper and two singles in a victory over Los Angeles. The Dodgers were one of Freese's favorite victims in 1961 and Aug. 16 he hit two homers in a 8-0 victory over the West Coast club and smacked a three-run homer against them Aug. 27. His final big day of 1961 came against the Pirates Sept. 19 when he batted in four runs with two homers.

After breaking his leg during spring training in 1962, Freese did not rejoin the Reds until Aug. 13. He hit two singles in his first start Aug. 20 but was able to play in only 18 games that season.

His leg now apparently in perfect shape, Freese is expected to take back over his third base spot with the Reds this spring.

Amateur League To Replace Loss

To replace the vacancy left by the American Legion Junior Baseball program going out of the picture this year, the Legion decided to provide a substitute which would more than replace this loss.

The American Legion Amateur League which was created recently will field eight clubs all from Ouachita Parish and will furnish baseball fans with a higher brand of ball. The age of these players will be from 18 and up.

The American Legion, through its Stadium Committee, will provide the necessary funds for putting the stadium back in good shape. A new score board will have to be erected. All fences will have to be repainted. The grandstand and bleachers will also need repainting. The lighting system will need going over and put back in first class shape. The playing field will need considerable work and the dressing rooms and concession stands worked over.

All participating teams will be fully uniformed and the necessary equipment will be furnished by local sponsors and co-sponsors. Many Ouachita Parish firms will contribute to bring baseball back here. All games will be played at Legion Stadium four nights each week.

The new league has selected officers who are ready and willing to go all out and help this form of recreation that is a great help towards combating juvenile delinquency.

Buddy Blair, with years of experience in playing and managing professional baseball has been a splendid choice for President. Don Lomax, former president of the Delta League for many years, will make an able assistant and will hold down the office of vice president. He will assist in handling the managers and all League affairs relative to rules and regulations.

R. D. Farr, Jr., who handled the American Legion Junior baseball program for many years in the past will lend his assistance towards the good of the organization. One of the teams under his control developed and provided four big league players. Little Red Swanson, pitcher, was signed by the Pittsburgh Pirates. Bill Hardy, shortstop was signed by the Boston Red Sox. Fred Frickie, first baseman, was signed by the Cleveland Indians. Wayne Causey, third baseman, was signed by the Baltimore Orioles.

Saul Adler, general manager, will assist in the over-all picture and look after the financing of the league. As president of Monroe Little League and a board of directors of 21 civic minded citizens, he has the support of that organization.

All Little League members, City Recreation Department and city officials have expressed their support toward this movement and feel that it will get the support of the Twin Cities as there are many baseball fans still interested.

The officers of the league expect to make a drive for funds through sponsors and co-sponsors and it is hoped that the public will respond and will support this movement to bring Baseball back to the Twin Cities. Any firm or individual desiring to contribute towards the success of this project may contact either Buddy Blair or Saul Adler.

ON SUNNY DAY

Nightmare Greets Palmer, Nicklaus

Each fired a crisp 1-under-par 35 for the first nine in Saturday's round of the $50,000 Bing Crosby tournament and rare, warming winter weather on the often cold, windswept course seemed ready to help them toward leading scores.

So what happened? Nicklaus came home in 41 and Palmer went him one worse at 42 in a pair of half-rounds that could give hope to the worst hackers in the nation.

Nicklaus was consistent in his trip down the 3,525-yard back nine —he bogeyed five consecutive holes. Palmer got a birdie on the 11th to go two under par and then went an incredible seven over par for the last seven holes.

Missed the green, chipped 10 feet short and two-putted the 380-yard 11th.

Plunked a 3-iron drive into a hole behind the 205-yard 12th and two-putted after his chip.

Three-putted from 20-feet on the 400-yard ninth.

Missed the green and two-putted the 555-yard 14th when wind carried his second shot off line and his third rolled over the green.

Dropped a short 9-iron into a trap at the 406-yard 15th and two-putted.

Palmer's fortunes were more bizarre as he:

Drove short into a soft sand trap in front of the 12th and two-putted for a bogey after recovering long.

Double-bogeyed the 13th with a drive into an off-fairway trap, a shanked 3-iron shot from the trap, a short-of-green pitch from a road and two putts after he finally made the green.

Smashed a 2-iron tee shot on the 218-yard 17th that hit the green, then bounced over a rise, down a hill and into a tidepool on a large flat rock at the ocean's edge. Deciding the lie was unplayable, Palmer palyed an off-green provisional tee shot that he hit with a 3-iron, and dropped a 7-foot putt for a double bogey 5.

Palmer refused to blame club choice for any of his fairway problems, though after several errant shots he huddled at length with his caddie, who gestured frequently and shook his head in apparent disagreement.

"I should have shot 69 to 70 under these conditions," said Nicklaus, who won the National Amateur title over this same demanding course in 1961.

Ouachita Meet Is Concluded

In second and third in the girls bracket was Woodlawn and Swartz. For the boys second went to Bastrop and third to Ouachita.

The boys all-star team had Hemphill of Fiske Union, Higgingbotton from Bastrop, Pardue of Ouachita, Calloway of Logtown, and Walters from Fiske Union.

Jonesboro Wins Over Cooper 5

JONESBORO (Special) — Jonesboro's powerful Tigers upped their season mark to 20-5 Saturday night by downing Cooper High of Vicksburg, 82-60.

Odom got 15 for the losers.

Bob Duden Surprises All, Grabs Meet Lead

By JACK STEVENSON

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)— Unheralded Bob Duden of Portland, Ore., surprised everyone by firing a 5-under-par 67 at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club Saturday to slip into the third round lead of Bing Crosby's $50,000 golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 210.

Duden, a 42-year-old pro who never has won a PGA co-sponsor tournament and generally plays only those on the West Coast, birdied five of the last six holes.

Deadlocked in second place at 211 were Billy Casper with a 73 at Pebble Beach Saturday and Julius Boros with a 70 at Cypress Point.

As a throng of about 40,000 swarmed over the courses, less than 100 watched Duden, a player noted for using a pendulum putter, a club that resembles a small croquet mallet with a curved kshaft and is swung between the feet.

Palmer finishing at 217, U.S. Open champion Nicklaus at 216 and Hill at 213, sharing that spot with Mason Rudolph, who had a 69 at Monterey Peninsula.

Duden, the Oregon State champion, sank an 8-foot putt for a birdie at the eighth hole to finish his first nine 1-under-par at 34. He lost the stroke on the 10th when his tee shot went down a hill.

His rally started at the 13th when he just missed an eagle 3 and carded a birdie 4. He dropped a 15-foot putt for a birdie on the 14th and chipped within 4 feet of the cup for a birdie on 15. On the 16th he dropped a 12-footer, missed from the same distance for a par at 17 and finished out with a birdie on the par 5 when his second shot reached the green apron.

"It was a fine round for me," said Duden, who left the course virtually unnoticed and was called from the shower to give an account of his round.

Palmer, who challenged for the lead after nine holes, went seven strokes over par on the final seven holes in his blowup. Nicklaus bogeyed five straight on the back nine and Hill missed two putts of 3 feet and one of 2 in losing the lead.

Casper shot even par golf until the 17th when he hit his tee shot into a trap. He missed a birdie chance at the 18th when a 12-foot putt refused to drop. Boros also had a chance for a birdie on his final hole but his 12-foot putt also missed.

After Saturday's round, the field was cut to the low 65 pros and 45 pro-amateur teams for Sunday's 18-hole televised finale over the Pebble Beach course. Saturday's round also was televised but Duden played on a course where there weren't any TV cameras.

Weather conditions ranged from frost and wind when Casper started at 8 a.m. and missed a birdie on the second hold as his putt hit a piece of ice, to warm sunshine by mid-afternoon with 25,000 thronging the Pebble Beach course and most of the remaining 15,000 at Cypress Point.

Duden and his amateur partner, Ted Gleichman of Ventura, Calif., took second place in the pro-amateur division with a best ball 63 Saturday and 192 total.

Duden carded a 70 at Pebble Beach in the first round and 73 at Cypress Point his second round. He was invited to compete in the Crosby because he was the Oregon Open and Oregon PGA king.

Stroud Pumps Maroons' Win In 26 To Lead

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP)— W. D. Stroud pumped in 26 points to lead Mississippi State to a 78-64 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over arch-rival Mississippi Saturday night.

The red-haired Stroud clicked for 13 points in each half as he paced the Maroons to their 12th victory in 15 starts. Mississippi State went ahead 3-2 in the opening seconds on Doug Hutton's free throw and led the rest of the way.

Ole Miss neared the gap to within one point midway of the first half, but State drew away again for a 33-28 intermission bulge.

Stroud opened the second half with five straight points as the Maroons quickly pulled away for a 10-point lead.

Mississippi's Donnie Kessinger, who entered the game with a 19-point average, hit on only 1 of 10 field goal attempts in the first half. Late in the game, he managed to find the range and chalked up 10 points.

Mel Edmonds kept the Rebels within striking distance but got no assistance. He collected 18 points.

Leland Mitchell hit 16 points for State and Joe Dan Gold added 12.

State hit 32 of 76 field goals for 42.1 per cent, while Ole Miss hit 28 of 72 for 38.9 per cent.

Grambling Topples Alcorn A&M, 88-83

Grambling broke away from a 16-16 tie and led 48-39 at the half. Alcorn put on a full court press in the second half and with 30 seconds remaining moved to within one point of the lead at 84-83.

Grambling now has a 15-1 season mark and 4-0 in the Southwestern Conference. Alcorn is 6-7 for the season and 0-4 in the conference.

Ducks In January

Canada may be having waterfowl problems with its too dry nesting grounds, but from the looks of the duck concentrations around here the only trouble Louisiana has is the lack of a season.

The same could be said for Arkansas where the latest waterfowl inventory, conducted a few days ago, came up with a count of 1,161,000 ducks — mostly mallards and an increase of 8 per cent over last season.

Louisiana's last aerial survey produced an inventory in the neighborhood of 5 million ducks — probably the most anywhere in the entire Mississippi Flyway.

Yet the one - mallard season is over, has been over since Christmas Eve, and the ducks are here.

But to top it all off, news begins to flow out of Canada now regarding a possible closing of the season next year by the Canadian Wildlife Service. The U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service could be thinking along the same line.

And Louisiana has 5 million ducks in January, but not a one of them can be shot legally.

It's too early to begin anticipating what the federal wildlife agency will do next season, because much will depend on the condition of the nesting grounds in Canada. A heavy winter snow, plus a rainy spring, could reverse the picture entirely.

That, of course, will be the primary factor taken into consideration in late summer when the federal government determines the framework for the season.

But the federal agency should also take into consideration another factor — and that of course is the decline of duck hunting interest this season.

An official with the Arkansas Fish & Game Commission said he believes the sale of duck stamps will be off 75 per cent, since a lot of the private hunting clubs didn't even open their doors during the 25 - day Arkansas season.

The sale will be off greatly in Louisiana too.

And this means a big loss in revenue — money that has been spent in the past on the development and restoration of waterfowl areas. That's like cutting off your hand to spite your face.

Last year the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission led a region - wide effort to stop the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service from making the season more drastic than it was this year. Dick Yancey, assistant director, contended then and he contends now that restricting the season in the Mississippi Flyway wouldn't help the problems in Canada.

A lot of other wildlife officials in the South, including Yancey, don't believe that things are as bad in Canada as they're supposed to be, pointing out that waterfowl reproduction dropped to a low ebb years ago, but bounced back.

Hunters in Louisiana, we feel, are just as keenly interested in the future of waterfowl as hunters in any other section of the country. They're just hard to convince that the problems are really great when there are plenty of ducks down here.

And if the trend is ever corrected, we hope they will get around to giving Louisiana a framework so that Northeast Louisiana hunters can get in some shooting in January.

That's when the ducks are here.

Mail Game Cards

Deer hunters are being urged by the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission to mail their game cards to the New Orleans office. Each big game license has an attached card that should be filled out by deer hunters, then mailed to the New Orleans office.

But because of the size of the card, there has been some difficulty in some sections of the state with the U. S. Post Office Department. Cards in some areas have been returned with an explanation from the post office that they're too small.

State officials say, however, that they are working toward an arrangement with the post offices so that the cards can be mailed. But to avoid any trouble, the hunter might drop his card in an envelope and mail it to the commission office, 400 Royal Street, New Orleans.

These cards are vitally important in that they give the commission an opportunity to tabulate the state - wide deer kill.

Incidentially, on another deer hunting subject, Massachusetts, where a law was recently passed requiring hunters to wear daylight fluorescent red or orange colors during deer season, completed its deer hunting season this fall without one firearms accident attributable to the victim's being mistaken for game or being in the line of another hunter.

Again we say the idea of wearing daylight fluorescent red or orange colors is good and that our own commission should study it for adoption.

Native Wild Hog

The Monroe zoo — soon to add an elephant and a hippo to its family — has a Collared Peccary, which is the only true native wild hog found in the United States, according to zoo director Kit Beecher.

If you have a razorback in mind as a true wild hog, Kit says this is a "gone wild" version of the domestic Asiatic hogs and the Wild Boar.

But back to Monroe's Collared Peccary. This is a southwestern hog that runs in packs of more than 100 — all dangerous when cornered.

In fact, these hogs can be compared to some football teams in that they believe that the best defense is offense.

Although they're small, Kit says the Collared Peccary—equipped with long tusk-type teeth — are intelligent and can be dangerous to humans, especially if they attack in groups.

Kit also explains that an interesting feature of the creature is a nipple - like musk gland located on the back above the hind legs. When excited, the hair of the back of the animal will stand up and expose the gland, touching off a rank smelling musk.

Little Man's Corner

The little men, caught between seasons these past few days, had trouble making news afield.

Seasons on quail and rabbits are still open, but bird hunters are definitely in the minority. Considering the sleet and freezing temperatures, we had a fair hunt last Saturday with John Blanchard of Bastrop.

Found lots of birds, but had trouble handling them. The wind was blowing so hard you couldn't hit the partridges when they got off the ground.

Fishermen, meantime, will find the fishing spotty until the weather settles.

And two unusual deer were reported this week by hunters in the area. Dewey Hart of Bastrop writes of a 4-point buck that he killed near Irvin Lake in Morehouse Parish.

Dewey says the deer had white legs and a white belly with a light brown head and a spotted back. In fact, the deer, in a picture we saw, looked almost like an albino.

And you probably saw a picture of the doe with antlers that A. M. Raley of Tallulah killed in Madison Parish. The doe had a 6-point rack. It's happened before.

Raley discovered the "buck" was a doe when he dressed the animal, which had deformed female organs.

And here are a couple of points that you may be interested in:

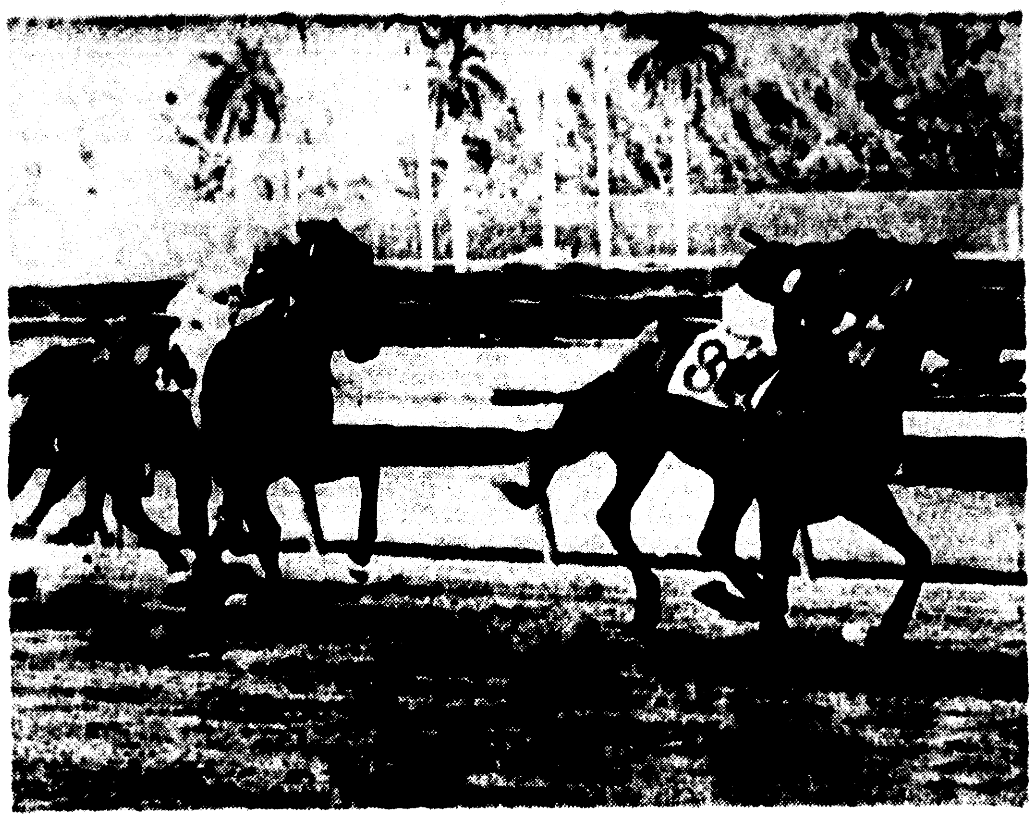
The Department of the Interior reports that only 32 whopping cranes returned to the wintering grounds on the Arkansas National Wildlife Refuge and nearby sections of the Texas coast.

And a one - ton fish named "cow shark" has been landed off the Mississippi Delta in the Gulf of Mexico — the first time a cow shark has been taken in the Gulf of Mexico in more than 75 years.

Jack Sanford Gets Invitation

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jack Sanford, star right hander of the San Francisco Giants with a 24-7 record last season, will be among the guests of honor Jan. 28 at the Philadelphia Sports Writers Association 59th annual banquet.

Sanford joins the New York Yankees' Mickey Mantle, Penn State's All-America end Dave Robinson, heavyweight champion Sonny Liston, light heavy champ Harold Johnson, national jockey champion Ron Ferraro, sports comeback of the year Robin Roberts and others on the dias.



OGDEN PHIPPS' Royal Ascot with John Sellers up won the Hibiscus, $25,000 added at Hialeah Park Saturday. Pack Trip was second and Sky Wonder (on the rail behind Pack Trip) was third. The winner paid $26.10 for two. (AP Wirephoto)

HOLLY RIDGE (Special) — The annual Holly Ridge High School Invitational Tournament, slated for January 31, through February 2, still has openings for several teams.

Anyone interested in the meet should contact Coach Don Easterling at Holly Ridge High School.

The deadline for entering the meet is January 25. At the present 9 boys teams and 8 girls clubs have entered.

ANOTHER STEP UPWARD?

Cocky Cassius Faces Powell This Thursday

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cassius Marcellus Clay, the brash, young heavyweight touted by many as the savior of a fast-decaying sport, returns to the ring next Thursday in a 10-round bout against a revitalized Charley Powell at Pittsburgh's Civic Aerna.

It's the first big boxing match in Pittsburgh in 13 months and is sponsored by the Dapper Dan Club as a benefit for the families of 37 miners killed in an explosion near Carmichaels, Pa., Dec. 6.

The loquacious Clay, whose witty, flippant and often poetic remarks have attracted a multitude of fans, has not fought since last Nov. 15.

That's when Cassius knocked out aging Archie Moore in the fourth round as he had brazenly prophesized.

Since turning professional after winning a gold medal in the 1960 Olympics, Cassius has been predicting the exact round he would kayo any opponents. And even though the unbeaten Louisville flash had been correct in most of his forecasts, it was not until he flattened Moore that the boxing world took him seriously.

After 16 victories, 13 by knockouts, Clay is ranked third in the heavyweight class by the World Boxing Association and fifth by Ring Magazine.

"I hear Powell used to play football," Clay chortled, "and I'm telling you he's going to make the first touchdown—he'll be down on that canvas.

"If that man don't fall in five, I'll take the first jet out ouf the country," he added. "I'll quit talking for 30 days too, and brother, that would be misery to me."

Powell, currently on a comeback trail, has wanred the cokey Cassius not to "consider me a set up."

"Tell him I have two fists, the same number as he has, and I can throw them," the burly Powell said. "All you have to do is land one in the right spot, and if it is Clay or Sonny Liston, he isn't going to be standing up.

"I think Clay can be hurt. I'm not so sure he can take a real punch."

This will be Powell's fourth fight since he resumed his fistic career last year after taking 1961 off to play with the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League. In his last bout on Nov. 1, he grabbed a 10-round decisions from Dave Fruch.

Once ranked sixth among the leading heavyweights, the 6-foot-4, 214-pound Powell has a record of 23 victories, 17 by knockouts, six defeats and three draws.

Floyd Patterson, currently awaiting a re-match with champion Sonny Liston, first won the crown when he was 21 years and 11 months old. Cassius celebrated his21st birthday on Thursday. That gives him until October to fulfill his dream of becoming the youngest man ever to win the heavyweight title.

"And the only thing that is holding me back is Sonny Liston," Clay said at his birthday party. "He's afraid of me. Actually, Liston is a big ugly bear who scares everybody but me. I know I could beat him because I'm better looking than he is."

Buckeyes Lose To Iowa Cagers In Big 10 Tilt

IOWA CITY, Iowa, (AP) — Iowa's fired-up, underdog team rallied from a 16 point deficit Saturday to beat Ohio State 81-74 and dim the Buckeyes' chances in the Big Ten basketball race.

It was the second triumph in a row for the Hawkeyes, who had beaten Wisconsin in a second half rally last Monday.

Led by Gary Bradds, who topped the scoring with 26 points, Ohio State quickly boosted a 34-27 halftime advantage to 47-31 and then the Hawkeyes got rolling with 14 straight points on a drive sparked by Andy Hankins and Dave Roach.

Ducks In January

Canada may be having waterfowl problems with its too dry nesting grounds, but from the looks of the duck concentrations around here the only trouble Louisiana has is the lack of a season.

The same could be said for Arkansas where the latest waterfowl inventory, conducted a few days ago, came up with a count of 1,161,000 ducks — mostly mallards and an increase of 8 per cent over last season.

Louisiana's last aerial survey produced an inventory in the neighborhood of 5 million ducks — probably the most anywhere in the entire Mississippi Flyway.

Yet the one - mallard season is over, has been over since Christmas Eve, and the ducks are here.

But to top it all off, news begins to flow out of Canada now regarding a possible closing of the season next year by the Canadian Wildlife Service. The U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service could be thinking along the same line.

And Louisiana has 5 million ducks in January, but not a one of them can be shot legally.

It's too early to begin anticipating what the federal wildlife agency will do next season, because much will depend on the condition of the nesting grounds in Canada. A heavy winter snow, plus a rainy spring, could reverse the picture entirely.

That, of course, will be the primary factor taken into consideration in late summer when the federal government determines the framework for the season.

But the federal agency should also take into consideration another factor — and that of course is the decline of duck hunting interest this season.

An official with the Arkansas Fish & Game Commission said he believes the sale of duck stamps will be off 75 per cent, since a lot of the private hunting clubs didn't even open their doors during the 25 - day Arkansas season.

The sale will be off greatly in Louisiana too.

And this means a big loss in revenue — money that has been spent in the past on the development and restoration of waterfowl areas. That's like cutting off your hand to spite your face.

Last year the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission led a region - wide effort to stop the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service from making the season more drastic than it was this year. Dick Yancey, assistant director, contended then and he contends now that restricting the season in the Mississippi Flyway wouldn't help the problems in Canada.

A lot of other wildlife officials in the South, including Yancey, don't believe that things are as bad in Canada as they're supposed to be, pointing out that waterfowl reproduction dropped to a low ebb years ago, but bounced back.

Hunters in Louisiana, we feel, are just as keenly interested in the future of waterfowl as hunters in any other section of the country. They're just hard to convince that the problems are really great when there are plenty of ducks down here.

And if the trend is ever corrected, we hope they will get around to giving Louisiana a framework so that Northeast Louisiana hunters can get in some shooting in January.

That's when the ducks are here.

Mail Game Cards

Deer hunters are being urged by the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission to mail their game cards to the New Orleans office. Each big game license has an attached card that should be filled out by deer hunters, then mailed to the New Orleans office.

But because of the size of the card, there has been some difficulty in some sections of the state with the U. S. Post Office Department. Cards in some areas have been returned with an explanation from the post office that they're too small.

State officials say, however, that they are working toward an arrangment with the post offices so that the cards can be mailed. But to avoid any trouble, the hunter might drop his card in an envelope and mail it to the commission office, 400 Royal Street, New Orleans.

These cards are vitally important in that they give the commission an opportunity to tabulate the state - wide deer kill.

Incidentially, on another deer hunting subject, Massachusetts, where a law was recently passed requiring hunters to wear daylight fluorescent red or orange colors during deer season, completed its deer hunting season this fall without one firearms accident attributable to the victim's being mistaken for game or being in the line of another hunter.

Again we say the idea of wearing daylight fluorescent red or orange colors is good and that our own commission should study it for adoption.

Native Wild Hog

The Monroe zoo — soon to add an elephant and a hippo to its family — has a Collared Peccary, which is the only true native wild hog found in the United States, according to zoo director Kit Beecher.

If you have a razorback in mind as a true wild hog, Kit says this is a "gone wild" version of the domestic Asiatic hogs and the Wild Boar.

But back to Monroe's Collared Peccary. This is a southwestern hog that runs in packs of more than 100 — all dangerous when cornered.

In fact, these hogs can be compared to some football teams in that they believe that the best defense is offense.

Although they're small, Kit says the Collared Peccary—equipped with long tusk-type teeth — are intelligent and can be dangerous to humans, especially if they attack in groups.

Kit also explains that an interesting feature of the creature is a nipple - like musk gland located on the back above the hind legs. When excited, the hair of the back of the animal will stand up and expose the gland, touching off a rank smelling musk.

Little Man's Corner

The little men, caught between seasons these past few days, had trouble making news afield.

Seasons on quail and rabbits are still open, but bird hunters are definitely in the minority. Considering the sleet and freezing temperatures, we had a fair hunt last Saturday with John Blanchard of Bastrop.

Found lots of birds, but had trouble handling them. The wind was blowing so hard you couldn't hit the partridges when they got off the ground.

Fishermen, meantime, will find the fishing spotty until the weather settles.

And two unusual deer were reported this week by hunters in the area. Dewey Hart of Bastrop writes of a 4-point buck that he killed near Irvin Lake in Morehouse Parish.

Dewey says the deer had white legs and a white belly with a light brown head and a spotted back. In fact, the deer, in a picture we saw, looked almost like an albino.

And you probably saw a picture of the doe with antlers that A. M. Raley of Tallulah killed in Madison Parish. The doe had a 6-point rack. It's happened before.

Raley discovered the "buck" was a doe when he dressed the animal, which had deformed female organs.

And here are a couple of points that you may be interested in:

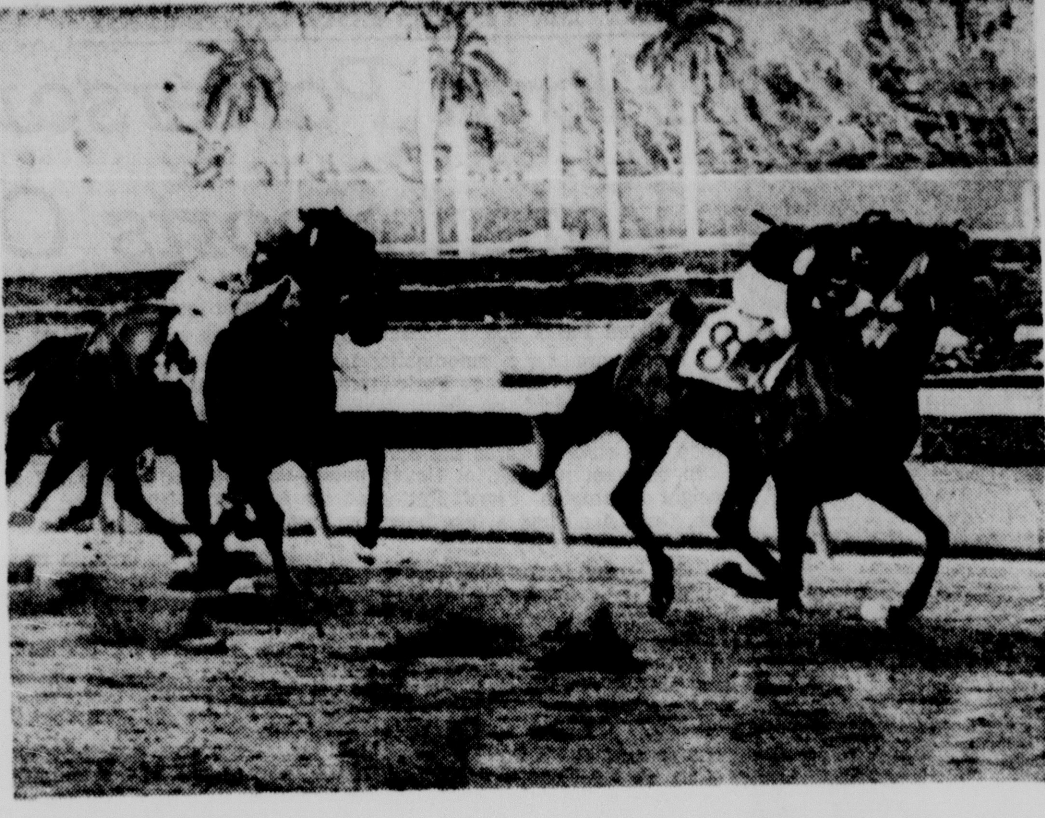
The Department of the Interior reports that only 32 whopping cranes returned to the wintering grounds on the Arkansas National Wildlife Refuge and nearby sections of the Texas coast.

And a one - ton fish named "cow shark" has been landed off the Mississippi Delta in the Gulf of Mexico — the first time a cow shark has been taken in the Gulf of Mexico in more than 75 years.

Jack Sanford Gets Invitation

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jack Sanford, star right hander of the San Francisco Giants with a 24-7 record last season, will be among the guests of honor Jan. 28 at the Philadelphia Sports Writers Association 59th annual banquet.

Sanford joins the New York Yankees' Mickey Mantle, Penn State's All-America end Dave Robinson, heavyweight champion Sonny Liston, light heavy champ Harold Johnson, national jockey champion Ron Ferraro, sports comeback of the year Robin Roberts and others on the dias.



OGDEN PHIPPS' Royal Ascot with John Sellers up won the Hibiscus, $25,000 added at Hialeah Park Saturday. Pack Trip was second and Sky Wonder (on the rail behind Pack Trip) was third. The winner paid $26.10 for two. (AP Wirephoto)

Buckeyes Lose To Iowa Cagers In Big 10 Tilt

IOWA CITY, Iowa, (AP) — Iowa's fired-up, underdog team rallied from a 16 point deficit Saturday to beat Ohio State 81-74 and dim the Buckeyes' chances in the Big Ten basketball race.

The Buckeyes, who were ranked No. 6 in the nation, found their conference record evened at 2-2. It was the second triumph in a row for the Hawkeyes, who had beaten Wisconsin in a second half rally last Monday.

Led by Gary Bradds, who topped the scoring with 26 points, Ohio State quickly boosted a 34-27 halftime advantage to 47-31 and then the Hawkeyes got rolling with 14 straight points on a drive sparked by Andy Hankins and Dave Roach.

ANOTHER STEP UPWARD?

Cocky Cassius Faces Powell This Thursday

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cassius Marcellus Clay, the brash, young heavyweight touted by many as the savior of a fast-decaying sport, returns to the ring next Thursday in a 10-round bout against a revitalized Charley Powell at Pittsburgh's Civic Aerna.

It's the first big boxing match in Pittsburgh in 13 months and is sponsored by the Dapper Dan Club as a benefit for the families of 37 miners killed in an explosion near Carmichaels, Pa., Dec. 6.

The loquacious Clay, whose witty, flippant and often poetic remarks have attracted a multitude of fans, has not fought since last Nov. 15.

That's when Cassius knocked out aging Archie Moore in the fourth round as he had brazenly prophesized.

Since turning professional after winning a gold medal in the 1960 Olympics, Cassius has been predicting the exact round he would kayo any opponents. And even though the unbeaten Louisville flash had been correct in most of his forecasts, it was not until he flattened Moore that the boxing world took him seriously.

After 16 victories, 13 by knockouts, Clay is ranked third in the heavyweight class by the World Boxing Association and fifth by Ring Magazine.

"I hear Powell used to play football," Clay chortled, "and I'm telling you he's going to make the first touchdown—he'll be down on that canvas.

"If that man don't fall in five, I'll take the first jet out ouf the country," he added. "I'll quit talking for 30 days, too, and brother, that would be misery to me."

Powell, currently on a comeback trail, has wanred the cokcy Cassius not to "consider me a set up."

"Tell him I have two fists, the same number as he has, and I can throw them," the burly Powell said. "All you have to do is land one in the right spot, and if it is Clay or Sonny Liston, he isn't going to be standing up.

"I think Clay can be hurt. I'm not so sure he can take a real punch.

This will be Powell's fourth fight since he resumed his fistic career last year after taking 1961 off to play with the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League. In his last bout on Nov. 1, he grabbed a 10-round decisions from Dave Fruch.

Once ranked sixth among the leading heavyweights, the 6-foot-4, 214-pound Powell has a record of 23 victories, 17 by knockouts, six defeats and three draws.

Floyd Patterson, currently awaiting a re-match with champion Sonny Liston, first won the crown when he was 21 years and 11 months old. Cassius celebrated his21st birthday on Thursday. That gives him until October to fulfill his dream of becoming the youngest man ever to win the heavyweight title.

"And the only thing that is holding me back is Sonny Liston," Clay said at his birthday party. "He's afraid of me. Actually, Liston is a big ugly bear who scares everybody but me. I know I could beat him because I'm better looking than he is."

Oakland Raiders Hire New Coach

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Oakland Raiders, who have dropped over a million dollars and three coaches in three hectic years in the American Football League, took a step Saturday which implied they will be in Oakland at least through 1965.

Officials of the long time down-in-the-dumps club announced they had givena three-year contract to Al Davis, first of four coaches to be grabbed directly from the pro ranks.

Davis, 33, has been a top assistant for three years with the San Diego Chargers and is highly respected for his ability to recruit football talent.

Eddie Erdelatz, the one time Navy coach who tried to bridge the gap from college to pro ranks, signed a two-year contract when the Raiders made their debut in the fledgling AFL in 1960. But he was dropped two games into the 1961 season. His two short-lived successors, Marty Feldman and William (Red) Conkright, got only one-year contracts.

Club owners exuded confidence that Davis will bring the Raiders —a club without even a home stadium its first two seasons — out of the wilderness and justify the city and country in projected plans for a $25 million 48,500-seat stadium.

Davis was hired both as coach and general manager. Estimates of what he'll get range from over $20,000 a year all the way up to $75,000 for three years.

"He will create a new image of the Raider operation," confidently predicted Wayne Valley, co-owner of the club.

Davis, who also had a stint with the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League as well as helping coach collegiate ranks at The Citadel and University of Southern California, takes over at once. There's rumor already of shakeups in the front office and in the coaching personnel.

Pirates Law Signs Contract

Law, 32, will be starting his 12th season with the Pirates. He had a 20-9 record in 1960 when the Pirates won the World Series, but has been hampered by a sore arm since then.

FIGHTER TURNS ESCAPE ARTIST

Floyd Patterson's Weird Exit Voted Sports Oddity Of Year

By JIM BECKER

Associated Press Sports Writer

There were two automobiles waiting outside Comiskey Park in Chicago the night of Sept. 25. One was pointed toward The Loop, the other towards the hills.

In both sat a friend of Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson. One friend had a fake beard and mustache in his pocket.

After Sonny Liston took Patterson's title away in 126 seconds with ridiculous ease, Patterson jumped into the car headed out of town, donned the fake beard and stayed out of sight for the next several days.

It was a weird ending to a strange fight and it was the Sports Oddity of the Year, according to the sports writers and sportscasters voting in the annual Associated Press Poll.

The whole Liston-Patterson fiasco was singled out on many of the 124 ballots cast in the poll as the oddest thing in sports all year.

Many voters mentioned the inept performance by the ex-champion, others the grabbing of the entire receipts by the government for tax purposes.

The wild finish of the Minnesota-Wisconsin football game, won by the Badgers with the aid of a pair of penalties in the final minutes, also drew a lot of votes. Wisconsin scored its winning touchdown for the Big Ten title after a penalty for roughing the passer was followed by one called on the Minnesota bench. The furor hasn't died down yet.

Weather got in its licks in two oddities. Rain held up the World Series on both coasts until 13 days had been consumed before the New York Yankees got the nod 1-0 over the San Francisco Giants in the seventh game in San Francisco.

In the form of fog, weather also caused one of the longest delays on record in the Gray Cup game for the Canadian pro football championship, which was carried in the United States on television. When the players finally began to have trouble even making each other out in the gloom, the game was halted in the middle of the fourth quarter and completed the next day.

The collapse of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who wound up in a tie in the National League when it appeared impossible for them to lose, and then blew the playoff when that, too, appeared beyond the realm of possibility, drew a lot of votes.

Also in the odd baseball department was the 22-inning, 7-hour game between the Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees in Detroit. As the players truggled inning after inning without benefit of a run, the television report of the game cut into family harmony. In New York alone it was credited with breaking up more marriages than Liz Taylor.

So did the New York Mets, widely considered the worst baseball team of all time. They staggered home 60½ games out of first place in the National League, with Casey Stengel at the helm. One writer in the poll called it Stengel's "riches to rags" story.

Rookie Tom Tresh of the Yankees hit more home runs in his first month in the majors than his father, long-time big league catcher Mike Tresh, hit in his whole career. Tresh wound up with 20 in the regular season and also equalied his father's career output of two in one game later in the year.

Oakland Raiders Hire New Coach

OAKLAND, Calif., (AP) — The Oakland Raiders, who have dropped over a million dollars and three coaches in three hectic years in the American Football League, took a step Saturday which implied they will be in Oakland at least through 1965.

Officials of the long time down-in-the-dumps club announced they had givena three-year contract to Al Davis, first of four coaches to be grabbed directly from the pro ranks.

Davis, 33, has been a top assistant for three years with the San Diego Chargers and is highly respected for his ability to recruit football talent.

Eddie Erdelatz, the one time Navy coach who tried to bridge the gap from college to pro ranks, signed a two-year contract when the Raiders made their debut in the fledgling AFL in 1960. But he was dropped two games into the 1961 season. His two short-lived successors, Marty Feldman and William (Red) Conkright, got only one-year contracts.

Club owners exuded confidence that Davis will bring the Raiders—a club without even a home stadium its first two seasons—out of the wilderness and justify the city and country in projected plans for a $25 million 48,500-seat stadium.

Davis was hired both as coach and general manager. Estimates of what he'll get range from over $20,000 a year all the way up to $75,000 for three years.

"He will create a new image of the Raider operation," confidently predicted Wayne Valley, co-owner of the club.

Davis, who also had a stint with the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League as well as helping coach collegiate ranks at The Citadel and University of Southern California, takes over at once. There's rumor already of shakeups in the front office and in the coaching personnel.

Pirates Law Signs Contract

Law, 32, will be starting his 12th season with the Pirates. He had a 20-9 record in 1960 when the Pirates won the World Series, but has been hampered by a sore arm since then.

FIGHTER TURNS ESCAPE ARTIST

Floyd Patterson's Weird Exit Voted Sports Oddity Of Year

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

There were two automobiles waiting outside Comiskey Park in Chicago the night of Sept. 25. One was pointed toward The Loop, the other towards the hills.

In both sat a friend of Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson. One friend had a fake beard and mustache in his pocket.

After Sonny Liston took Patterson's title away in 126 seconds with ridiculous ease, Patterson jumped into the car headed out of town, donned the fake beard and stayed out of sight for the next several days.

It was a weird ending to a strange fight and it was the Sports Oddity of the Year, according to the sports writers and sportscasters voting in the annual Associated Press Poll.

The whole Liston-Patterson fiasco was singled out on many of the 124 ballots cast in the poll as the oddest thing in sports all year.

Many voters mentioned the inept performance by the ex-champion, others the grabbing of the entire receipts by the government for tax purposes.

The wild finish of the Minnesota-Wisconsin football game, won by the Badgers with the aid of a pair of penalties in the final minutes, also drew a lot of votes. Wisconsin scored its winning touchdown for the Big Ten title after a penalty for roughing the passer was followed by one called on the Minnesota bench. The furor hasn't died down yet.

Weather got in its licks in two oddities. Rain held up the World Series on both coasts until 13 days had been consumed before the New York Yankees got the nod 1-0 over the San Francisco Giants in the seventh game in San Francisco.

In the form of fog, weather also caused one of the longest delays on record in the Gray Cup game for the Canadian pro football championship, which was carried in the United States on television. When the players finally began to have trouble even making each other out in the gloom, the game was halted in the middle of the fourth quarter and completed the next day.

The collapse of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who wound up in a tie in the National League when it appeared impossible for them to lose, and then blew the playoff when that, too, appeared beyond the realm of possibility, drew a lot of votes.

Also in the odd baseball department was the 22-inning, 7-hour game between the Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees in Detroit. As the players truggled inning after inning without benefit of a run, the television report of the game cut into family harmony. In New York alone it was credited with breaking up more marriages than Liz Taylor.

So did the New York Mets, widely considered the worst baseball team of all time. They staggered home 60½ games out of first place in the National League, with Casey Stengel at the helm. One writer in the poll called it Stengel's "riches to rags" story.

Rookie Tom Tresh of the Yankees hit more home runs in his first month in the majors than his father, long-time big league catcher Mike Tresh, hit in his whole career. Tresh wound up with 20 in the regular season and also equalled his father's career output of two in one game later in the year.

Peggy Henderson Weds Ronald Gewin Saturday

Solemnized Saturday, January 19 in Standard Baptist Church was the double ring ceremony which united in marriage Miss Peggy Maureen Henderson, 2517 North 12th, Monroe, and Thomas Ronald Gewin of Bastrop.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Henderson of Olla and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Gewin of Bastrop.

Rev. Dale Windham performed the 6 p.m. vows as the couple stood before an arch of greenery, flanked by Grecian urns filled with white and pink gladioli and white pompons and greenery. Two [illegible] candelabra holding white tapers formed the background and completed the altar setting.

Mrs. Betty Robertson, organist, accompanied Miss [illegible] Rodgers [illegible] Whither [illegible] The Wedding Prayer [illegible]

ATTENDANTS

[illegible]

[illegible] Marcia Kaye Henderson, sister of the bride, and Miss Skyla Fay Barton, who were also dressed identically to the other attendants.

Serving as best man was Leon Martin and groomsman was Jerry Gewin, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Ramsy Johnson and Roy Witherington and ring bearer was Glen Henderson, brother of the bride.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a sheath of mint green wool with [illegible] accessories and a corsage of white carnations, tied with pink and white ribbons. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige lace dress with brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlor where the bride's table was covered with white net over a pink cloth. Central decor for the table was a miniature bride and groom beneath an arch encircled with a floral arrangement. The tiered wedding cake, also adorned with pink roses and a miniature bridal couple, was served by Miss Linda [illegible] of Bastrop. Pouring pink punch at the opposite end of the table was Miss Linda Johnson of Monroe and presiding at the guest book was Miss Jean Warner, Monroe.

For travel when the couple left on a short wedding trip the bride changed into a [illegible] wool suit with brown mink hat and brown lizard shoes and bag. Upon their return they will be at home at [illegible] Monroe.

Mr. Gewin graduated from La Salle high school and is employed at Monroe Building and Loan Association. Mr. Gewin graduated from Bastrop high school and is attending Northeast Louisiana State College here while also employed by International Paper Company.

Lila Ann Webb To Wed William Richard Hollis

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Lila Ann Webb to William Richard Hollis is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Webb, West Monroe. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. Quinten T. Hollis and the late Mrs. Hollis, also of West Monroe.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, February 9, to be solemnized at 7:30 p.m. in Whites Ferry Road Church of Christ. Alton Howard, minister, will perform the ceremony.

The bride-elect has chosen Miss Georgia Evelyn Webb as her maid of honor and Miss Penny Lee Webb as junior bridesmaid. James [illegible] will attend Mr. Hollis as best man and ushers are Jesse Hollis and John [illegible] Hollis.

Miss Webb graduated from West Monroe high school, attended Northeast Louisiana State College and Ouachita Valley Vocational school. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Georgia Webb of Vivian.

Mr. Hollis was also graduated from West Monroe high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. He is presently employed at Monroe where the couple plans to reside.

MRS. DONALD M. FRITH

Frith-Keith Nuptials Read In Baptist Church

Miss Gladys Ann Keith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Keith, 206 Garden Drive, Monroe, became the bride of Donald M. Frith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ormal Frith, 220 Lilac St., West Monroe. Rev. M. L. Graham performed the double ring ceremony at 8 p.m. January 12 in Eastside Baptist church.

Six branched candelabra entwined with ivy formed a background for the prie dieu which was flanked by bouquets of gladioli.

Marion Ashley, pianist, played appropriate nuptial music and accompanied Dorothy Fortenberry as she sang "O Promise Me," "Perfect Love," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white Chantilly lace, styled with basque bodice, long tapering sleeves and bouffant skirt. The scalloped neckline was etched with tiny seed pearls. Her elbow length veil of illusion was attached to a pearl tiara and her bouquet was a cascade of white roses.

Mrs. Janet Keith, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of blue chiffon over net and taffeta with white sequined hat and short veil and carried a large chrysanthemum, tied with pink ribbons. Bridesmaids were Miss Helen Keith, sister of the bride, who wore blue chiffon and Miss Donna Porter, wearing pink chiffon, styled identical to the honor attendant's gown. They also wore white sequined hats with short veils and carried single large chrysanthemums.

Dale Jones attended Mr. Frith as best man and groomsmen were Bobby Keith and Frank Keith, brothers of the bride. Serving as ushers were Dickie Allen and Gerald Weems with Mitchell Yates as ring bearer.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Keith wore a blue suit with matching hat, black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Frith, wore a brown and black ensemble and a corsage of white carantions.

After a brief wedding trip the couple will establish a home in Minneapolis, Minnesota. For travel the bride wore a blue wool suit with black accessories and a corsage of white roses.

FORTHCOMING marriage of Miss Francis Rogers of Clayton to Morris Johnson of Ferriday, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Coy Rogers. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Johnson of Las Vegas, Nevada. The vows will be exchanged on February 9 at 8 p. m. in the Church of Christ with Roy Henderson, Minister, officiating.

Mrs. Betty Robertson, organist, accompanied Miss Grace Rodgers as she sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer," and played traditional wedding marches.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her floor length gown of white crystal taffeta featured a bouffant skirt which swept to a chapel train in back. The fitted bodice of Chantilly lace was styled with Sabrina neckline and long sleeves tapered to lily points over the hand. Her waist length veil of illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and crystals and her only ornament was a single strand of pearls and earrings, a gift of the groom. She carried a white orchid in a shower arrangement atop a white Bible.

ATTENDANTS

Attending the bride were Miss Jimmie Lee Finley as maid of honor; Miss Rita Gewin, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid and Miss Karen Sue Blake, flower girl. They wore identical frocks of pink silk organza over pink taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodices, scoop necklines and full fathered skirts. Their headdresses were of pink net attached to pink bows and they carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums.

Candles were lighted by Miss Marcia Kaye Henderson, sister of the bride, and Miss Skyla Fay Barton, who were also dressed identically to the other attendants.

Serving as best man was Leon Martin and groomsman was Jerry Gewin, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Ranny Johnson and Roy Witherington and ring bearer was Glen Henderson, brother of the bride.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a sheath of mint green wool with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations, tied with pink and white ribbons. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige lace dress with brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlor where the bride's table was covered with white net over a pink cloth. Central decor for the table was a miniature bride and groom beneath an arch, encircled with a floral arrangement. The tiered wedding cake, also adorned with pink roses and a miniature bridal couple, was served by Miss Linda Eubanks of Bastrop. Pouring pink punch at the opposite end of the table was Miss Linda Johnson of Monroe and presiding at the guest book was Miss Jean Warner, Monroe.

For travel when the couple left on a short wedding trip the bride changed into a rose wool suit with brown mink hat and brown lizard shoes and bag. Upon their return they will be at home at 3511 Hippolite in Monroe.

Mrs. Gewin graduated from LaSalle high school and is employed at Monroe Building and Loan Association. Mr. Gewin graduated from Bastrop high school and is attending Northeast Louisiana State College here while also employed by International Paper Company.

On Dit'

by Denise

Signs of coming Spring were noted about town this week, with some hours of sunshine a welcome, if temporary, relief from low temperatures. When MABEL RATLIFF was hostess for luncheon on Wednesday, her table was a vision of springtime in shades of pink and rose. The party was held on the porch of Bayou DeSiard country club, where the table was covered with a pink cloth and appointed with ruby goblets. Five bouquets of pale pink rosebuds arranged in ruby compotes marked the length of the table. Places for twelve guests were marked by tiny pink cards nestled in ceramic roses.

Dessert was baked Alaska.

Summer styles are traditionally seen first on winter and spring cruises, and a foretaste of these were seen at the Cotillion club's party Friday night. Light, colorful clothes were worn to the dance, which carried out the theme of "Midwinter Cruise." Large travel posters decorated the Paragon ballroom and surrounding the bandstand were pieces of equipment from the ship's bridge: engine telegraph, steering sector, standing compass. Cutouts of ships and anchors and life preservers labelled "U.S.S. Cotillion" were placed on individual tables. Music for dancing was provided by the Fabulous Carrousels between the hours of nine and one.

Several informal parties this week honored GUSSIE WILLIS, here from Headland, Alabama, as the guest of her daughter, CHARLOTTIE DENT. On Thursday, MARGE MULLENS entertained with a small luncheon at home. Six guests were seated at a table centered with a white ironstone tiered container filled with pink perfection camellias. Marge served devilled oysters, green beans with water chestnuts, and a molded pineapple - cucumber salad, with lemon meringue pie for dessert.

On Friday afternoon, FAY WINK and her mother, ADA MAE TODD, were hostesses at a bridge party in the Wink home, honoring Gussie. Two tables of players took part in the games, with prizes going to LUCILLE BUCKLEY, high; and VETTYE BERNHARDT, low. The hostesses served lemon supreme cake with lemon sauce and whipped cream.

An unusual menu was featured when VIRGINIA WARNER invited Gussie and four guests for lunch on Monday. With broiled quail on toast, Virginia served rice souffle and a salad of raw broccoli with boiled eggs, onions, and lemon. Her dessert was fudge cake . . . Gussie left for home yesterday, travelling with NELL FAUCETT, who was driving to Uniontown, Alabama, to visit relatives for the weekend.

Visitors in Clarksdale, Mississippi last weekend were BESS and SOL COURTMAN and their sons, HARRY, NED, and JEFF. They were the guests of relatives there.

Three hundred thirty-five members and guests attended the oyster roast at Bayou DeSiard country club last Friday night. MERILYNN and BOB CLAY, SARA and H. W. McSHERRY were hosts for one small group which was celebrating LUCY and HARRELL WEBSTER's twenty - fifth wedding anniversary . . . Out of town guests who attended with JANE and JOHN SHERROUSE, JR. were LIBBY and JACK HOWE of Houston, Texas.

Wednesday at noon, BETTY MABRAY and HELEN ROBERTS entertained at a bridge luncheon at the Mabray home honoring MARGARET ANN TIDWELL, who is to move to Alexandria in the near future. Twelve guests attended the party. Included on the menu were chicken divan with tossed green salad and homemade rolls; and lime cream pie for dessert. Following lunch, three tables of players took part in bridge games, with prizes going to CHARLOTTIE DENT, high, and DIBBLE PATE, travelling prize.

This week we were privileged to visit the lovely new home of the TOM KELLERS on Country Club drive. A curving drive approaches the white colonial style house with its columns and fan-lighted entrance. As one stands in the hall with its white marble floor, the dining room is to the left and living room to the right. Straight ahead is the hall which extends across the back of the house and the door, twin to the entrance, which opens onto the columned back gallery with its beautiful view of the water.

Living and dining room and back hall are all painted a restful shade of celadon green, with carpeting in deeper tone. Draperies are silk brocade, also in shades of celadon, with sheer white silk glass curtains beneath. The green makes a charming background for the Keller's antique furniture.

The kitchen beyond is planned for a family whose members all enjoy cooking. A full size range is here, plus an extra range top built into the white Formica counter; a second oven; and a charcoal grill. Flooring is white terrazzo, with panelling and cabinets in walnut - stained birch. An antique walnut table and cane back chairs stand in the breakfast corner. Here draperies in shades of blue, green, and turquoise hang over casement windows facing the water from two directions.

At the opposite end of the house, in the master bedroom wing, are a sewing - work room offering abundant storage space; a large cedar closet; two dressing rooms and divided bath; as well as the spacious master bedroom itself. This room, at the rear of the house with windows on three sides, is carpeted in green with pale green walls and white silk draperies. A pair of easy chairs covered in a print of blue and green roses on white stand before the large rear window with its view of the water. Furniture here includes an heirloom walnut four-poster with full tester, wardrobe, and dresser.

Upstairs are three bedrooms and two baths, with much space in eaves and dormers utilized for storage. Daughter MARY TOM's room is carpeted in orange, with orange quilted coverlets on the twin beds. Draperies are of white silk, and a white chair is bound in orange. Orange accessories are used in the white tiled bath.

Hypochondriacs
Spend the winter at the bottom of Florida and the summer on top of the Adirondiacs.
You go to Paris and live on champagne, wine and cognac.
If you're a dipsomognac.
If you're a manic - depressive
You don't go anywhere where you won't be cheered up, and people say "There, there" if your bills are excessive.
But you stick around and work day and night and night and day with your nose to the sawmill
If you're nawmill.

Mrs. Haas Speaker For Town And Country Club

The sunporch overlooking Bayou DeSiard at the Leo Terzia Jr. home was the setting of the January meeting of the Town and Country Garden Club Friday afternoon. Mrs. John Mullens and Mrs. Floyd Stone Jr. assisted Mrs. Terzia in serving coffee.

Mrs. A. B. Myatt Jr. conducted the meeting and welcomed a trio of guests including Mrs. Bradley Trimble, Mrs. Charles Garretson and Mrs. Roy McCue.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Henry Haas Jr., who gave an informative discussion and exhibition of the art of combining permanent flowers or foliage with real ones for lasting beauty. In one arrangement she combined long fronds of live oleander foliage with long stemmed artificial oleander blossoms, creating the effect of an all fresh bouquet.

Members attending were Mrs. Nelson Abell Jr., Mrs. Amos Shelton, Mrs. John D. Mullens, Mrs. Leo Terzia Jr., Mrs. David Garrett Jr., Mrs. R. L. Vanderpool Jr., Mrs. J. A. Salisbury, Mrs. R. H. Easterling, Mrs. John I. Neel, Mrs. Roy Johns, Mrs. Robert Clay, Mrs. A. B. Myatt Jr., Mrs. Lon Heuer, Mrs. Harry L. Stone, Mrs. N. Klam, Mrs. Burchall Liles, Mrs. Thomas Hayes Jr., Mrs. J. F. Stone Jr., Mrs. Haynes Harkey, Mrs. Lee Carbarey, Mrs. W. E. Smith Jr., Mrs. Branton H. Kellogg and Mrs. Charles Searcy.

Signs of coming Spring were noted about town this week, with some hours of sunshine a welcome, if temporary, relief from low temperatures. When MABEL RATLIFF was hostess for luncheon on Wednesday, her table was a vision of springtime in shades of pink and rose. The party was held on the porch of Bayou DeSiard country club, where the table was covered with a pink cloth and appointed with ruby goblets. Five bouquets of pale pink rosebuds arranged in ruby compotes marked the length of the table. Places for twelve guests were marked by tiny pink cards nestled in ceramic roses.

Dessert was baked Alaska.

Summer styles are traditionally seen first on winter and spring cruises, and a foretaste of these were seen at the Cotillion club's party Friday night. Light, colorful clothes were worn to the dance, which carried out the theme of "Midwinter Cruise." Large travel posters decorated the Paragon ballroom and surrounding the bandstand were pieces of equipment from the ship's bridge: engine telegraph, steering sector, standing compass. Cutouts of ships and anchors and life preservers labelled "U.S.S. Cotillion" were placed on individual tables. Music for dancing was provided by the Fabulous Carrousels between the hours of nine and one.

Several informal parties this week honored GUSSIE WILLIS, here from Headland, Alabama, as the guest of her daughter, CHARLOTTIE DENT. On Thursday, MARGE MULLENS entertained with a small luncheon at home. Six guests were seated at a table centered with a white ironstone tiered container filled with pink perfection camellias. Marge served devilled oysters, green beans with water chestnuts, and a molded pineapple - cucumber salad, with lemon meringue pie for dessert.

On Friday afternoon, FAY WINK and her mother, ADA MAE TODD, were hostesses at a bridge party in the Wink home, honoring Gussie. Two tables of players took part in the games, with prizes going to LUCILLE BUCKLEY, high; and VETTYE BERNHARDT, low. The hostesses served lemon supreme cake with lemon sauce and whipped cream.

An unusual menu was featured when VIRGINIA WARNER invited Gussie and four guests for lunch on Monday. With broiled quail on toast, Virginia served rice souffle and a salad of raw broccoli with boiled eggs, onions, and lemon. Her dessert was fudge cake . . . Gussie left for home yesterday, travelling with NELL FAUCETT, who was driving to Uniontown, Alabama, to visit relatives for the weekend.

Visitors in Clarksdale, Mississippi last weekend were BESS and SOL COURTMAN and their sons, HARRY, NED, and JEFF. They were the guests of relatives there.

Three hundred thirty-five members and guests attended the oyster roast at Bayou DeSiard country club last Friday night. MERILYNN and BOB CLAY, SARA and H. W. McSHERRY were hosts for one small group which was celebrating LUCY and HARRELL WEBSTER's twenty - fifth wedding anniversary . . . Out of town guests who attended with JANE and JOHN SHERROUSE, JR. were LIBBY and JACK HOWE of Houston, Texas.

Wednesday at noon, BETTY MABRAY and HELEN ROBERTS entertained at a bridge luncheon at the Mabray home honoring MARGARET ANN TIDWELL, who is to move to Alexandria in the near future. Twelve guests attended the party. Included on the menu were chicken divan with tossed green salad and homemade rolls; and lime cream pie for dessert. Following lunch, three tables of players took part in bridge games, with prizes going to CHARLOTTIE DENT, high; and DIBBLE PATE, travelling prize.

This week we were privileged to visit the lovely new home of the TOM KELLERS on Country Club drive. A curving drive approaches the white colonial style house with its columns and fanlighted entrance. As one stands in the hall with its white marble floor, the dining room is to the left and living room to the right. Straight ahead is the hall which extends across the back of the house and the door, twin to the entrance, which opens onto the columned back gallery with its beautiful view of the water.

Living and dining room and back hall are all painted a restful shade of celadon green, with carpeting in deeper tone. Draperies are silk brocade, also in shades of celadon, with sheer white silk glass curtains beneath. The green makes a charming background for the Keller's antique furniture.

In the living room are a Victorian love seat covered with green velvet, side chairs in rose brocade, an old grand piano, a fascinating corner what - not, and other interesting pieces.

The kitchen beyond is planned for a family whose members all enjoy cooking. A full size range is here, plus an extra range top built into the white Formica counter; a second oven; and a charcoal grill. Flooring is white terrazzo, with panelling and cabinets in walnut - stained birch. An antique walnut table and cane back chairs stand in the breakfast corner. Here draperies in shades of blue, green, and turquoise hang over casement windows facing the water from two directions.

At the opposite end of the house, in the master bedroom wing, are a sewing - work room offering abundant storage space; a large cedar closet; two dressing rooms and divided bath; as well as the spacious master bedroom itself. This room, at the rear of the house with windows on three sides, is carpeted in green with pale green walls and white silk draperies. A pair of easy chairs covered in a print of blue and green roses on white stand before the large rear window with its view of the water. Furniture here includes an heirloom walnut four-poster with full tester, wardrobe, and dresser.

Upstairs are three bedrooms and two baths, with much space in eaves and dormers utilized for storage. Daughter MARY TOM's room is carpeted in orange, with orange quilted coverlets on the twin beds. Draperies are of white silk, and a white chair is bound in orange. Orange accessories are used in the white tiled bath.

Hypochondriacs
Spend the winter at the bottom of Florida and the summer on top of the Adirondiacs.
You go to Paris and live on champagne, wine and cognac.
If you're a dipsomognac.
If you're a manic - depressive
You don't go anywhere where you won't be cheered up, and people say "There, there" if your bills are excessive.
But you stick around and work day and night and night and day with your nose to the sawmill
If you're nawmill.

Musical Coterie Member Listed In Who's Who

Mrs. Joe Caskey was hostess for the January 11 meeting of the Musical Coterie in the home of Mrs. Briscoe Trousdale Jr.

During the business session conducted by Miss Gertrude Sandrock, president, it was announced that Mrs. Tex Kilpatrick, a Musical Coterie member, has been honored by being included in the recently published "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

A leave of absence for remainder of the season was granted Miss Jennie Bankhead.

In giving the study "Romantic

In giving the study "Romantic in the Romantic Era," Miss Sandrock stressed that being a great musician and composer did not necessarily make one a great composer of opera. She pointed out that Mozart, alone, among the "greats" was endowed with the gifts of drama as well as musicianship.

The program by operatic composers included "To the Evening Star," Wagner, played by Mrs. Edward Hayward Jr.; "Sextette" [illegible] Wagner, played by Mrs. James Murphy; "[illegible]" "Il Trovatore" by Verdi, played by Mrs. Phanor Pecot; "Rigoletto Paraphrase" by Verdi, played by Mrs. Eloise Stallings and "[illegible] at the Sacré [illegible]" [illegible] Saens, played by Mrs. Grayson Guthrie Jr.

Members present were Mrs. B. D. Albritton, Mrs. [illegible], Mrs. [illegible], Mrs. James G. Caldwell, Mrs. Joe Caskey, Mrs. Grayson Guthrie Jr., Mrs. W. M. Harper, Mrs. Edward Hayward Jr., Mrs. Tex Kilpatrick, Mrs. [illegible] Marshall, Mrs. Kenwick Martin, Mrs. Hugh G. California Seeks To Regain Fashion Field

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Recently, "Women's Wear Daily," new paper of the fashion business, devoted a page of sketches to the styles of a California designer, saying, "Paris has Chanel, California has Irene."

High praise, indeed, yet many more women know the name of Chanel than they do of Irene, except from some of the old-time movie goers who remember when she was one of the Hollywood greats.

In the Thirties California was [illegible] the brand of American fashion. [illegible] Irene, Adrian, Travis Banton, Orry-Kelly, [illegible] who created for the great movie studios were better known than the Paris designers of the day.

After the decline of Hollywood, California sank to the status of a source for bathing suits and sportswear. Not till the advent of James Galanos did the fashion world look again to California.

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Thousands of women are WEIGHING in because they do not want to be WAY out, in the wrong places. Thousands have joined and are joining my new 8-Week Beauty Improvement Plan which has been running in this newspaper.

These women have decided to see how much they can improve their appearance in just eight short weeks. Many of them wish to lose 15 or 20 pounds in that time, while others want to overcome some other figure defect.

Today, I want to give these women some more help with calorie counting. I can understand the old expression, "I eat like a bird," after having lived in the country and feeding the birds all winter each year. (By the way, did you know that bluejays are just mad about peanuts (still in the hull)? They dive-bomb for them and often take two away at a time. They can hear the sound of the nuts hitting the snow or ice a mile away.)

Birds do not eat very much at a time, but they do eat all day long. Many women have trouble reducing because they do not realize how the calories in little tidbits — a small taste of this or that, a few nuts or just one chocolate cream, etc. — count up.

They ARE sincere when they say they do not eat much. They really don't eat three large meals a day. They may even skip one meal and eat lightly at the two others. But, they more than make up for it with many small items. You simply MUST count everything you eat and include it in your daily calorie count.

If you are counting calories for a loss of, say, 15 or 20 pounds in the next eight weeks, you must spend your calories carefully if both your looks and your health are to improve. Beauty and malnutrition do not go together.

Build your reducing diet with lean meat, fish, sea foods, fowl, eggs, skim milk, cottage cheese, fruits, fruit juice and vegetables. Also include some whole grain products. Cut down on the carbohydrates and fats.

SECOND OF EIGHT

Many of you are going into the second week of the 8-Week Beauty Improvement Plan. This is the point at which you could become discouraged. Don't give up! Cut calories a little lower if your weight line has leveled off.

PREVENTS SPATTER

A piece of wax paper on the work area of your stove will eliminate much of the cleaning after you finish cooking.

Area Couple Plans Nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. George Abrams of Natchez, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Elise May to Homer A. Rushing, son of Mrs. Rose B. Rushing and Homer H. Rushing, Natchez. The wedding will be solemnized on February 14.

Miss Abrams is a graduate of Natchez high school and attended the University of Mississippi. She is a member of Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority and is presently employed in Natchez.

Mr. Rushing attended the Cathedral School in Natchez and will receive his B.A. degree in January from the school of advertising at the University of Mississippi in Oxford.

Cheniere HDC To Assist In Mother's March

Mrs. Viola Hutson was hostess to members of Cheniere Home Demonstration club for the January meeting. Mrs. J. L. Mann presided and led the club collect and pledge to the flag.

Mrs. Ruby McDaniel and Mrs. Gloria Greer entertained with a vocal duet "Work for the Night is Coming." During the business session the president appointed various committees and leaders for the year. Several members volunteered to help with the Mother's March of Dimes Drive.

Mrs. Audrey Dawson, home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration on "New Techniques in Clothing Construction."

Refreshments were served by the hostess to Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. L. J. Mann, Mrs. Ruby McDaniel, Mrs. Johnny Carter, Mrs. Glenda Mann, Mrs. Jimmy Greer, Mrs. H. P. Carter, Mrs. J. O. Hardison, Mrs. H. U. Parsons, Mrs. Billy Wayne Heckford and Mrs. Terry Owens.

Miss Robert Is Bride Of John Dunn

Miss Mary Alice Robert, daughter of Mrs. Lily Harper and Dave Robert, both of West Monroe, became the bride of John Carl Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Dunn of Sikes, Saturday, January 12 at 7 p.m. in Pleasant Hill Congregational Church.

The pastor, Rev. Leon Sims, performed the double ring vows before an altar decorated with white gladioli in tall crystal vases. Miss Ann Beard, organist, presented a program of nuptial music and the traditional wedding marches.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white brocade sheath with scoop neckline and elbow length sleeves. Her accessories were white and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations.

Miss Martha Ann Anding served as maid of honor and Miss LaRue Robert was bridesmaid. They wore street length dresses of white silk organza with lace bodices and belled skirts and carried bouquets of white carnations. Flower girl was Miss Ann Dunn, cousin of the bride, who wore a rose silk organza frock styled similar to the other attendants' and carried a white lace basket from which she scattered flower petals.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the social room of the church. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink carnations and stephanotis. The tiered wedding cake was placed at one end of the table with the crystal punch bowl opposite. Miss Martha Ann Anding and Miss LaRue Robert assisted Mrs. Leon Sims in serving.

LOUIS BARG

Honors Due At Services This Week

Several members of Isador Liebreich Lodge No. 208 of B'nai B'rith, will be honored at Sabbath services Friday of Congregation B'Nai Israel of Monroe, it was announced by Rabbi Martin I. Silverman, spiritual leader of the congregation.

Four members, Joe Kusin, Simeon Heninger, Albert Marx and Joe E. Marx Sr., will be recognized for more than 50 years continuous membership in the Lodge. Pins and certificates will be presented to them by Louis Barg of Forest City, Arkansas, president of District Grand Lodge No. 7 of B'nai B'rith.

INSTALLATION

In addition, Barg will install the Lodge's incoming officers for 1963. These include Henry Gerson, president; Louis Masur Jr., vice president; Morris Blumenthal, second vice president; Eugene Cahn, financial secretary; Arthur Brueck, corresponding secretary; David M. Kaplan, treasurer. Also being installed will be Board managers, David M. Kaplan, Saul Mintz, Jakob Strauss and Robert Bahcall.

B'nai B'rith is the world's oldest and largest Jewish service organization. It was founded in New York City in 1843. The Isador Liebreich Lodge, of Monroe, was chartered in 1874, and is the second oldest Lodge in Louisiana.

Officers Selected For Coming Year At Grace Church

Thomas W. Leigh, Monroe attorney, last week was elected senior warden of the ventry of Grace Episcopal Church for the coming year. The election was held at the annual meeting of the church congregation.

Other officers elected for the year 1963 include James E. Murphy, junior warden; Tom C. Standifer, treasurer, and E. Coleman Rowland, secretary.

The congregation also named five new members to the vestry. They are Clark G. Boyce, Joe H. Dixon, W. Derwood Cann, E. Coleman Rowland and J. Floyd Stone Jr.

The five will serve for three years. They replace William D. Brown, George M. Snellings Jr., Henry Bernstein, George Mouk and Pete Haddad.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

Is it right for Christians to be ambitious? Should we wish to be prominent in Christian circles? L.J.

Lack of any ambition would be fatal to anyone, Christians or not. Everyone should have a normal amount of ambition. It takes ambition to make an honest living; to get up in the morning; to wash the dishes; even to mail a letter. So, let's not eradicate ambition altogether.

Selfish ambition is another thing. The heart of sin is ego or self-centeredness — this is what Christ meant by denial of self.

It can best be explained this way: If we are ambitious for self glory, this is wrong! If we want to become well known for the glorification of our ego, that is sinful. Paul said, "I (my ego) has been crucified with Christ." God looks upon our motives. For example, if we want to get a higher education just to inflate our pride, then the motivation is wrong. But if education is a means of serving God and others better, then the desire is justified. So, anything that is selfish is wrong — anything that is for God's glory is right.

Our greatest ambition should be to glorify Christ, and to be conformed to His image.

HIGHWAY EVANGELISM

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Southern Baptist headquarters notes that members in two states have made plans for "highway evangelism."

In Tulsa, Okla., the Baptist Brotherhood is financing billboards, urging church attendance, on every major highway entering the city. In Jackson, Miss., the Mississippi Baptist Convention planned similar signs on main highways entering the state at the state line.

Church Plans School Here On Visitation

A training school for inspiration and instruction on church visitation will be held at the First Christian Church in Monroe, beginning today and continuing through Saturday, January 26.

The theme of the institute will be "The Power to Witness," and the guest leader will be the Rev. Corvel Lile, minister of the First Christian Church in Lafayette. Rev. Lile has had extensive experience in conducting visitation evangelism campaigns.

SCHEDULE

To begin the Institute, the host pastor, John O. Stewart, will preach this morning at 10:50 on the topic, "Power To Witness." Rev. Lile will speak at the evening worship service at 7 on the theme, "The Will to Evangelize." Various discussion groups with men, women and young people are planned throughout the week.

PRAYER VIGIL

This special effort will be climaxed by a 24-hour prayer vigil in the church sanctuary beginning at 6 a.m. Friday, January 25, and ending at 6 a.m. Saturday morning.

The prayer vigil is coordinated with the brotherhood program of the Christian Churches National Department of Evangelism, whereby prayers are being given in some Christian Church at all times during the period from January 1 through Easter Sunday.

Ingathering Drive Here Is Completed

The annual Harvest Ingathering fund drive of the Monroe Seventh-Day Adventist Church was successfully completed recently.

This announcement was made by Ray Purcell Jr., local director of missions appeals, who said, "The people have demonstrated their regard for the less fortunately situated peoples by their generous contributions to the appeal made by the Monroe Seventh Day Adventist Church."

Funds collected by volunteer workers during the drive go toward extending the church's worldwide ministry of welfare, disaster aid, educational, medical and spiritual services at home as well as in over 196 other countries.

CENTERS

The church operates 705 health and welfare centers in addition to 210 medical units around the world. Locally, it operates a health and welfare center on Tichell Road just off of Winnsboro Highway.

Church officials said that many persons receive help from this source, and asked that anyone in need of such help or knowing of others in need, contact them at phones 323-3958 or FA 3-8902.

WADE B. EAST

Wade B. East Is Speaker At Jonesboro

The superintendent of the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe, Wade B. East, will be featured speaker at the Wednesday quarterly meeting of the Jackson Parish Baptist Woman's Missionary Union at the First Baptist Church of Jonesboro.

He will discuss the work of the children's home which is supported by state Baptist and other donors. The meeting will open at 9:30 a.m., and East will speak at 11 a.m.

East joined the children's home here last August after serving four years as executive director of Moor Children's Home in El Paso, Texas.

Dr. Ethel Trice Church Speaker

Featured speaker at 7 p.m. services today at Southside Methodist Church here will be Dr. Ethel Trice, associate professor of health and physical education at Northeast State College.

Her appearance is under sponsorship of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the church, of which Mrs. Callie Crow is president. The event is in observance of Guild Month.

IN RELIGION

KINGFISHER, Okla. (AP) — The Rev. Karl Baugart, Lutheran pastor here, has his home basement filled with power and hand tools, and does much of the church repair work.

The One Mystery That Defies Man's Genius

Man invents a rocket that can hit the moon. He splits the atom . . . breaks the sound barrier . . . invents mechanism more efficient than skilled human hands and trained human minds.

He pumps oil from wells drilled into the ocean floor . . . turns deserts into lush fields and vineyards . . . cruises under the Polar Ice Cap in cold Arctic seas in atomic-powered submarines. In his challenging drive to uncover the secrets of the vast universe, he proposes now to bore a hole through the crust of the earth to see what's inside.

By his own genius, man has opened a veritable Pandora's box of long-held secrets of his physical world. And some people . . . impressed by this progress . . . seem to think that science will ultimately discover the answer even to the mystery of life itself.

This, we believe, is a futile, presumptuous and unworthy hope. For here the secret is held not in the physical matter of the universe . . . not in things that can be measured, weighed and physically analyzed . . . but in the divine and invisible hands of the Supreme Being Who created all that is and Who, by obvious design, permits us to see some things only through "dark glasses."

The slide rules and test tubes of science offer no hope of answering life's most important questions: Is there a God? What is God like? Whence have we come . . . why are we here? . . . what is our final destiny? If we are the chosen of God . . . the only creature gifted with the promise of eternal life . . . why are our lives so often plagued by evil and misfortune?

These questions, some people say, are impossible to answer. Nobody, they contend, knows what God is like. Having no material proof, all we can do is to have faith — to hope, pray and live righteously. Catholics, however, are convinced that God has clearly and plainly told us what He is like, why we are here, how we must live, what is our ultimate destiny. Science cannot tell us these things, but religion does.

Whether you are Catholic or not . . . believer or unbeliever . . . you will find a rich spiritual reward by reading the evidence which provides Catholics with a satisfying answer to life's most vital and, to some, its most frightening questions.

FREE — A highly interesting pamphlet explaining Who is God . . . What God is like . . . The mystery of three Persons in one God . . . Man's relation to God . . . Why we know there is a God. Write today . . . ask for Pamphlet No. KC-57. It will be mailed in a plain wrapper. Nobody will call on you.

LOUIS BARG

Honors Due At Services This Week

Several members of Isador Liebreich Lodge No. 208 of B'nai B'rith, will be honored at Sabbath services Friday of Congregation B'Nai Israel of Monroe, it was announced by Rabbi Martin I. Silverman, spiritual leader of the congregation.

Four members, Joe Kusin, Simeon Heninger, Albert Marx and Joe E. Marx Sr., will be recognized for more than 50 years continuous membership in the Lodge. Pins and certificates will be presented to them by Louis Barg of Forest City, Arkansas, president of District Grand Lodge No. 7 of B'nai B'rith.

INSTALLATION

In addition, Barg will install the Lodge's incoming officers for 1963. These include Henry Gerson, president; Louis Masur Jr., vice president; Morris Blumenthal, second vice president; Eugene Cahn, financial secretary; Arthur Brueck, corresponding secretary; David M. Kaplan, treasurer. Also being installed will be Board managers, David M. Kaplan, Saul Mintz, Jakob Strauss and Robert Bahcall.

B'nai B'rith is the world's oldest and largest Jewish service organization. It was founded in New York City in 1843. The Isador Liebreich Lodge, of Monroe, was chartered in 1874, and is the second oldest Lodge in Louisiana.

Officers Selected For Coming Year At Grace Church

Thomas W. Leigh, Monroe attorney, last week was elected senior warden of the ventry of Grace Episcopal Church for the coming year. The election was held at the annual meeting of the church congregation.

Other officers elected for the year 1963 include James E. Murphy, junior warden; Tom C. Standifer, treasurer, and E. Coleman Rowland, secretary.

The congregation also named five new members to the vestry. They are Clark G. Boyce, Joe H. Dixon, W. Derwood Cann, E. Coleman Rowland and J. Floyd Stone Jr.

The five will serve for three years. They replace William D. Brown, George M. Snellings Jr., Henry Bernstein, George Mouk and Pete Haddad.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

Is it right for Christians to be ambitious? Should we wish to be prominent in Christian circles? L.J.

Lack of any ambition would be fatal to anyone, Christians or not. Everyone should have a normal amount of ambition. It takes ambition to make an honest living; to get up in the morning; to wash the dishes; even to mail a letter. So, let's not eradicate ambition altogether.

Selfish ambition is another thing. The heart of sin is ego or self-centeredness — this is what Christ meant by denial of self.

It can best be explained this way: If we are ambitious for self glory, this is wrong! If we want to become well known for the glorification of our ego, that is sinful. Paul said, "I (my ego) has been crucified with Christ." God looks upon our motives. For example, if we want to get a higher education just to inflate our pride, then the motivation is wrong. But if education is a means of serving God and others better, then the desire is justified. So, anything that is selfish is wrong — anything that is for God's glory is right.

Our greatest ambition should be to glorify Christ, and to be conformed to His image.

HIGHWAY EVANGELISM

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Southern Baptist headquarters notes that members in two states have made plans for "highway evangelism."

In Tulsa, Okla., the Baptist Brotherhood is financing billboards, urging church attendance, on every major highway entering the city. In Jackson, Miss., the Mississippi Baptist Convention planned similar signs on main highways entering the state at the state line.

Church Plans School Here On Visitation

A training school for inspiration and instruction on church visitation will be held at the First Christian Church in Monroe, beginning today and continuing through Saturday, January 26.

The theme of the institute will be "The Power to Witness," and the guest leader will be the Rev. Corvel Lile, minister of the First Christian Church in Lafayette. Rev. Lile has had extensive experience in conducting visitation evangelism campaigns.

SCHEDULE

To begin the Institute, the host pastor, John O. Stewart, will preach this morning at 10:50 on the topic, "Power To Witness." Rev. Lile will speak at the evening worship service at 7 on the theme, "The Will to Evangelize." Various discussion groups with men, women and young people are planned throughout the week.

PRAYER VIGIL

This special effort will be climaxed by a 24-hour prayer vigil in the church sanctuary beginning at 6 a.m. Friday, January 25, and ending at 6 a.m. Saturday morning.

The prayer vigil is coordinated with the brotherhood program of the Christian Churches National Department of Evangelism, whereby prayers are being given in some Christian Church at all times during the period from January 1 through Easter Sunday.

Ingathering Drive Here Is Completed

This announcement was made by Ray Purcell Jr., local director of missions appeals, who said, "The people have demonstrated their regard for the less fortunately situated peoples by their generous contributions to the appeal made by the Monroe Seventh Day Adventist Church."

Funds collected by volunteer workers during the drive go toward extending the church's worldwide ministry of welfare, disaster aid, educational, medical and spiritual services at home as well as in over 196 other countries.

CENTERS

The church operates 705 health and welfare centers in addition to 210 medical units around the world. Locally, it operates a health and welfare center on Ticheli Road just off of Winnsboro Highway.

Church officials said that many persons receive help from this source, and asked that anyone in need of such help or knowing of others in need, contact them at phones 323-3958 or FA 3-8902.

WADE B. EAST

Wade B. East Is Speaker At Jonesboro

The superintendent of the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe, Wade B. East, will be featured speaker at the Wednesday quarterly meeting of the Jackson Parish Baptist Woman's Missionary Union at the First Baptist Church of Jonesboro.

He will discuss the work of the children's home which is supported by state Baptist and other donors. The meeting will open at 9:30 a.m., and East will speak at 11 a.m.

East joined the children's home here last August after serving four years as executive director of Moor Children's Home in El Paso, Texas.

Dr. Ethel Trice Church Speaker

Featured speaker at 7 p.m. services today at Southside Methodist Church here will be Dr. Ethel Trice, associate professor of health and physical education at Northeast State College.

Her appearance is under sponsorship of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the church, of which Mrs. Callie Crow is president. The event is in observance of Guild Month.

IN RELIGION

KINGFISHER, Okla. (AP) — The Rev. Karl Baugart, Lutheran pastor here, has his home basement filled with power and hand tools, and does much of the church repair work.

The One Mystery That Defies Man's Genius

Man invents a rocket that can hit the moon. He splits the atom . . . breaks the sound barrier . . . invents mechanism more efficient than skilled human hands and trained human minds.

He pumps oil from wells drilled into the ocean floor . . . turns deserts into lush fields and vineyards . . . cruises under the Polar Ice Cap in cold Arctic seas in atomic-powered submarines. In his challenging drive to uncover the secrets of the vast universe, he proposes now to bore a hole through the crust of the earth to see what's inside.

By his own genius, man has opened a veritable Pandora's box of long-held secrets of his physical world. And some people . . . impressed by this progress . . . seem to think that science will ultimately discover the answer even to the mystery of life itself.

This, we believe, is a futile, presumptuous and unworthy hope. For here the secret is held not in the physical matter of the universe . . . not in things that can be measured, weighed and physically analyzed . . . but in the divine and invisible hands of the Supreme Being Who created all that is and Who, by obvious design, permits us to see some things only through "dark glasses."

The slide rules and test tubes of science offer no hope of answering life's most important questions: Is there a God? What is God like? Whence have we come . . . why are we here? . . . what is our final destiny? If we are the chosen of God . . . the only creature gifted with the promise of eternal life . . . why are our lives so often plagued by evil and misfortune?

These questions, some people say, are impossible to answer. Nobody, they contend, knows what God is like. Having no material proof, all we can do is to have faith — to hope, pray and live righteously. Catholics, however, are convinced that God has clearly and plainly told us what He is like, why we are here, how we must live, what is our ultimate destiny. Science cannot tell us these things, but religion does.

Whether you are Catholic or not . . . believer or unbeliever . . . you will find a rich spiritual reward by reading the evidence which provides Catholics with a satisfying answer to life's most vital and, to some, its most frightening questions.

FREE — A highly interesting pamphlet explaining Who is God . . . What God is like . . . The mystery of three Persons in one God . . . Man's relation to God . . . Why we know there is a God. Write today . . . ask for Pamphlet No. KC-57. It will be mailed in a plain wrapper. Nobody will call on you.

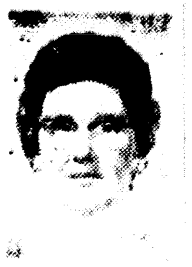
GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Landscaping Ideas Abound



By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

As usual, Dr. John Wright brought a refreshing and very informative program to us last Wednesday on T.V., and to the Garden Center. I say refreshing, because he had lovely golden mums (from the Louisiana Tech greenhouse) in the designs. These were the "Vibrant" mums. His teaching point for the program was how to use the same shape container with different designs.

The container used was a low rectangular ceramic bowl in shades of green, and black. For line materials he used the branches of the Japanese magnolia, now with buds, the winter honeysuckle, flowering quince, and furled banana plant leaves (from the greenhouse).

This is the in-between time of the year when we are hunting for plant materials for our arrangements. These designs, made by Dr. Wright gave us some excellent ideas. Even all green foliage makes a refreshing design for our home now. With quince, Dr. Wright combined narcissus foliage and Nephthytis in Japanese manner in one of the low dark green bowls.

LANDSCAPE DESIGN

Instead of describing in detail all the arrangements I would like to share with you one of Dr. Wright's articles on landscape design, which I feel would be quite helpful at this time of season. In the article "Unity In The Landscape Design," we are given the following information.

"It is very difficult to convince the average person who is interested in landscaping a property that he cannot gather ideas and materials from everyone that he knows. Unity is a most important quality to be sought in developing a landscape picture. The following article is quoted from an old book called, "Book of Landscape Gardening," by Frank A. Waugh. It is my hope that these observations will help each of you to do a better piece of work with your property and all of us in a better [illegible] of beautifying our town.

"Unity and coherence are not quite synonymous, yet the ideas are very closely related, and in any extensive composition are practically inseparable. Thus a number of objects of exactly the same sort placed together would undoubtedly secure unity without any effort for coherence; but several dissimilar objects may also be assembled in satisfying unity if, by some obvious relation or natural connection, they readily cohere.

"Unity in any landscape composition means that some one idea shall prevail throughout, and that all details shall be subordinate to it. Some particular style of expression must be determined upon and consistently adhered to, and the chosen style must not be varied except within wide limits of space. Every item of the composition, then, must contribute to the perfection of the predominant style, or must be vigorously expunged, no matter what its individual excellence.

CENTRAL CONTROL

"Unity is not to be realized unless the entire construction is under control of one mind, and this one directing mind must not only have a perfectly clear and definite conception of what the finished product is to be, but must also be attached to that ideal with such zeal that no item, however desirable by itself, shall be admitted if not in strictest harmony with the pervading spirit of the work.

"Practically this means that a definite plan should be made on paper. The unrecorded ideal, even of the artist whose conceptions are clearest, is sure to change in time, and since it must always require a considerable season to compass any landscape plans, the first keynote is likely to have been lost before the end is reached, and the latest additions are apt to be out of harmony with the earlier work. The plan should be drawn with good inks on durable paper, and it should be supplemented by written specifications. In both plans and specifications too great care cannot be taken, nor too deep a study made of the whole and of each of it's parts, for, as has already been pointed out, it is fatal to leave latitude for change of mind or to invite alterations. These plans, too, cannot descend too deeply into the details of the composition, for an unsympathetic treatment of the smallest items may mar the grandest conception.

MISCONCEPTION

Mistake is common at this point. Many people, even landscape gardeners, seem to think that if the general outlines of the plan are determined by a master artist, any construction and all minor matters may be left to the plantsman, the florist, or the man-of-all-work. On the contrary plans and specifications are not too explicit if they locate every lilac bush and spirea and clump of columbine, and if they demand that the lilac shall be a Frau Dammann, the spirea a prunifolia, and the columbine of the variety Skinneri."

Wednesday, a real treat is in store. Harvey Paige will bring back a program that has been asked for by many—"Bonzai Trees." He brought this program to us last fall and it was greatly enjoyed by many who are anxious to see it again. So, be watching.

All America Selections Announced

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Two zinnias, one a dwarf and the other a giant, and five new vegetables are the All-America Selections for 1963.

The choices sponsored by the garden seed industry of the United States and Canada, are:

Thumbelina, a tiny, compact zinnia with many colors represented in the double, 1¼-inch blooms on six-inch plants. It is a gold medal award winner.

Firecracker zinnia, a hybrid with scarlet, six-inch flowers on 36-inch, bushy plants. A silver medalist.

Greyzini summer squash, a gray Zucchini type hybrid, a heavy bearer of cucumber shape on strong, bushy plants.

BORDER

Thumbelina, which should make an attractive border for beds, walks or driveways, reportedly begins to bloom when less than three inches tall. It is entirely suitable for window and porch boxes, rockeries, wall garden and pots.

Firecracker's petals are quilled and light. All-America touts it as an exhibition flower, excellent for cut flower arrangements, for resistance to mildew, a zinnia problem in some areas.

Buttercrunch lettuce was developed at Cornell University. Because it is more resistant to hot weather, it is more useful over a longer growing season. The leaves are thick, crisp and deep green, with blanched insides.

The prolific Hercules squash has a small seed cavity, thick, rich orange flesh, sweet and dry, and has long-lasting storage quality. It matures in 82 days.

GREMLINS IN THE DARKROOM if you don't watch out! The negative of this picture was accidentally washed in warm water and started to melt and run. If it could be controlled, the results, as shown, can be humorous or weird. In most cases, however, negatives are spoiled by careless darkroom procedures.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

This is the time of year when it's a pleasure to work indoors in the darkroom rather than in the cold outdoors. But it's no pleasure to contend with water spots and dust which seem to have a remarkable affinity for negatives.

Water spots add a visual blemish to prints which can't very well be fixed. Dust shows up as tiny spots on the prints which then have to be painstakingly spotted out or retouched with pencil or paint.

It's a lot easier to eliminate water spots and dust in advance than to spend time and trouble afterwards trying to get rid of its effects.

Here is a list of suggestions gathered by Milt Frier who, as press representative for E. Leitz Inc., travels around the country's photo departments from darkroom to darkroom, making note of useful information or helpful innovations.

1. Avoid waterspots on negatives by using Photoflo or some other wetting agent. After washing, simply dunk your film in the wetting agent for one or two minutes, or as prescribed, before placing it up to dry.

2. Wipe off excess moisture before drying. Use a viscose sponge, place it lightly against the film surface and wipe lightly and slowly, front and back. A brand new sponge might shed particles, so test it first. In an emergency, if there is no sponge, use your first two fingers as a squeegee. Dip them in wetting agent, then run them down the film, removing the excess moisture.

SMALLER CLEANER

3. To help banish dust, add a small vacuum cleaner to the darkroom equipment. Use it weekly over the work tables and ceiling . . . especially in the corners.

4. Wipe down your enlarger, inside and out, with a damp cloth or with a special dust collecting cloth. Otherwise dust can bounce around inside every time you rack the enlarger up and down in focusing.

5. Double-condenser enlarger systems are especially dust conscious. Dust on top, middle or bottom of the condensers is reproduced along with the negative. And the smaller the enlarger lens opening, the sharper the dust particles appear. Suggestion: put an opal glass on top of the condensers to diffuse the light a bit. This will also diffuse most of the dust images from the print.

6. Ground your enlarger to help cut down the building up of static electricity which collects dust. "One fellow," says Frier, "has a grounded wire attached to a piece of metal near his enlarger. He touches the negative and negative carrier to this metal to discharge static electricity. I don't know if it really works. But it makes him happy!"

7. There are some negative-wiping cloths on the photo market which are lightly impregnated with silicone. They don't exactly make the negatives anti-static so that dust will not adhere. But they do make it easier to remove any dust that might collect by an air syringe or with a sable brush.

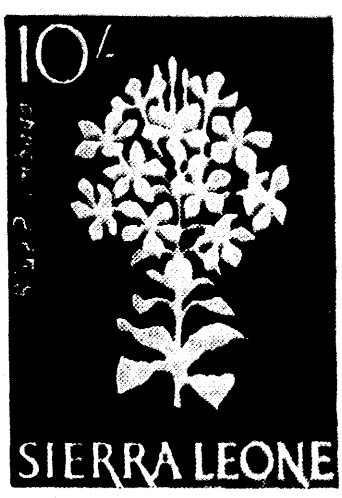
8. Those fortunate enough to have darkroom air conditioning or an air blower arrangement also have a possible dust dispenser INTO the darkroom. Check the air filters to see if they need replacing or put airfilters on any blowers bringing air into the room.

9. Wipe away hypo drippings. Hypo dries up into solid particles which add to the dust menace.

NEW DISPOSABLE

CHICAGO (UPI) — A "throw-away" oxygen mask just introduced to U. S. hospitals is a far cry from the heavy rubber mask commonly used for this type of treatment. The new disposable mask, introduced by Chemetron Corp.'s NCG division, weights but half an ounce.

Stamp News



Sierra Leone, a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations, has announced the issuance of 13 new stamps depicting various flowers found in this nation located on the west coast of Africa.

The name Sierra Leone was given to the country by a Portuguese adventurer, Pedro da Cintra, in 1460. He described it as "The Lion Mountains." Although it is principally an agricultural country, much of its wealth is derived from the production and export of iron ore and diamonds.

President John F. Kennedy announced that the U. S. Post Office Department would issue an Eleanor Roosevelt commemorative postage stamp Oct. 11, the 79th anniversary of her birth.

Mrs. Roosevelt became the first Lady since Martha Washington to appear on a U. S. postage stamp.

Denomination and first-day city of issue have not been announced as yet. Mrs. Roosevelt died last November.

Mrs. Roosevelt will become one of two women to be honored on U. S. postage stamps in 1963. Previously the Post Office Department announced a commemorative for aviatrix Amelia Earhart scheduled for issuance July 24.

Belgium has issued a set of five semi-postal stamps [illegible] of the Queens of Belgium. The [illegible] Louise Marie, Marie Henriette, Elizabeth, Astrid and Fabiola. The additional values on the stamps go to the Belgian [illegible]

Don't Delay Tree Planting

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Mrs. Gardener, if a tree is to be planted in your landscape this year, it is time to get busy. More and more homeowners are adding pines, and they are beautiful.

Loblolly is the safest to try as it will grow in almost any locality. Another species that grows as fast as the loblolly is the slash which resembles the longleaf pine. The pine is excellent because it grows fast, is an evergreen, is excellent for planting azaleas or camelias around, and furnishes pine needles for mulch. So if you want an evergreen, consider one of our stately pines.

DOGWOOD

Another popular tree is the dogwood. The roots of the dogwood grow very shallow so be sure to mulch around the trunk. If you have the opportunity check the growth of the roots in the woods. You will find roots running right close to top of the soil just under leaf mold. You can also observe the location of the dogwood in the woods. Always in a shady area, so try to give that dogwood you buy from the nursery and (select a small one) the same conditions which you find them growing in the woods.

The redbud and crabapple are trees that add color to the landscape which you may consider.

Another tree to consider is the cherry laurel this is another evergreen that is excellent for screening. The tree will grow 25 to 30 feet tall, but if you like it can be kept pruned.

Two other evergreen trees that cannot be overlooked are the magnolia and the live oak. These will grow well in this area and their growth is more rapid in rich damp soil.

If you have nandinas that are too tall, be sure to prune them. This is an excellent time. If the nandina is pruned now it will soon put out new growth so the plant will not be unsightly over a long period of time. Be sure to prune correctly. Don't prune all the canes the same height. Be sure to go down as low as 10 to 12 inches on some of the canes. If nandina is pruned correctly, it is a beautiful bushy plant.

APPROPRIATE DRESS

Appropriate dress is wearing the right clothes for the right occasion, and what is right for you.

Being well dressed and being aware of it will give you confidence, poise, and self respect. A well planned wardrobe will be suitable for your activities, your way of life, work and social life. Your dress must be becoming to you in design, color and fabric.

You, Mrs. Homemaker, should consider fashion, style and fad. Fashion is the style that is popular at the present time.

High style refers to the newest fashion expensive articles that only a few people can afford.

Fads are styles and tricks that are in fashion for a short time and are adopted by only a few.

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have good taste, then you will have the ability to decide what is right for you and what is right for the occasion. Good taste plus style equals elegance. No amount of money can buy these, but you can develop them.

COUNCIL MEETING

Your new president, Mrs. Fred Riser, asked that all council members be present for the meeting Friday at 10:00 a.m. The hostess clubs are: Better Homemaker, Sterlington, Lakeview, and Progressive. The guest speaker will be Dr. McKelvey.

NUTRITION LEADERS

Your training meeting will be held at the Agricultural Auditorium, Tuesday, January 22 at 9:30 a.m. - 11:30 a.m. Remember, it is your duty to be present, and if it is impossible for you to attend, get someone to take your place. Be sure your club is represented for the demonstration on foods from the freezer.

SIMPLE SEWING

Yours truly will be holding sewing workshops for beginners during the month of February. We have some openings in two workshops. February 5-6-7 and February 19-20-21. If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are interested in enrolling in either of the workshops call Mrs. Lila Morgan, Extension Secretary, at FA 3-2251.

A THOUGHT

Often times we grumble because we don't have what we want. We should be thankful that often times we don't get what we deserve.

Small Book On Flowers

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

It is called Flowers of the Holy Land, and the 17 color reproductions in it are from the original water color studies of Bertha Spafford Vester, one of the most remarkable people alive today. How Mrs. Vester ever had time to do these water colors is impossible to see.

Bertha Spafford Vester, because of her lifetime of humanitarian works in Jerusalem and the Holy Land, is called "Ummuna," which means "mother of us all" in Arabic. She has lived in this land of strife and strain all her life since she was taken there by Horatio Spafford, her father, who was formerly a prosperous Chicago lawyer.

STARTED COLONY

The Spaffords and a handful of others started what was called "the American Colony" in Jerusalem. They have remained there since the time Jerusalem was under Turkish rule in 1881, and they have established a number of humanitarian institutions by their own efforts.

The little book has a fine letter from General, the Lord Allenby, a sketch of Bertha Spafford Vester's life (she is now 84 years old and still going strong at her childrens' hospital) and a note by Norman Vincent Peale. The color reproductions are excellent and reveal the fact that Bertha Vester is a fine artist as well as great humanitarian. Anemones, tulips, wild morning glory, almonds, rock roses, lupins and many other flowers of field and roadside are the blossoms Mrs. Vester has chosen for this little book published by Hallmark Cards, Inc., Kansas City, Mo. last year at $2.

REQUESTS

The column is sometimes asked to recommend a book on the flowers of the Bible. There have been many different books on this subject, and most of them can be found in good libraries all over the country and in the libraries of churches. One of the most authoritative is by the husband and wife team of Harold and Alma Moldenke, Plants of the Bible, published by the Ronald Press, New York, 1952. It was one of the Chronica Botanica series which fact is enough to recommend it, alone.

This, of course, is a large volume, with references to all the plants referred to in the Bible. There are no color illustrations, but there are many beautiful illustrations and photographs taken from works of art and from the old herbals and books on plants.

6. Ground your enlarger to help cut down the building up of static electricity which collects dust. "One fellow," says Frier, "has a grounded wire attached to a piece of metal near his enlarger. He touches the negative and negative carrier to this metal to discharge static electricity. I don't know if it really works. But it makes him happy!"

7. There are some negative-wiping cloths on the photo market which are lightly impregnated with silicone. They don't exactly make the negatives anti - static so that dust will not adhere. But they do make it easier to remove any dust that might collect by an air syringe or with a sable brush.

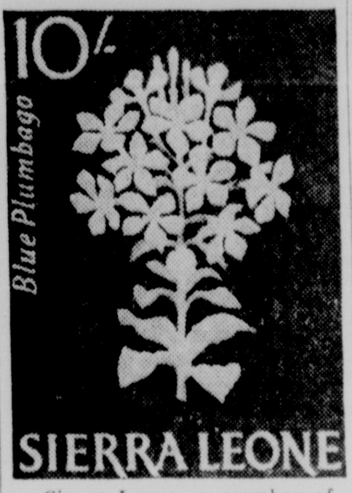
8. Those fortunate enough to have darkroom air conditioning or an air blower arrangement also have a possible dust dispenser INTO the darkroom. Check the air filters to see if they need replacing or put air-filters on any blowers bringing air into the room.

9. Wipe away hypo drippings. Hypo dries up into solid particles which add to the dust menace.

NEW DISPOSABLE

CHICAGO (UPI) — A "throw-away" oxygen mask just introduced to U. S. hospitals is a far cry from the heavy rubber mask commonly used for this type of treatment. The new disposable mask, introduced by Chemetron Corp.'s NCG division, weights but half an ounce.

Stamp News



Sierra Leone, a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations, has announced the issuance of 13 new stamps depicting various flowers found in this nation located on the west coast of Africa.

The name Sierra Leone was given to the country by a Portuguese adventurer, Pedro da Cintra, in 1460. He descibed it as "The Lion Mountains." Although it is principally an agricultural country, much of its wealth is derived from the production and export of iron ore and diamonds.

President John F. Kennedy announced that the U. S. Post Office Department would issue an Eleanor Roosevelt commemorative postage stamp on Oct. 11, the 79th anniversary of her birth.

Mrs. Roosevelt becomes the first Lady since Martha Washington to appear on a U. S. postage stamp.

Denomination and first - day city of issue have not been announced as yet. Mrs. Roosevelt died last November.

Mrs. Roosevelt will become one of two women to be honored on U. S. postage stamps in 1963. Previously the Post Office Department announced a commemorative for aviatrix Amelia Earhart scheduled for issuance July 24.

Belgium has issued a set of five semi - postals depicting portraits of the Queens of Belgium. The honored monarchs are: Louise Marie, Marie-Henriette, Elizabeth, Astrid and Fabiola. The additional values on the stamps go to the Belgium anti - tuberculosis fund.

Don't Delay Tree Planting

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Mrs. Gardener, if a tree is to be planted in your landscape this year, it is time to get busy. More and more homeowners are adding pines, and they are beautiful.

Loblolly is the safest to try as it will grow in almost any locality. Another species that grows as fast as the loblolly is the slash which resembles the longleaf pine. The pine is excellent because it grows fast, is an evergreen, is excellent for planting azaleas or camelias around, and furnishes pine needles for mulch. So if you want an evergreen, consider one of our stately pines.

DOGWOOD

Another popular tree is the dogwood. The roots of the dogwood grow very shallow so be sure to mulch around the trunk. If you have the opportunity check the growth of the roots in the woods. You will find roots running right close to top of the soil just under leaf mold. You can also observe the location of the dogwood in the woods. Always in a shady area, so try to give that dogwood you buy from the nursery and (select a small one) the same conditions which you find them growing in the woods.

The redbud and crabapple are trees that add color to the landscape which you may consider.

Another tree to consider is the cherry laurel this is another evergreen that is excellent for screening. The tree will grow 25 to 30 feet tall, but if you like it can be kept pruned.

Two other evergreen trees that cannot be overlooked are the magnolia and the live oak. These will grow well in this area and their growth is more rapid in rich damp soil.

If you have nandinas that are too tall, be sure to prune them. This is an excellent time. If the nandina is pruned now it will soon put out new growth so the plant will not be unsightly over a long period of time. Be sure to prune correctly. Don't prune all the canes the same height. Be sure to go down as low as 10 to 12 inches on some of the canes. If nandina is pruned correctly, it is a beautiful bushy plant.

APPROPRIATE DRESS

Appropriate dress is wearing the right clothes for the right occasion, and what is right for you.

Being well dressed and being aware of it will give you confidence, poise, and self respect. A well planned wardrobe will be suitable for your activities, your way of life, work and social life. Your dress must be becoming to you in design, color and fabric.

You, Mrs. Homemaker, should consider fashion, style and fad. Fashion is the style that is popular at the present time.

High style refers to the newest fashion expensive articles that only a few people can afford.

Fads are styles and tricks that are in fashion for a short time and are adopted by only a few.

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have good taste, then you will have the ability to decide what is right for you and what is right for the occasion. Good taste plus style equals elegance. No amount of money can buy these, but you can develop them.

COUNCIL MEETING

Your new president, Mrs. Fred Riser, asked that all council members be present for the meeting Friday at 10:00 a.m. The hostess clubs are: Better Homemaker, Sterlington, Lakeview, and Progressive. The guest speaker will be Dr. McKelvey.

NUTRITION LEADERS

Your training meeting will be held at the Agricultural Auditorium, Tuesday, January 22 at 9:30 a.m. - 11:30 a.m. Remember, it is your duty to be present, and if it is impossible for you to attend, get someone to take your place. Be sure your club is represented for the demonstration on foods from the freezer.

SIMPLE SEWING

Yours truly will be holding sewing workshops for beginners during the month of February. We have some openings in two workshops. February 5-6-7 and February 19-20-21. If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are interested in enrolling in either of the workshops call Mrs. Lila Morgan, Extension Secretary, at FA 3-2251.

A THOUGHT

Often times we grumble because we don't have what we want. We should be thankful that often times we don't get what we deserve.

Small Book On Flowers

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

It is called Flowers of the Holy Land, and the 17 color reproductions in it are from the original water color studies of Bertha Spafford Vester, one of the most remarkable people alive today. How Mrs. Vester ever had time to do these water colors is impossible to see.

Bertha Spafford Vester, because of her lifetime of humanitarian works in Jerusalem and the Holy Land, is called "Ummuna," which means "mother of us all" in Arabic. She has lived in this land of strife and strain all her life since she was taken there by Horatio Spafford, her father, who was formerly a prosperous Chicago lawyer.

STARTED COLONY

The Spaffords and a handful of others started what was called "the American Colony" in Jerusalem. They have remained there since the time Jerusalem was under Turkish rule in 1881, and they have established a number of humanitarian institutions by their own efforts.

The little book has a fine letter from General, the Lord Allenby, a sketch of Bertha Spafford Vester's life (she is now 84 years old and still going strong at her childrens' hospital) and a note by Norman Vincent Peale. The color reproductions are excellent and reveal the fact that Bertha Vester is a fine artist as well as great humanitarian. Anemones, tulips, wild morning glory, almonds, rock roses, lupins and many other flowers of field and roadside are the blossoms Mrs. Vester has chosen for this little book published by Hallmark Cards, Inc., Kansas City, Mo. last year at $2.

REQUESTS

The column is sometimes asked to recommend a book on the flowers of the Bible. There have been many different books on this subject, and most of them can be found in good libraries all over the country and in the libraries of churches. One of the most authoritative is by the husband and wife team of Harold and Alma Moldenke, Plants of the Bible, published by the Ronald Press, New York, 1952. It was one of the Chronica Botanica series which fact is enough to recommend it, alone.

This, of course, is a large volume, with references to all the plants referred to in the Bible. There are no color illustrations, but there are many beautiful illustrations and photographs taken from works of art and from the old herbals and books on plants.

Paris Downpours Nourish Fashion Umbrella Crop

PARIS (WNS) — Paris is en[illegible] its worst weather in years. And "[illegible]" is the right word for it because the downpours have brought umbrellas back to favor with smart Parisiennes.

With the advent of cover-everything raincoats, umbrellas became almost obsolete. Now the excessive rains have revived them as a new beguiling accessory.

1. The [illegible] umbrella with a fur-covered handle to warm the hands (most umbrella handles are so slickly chilling), and bobbing fur pompons on the edges to warm the heart.

2. The snowflake umbrella that is snow white and shaped like a snowflake. It has a few cutouts to enhance the snowflake effect and comes with handle and case covered in black felt.

3. The snow-rain umbrella that is also founded on the assumption that hands are cold when snow falls. Made of nylon printed in pony-skin design, it comes inside a cozy little muff of pony-skin fur. Change purse and make-up compartment are inside, too.

4. The "trousse de beaute" ("bundle of beauty") umbrella hoards in its tortoise-like handle (open to furnish little cupboards) for lipstick, comb, mirror, three cigarettes, matches and carfare.

5. For next spring, the perfume umbrella with a built-in atomizer to be filled with your favorite perfume or eau de toilette. The nylon can be a floral print to go with your floral perfume.

6. "Petticoat ruffles," a nylon umbrella in red, black or lavender that is entirely lined with three-inch ruffles of quilted "broderie Anglaise" in white nylon.

7. Turn-of-the-century umbrellas and parasols in black and white striped taffeta. They are trimmed with black silk tassels, black soutache embroidery or black ball-fringe.

8. The garden-party parasol in all-over embroidered and eyeleted white cotton or nylon made in St. Gallen, Switzerland. It comes with fern-green handle treated in moss-like felt particles and ornamented with an enormous cotton rose.

9. The flower umbrella, still being experimented with in designers' ateliers. Almost standard size, it is made of overlapping petals the size of an outspread hand, and contrived to look like a huge flower atop a green plastic stem twined with vinyl leaves. Sunflower, poppy, rose, carnation and camelia are in the assembly stage in some sample rooms.

Pettipants Mean Warmth With Glamour

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Plenty of women want to be warm in winter, no matter how glamorous they look. Until pettipants came along the only way to warmth was to wear certain garments which looked like long johns done in a mixture of brushed nylon and cotton.

But pettipants are a different story. Pettipants are brushed nylon with glamour. They're white, green or red. They have appliques on them, or gold thread embroidered edges. They're a pleasure to put on, and they feel heavenly.

While most lingerie makers are including a few pettipants in their lingerie groups, Scamprute has gone all out with the most complete line of pettipants around.

Under slim dresses, wear pettipants with slim leg cut, lace cutout decoration or bands. Have them in white, cocoa, scarlet, black or aqua. One model comes in scarlet on black underlay, a real dilly for timid souls who would never wear red in outerwear.

Slim-legged all-lace pettipants for cocktail dresses come in white, black and scarlet. Another style has a pleated flounce edging, while a third has saw-tooth lace to finish it.

An entire group is made with an invisible kick pleat, which boxes the leg for those who prefer it looser, or to wear under full-skirted dresses.

Natchez Couple Plans Wedding On February 23

'Barabbas' Opens Today At Paramount

The Columbia Pictures release has eight world - famous stars heading the multi - thousand cast: Anthony Quinn in the title role, Silvana Mangano, Arthur Kennedy, Kathy Jurado, Harry Andrews, Vittorio Gassman, Jack Palance and Ernest Borgnine. Nor are the actors alone among the world's finest movie - makers.

DIRECTOR

The director of "Barabbas" is Hollywood's Richard Fleischer. De Laurentiis himself is Italian. Chief cinematographer is Aldo Tonti, Italy's great camera man, a winner of two Silver Ribbons, the Italian equivalent of Hollywood's Oscar. The author of the novel is Swedish, and the script writer, English.

Perfect physical specimans were a 'must' for the film's spectacular gladiatorial contest staged in the 2,000 year - old arena in the ancient city of Verona, and the search for these gladiators covered every country on the European continent.

Nobel Prize - winner Par Lagerkvist's original story of Barabbas, the assassin and thief whose life was spared when Christ was condemned to take his place on the Cross, was fashioned into a screenplay by English poet-playwright Christopher Fry.

COLOR, EXCITEMENT

"Barabbas" combines the magnificent color and excitement of a brawling early Roman Empire with the intimate, dramatic struggle of a man's inner spirit.

Two years of preparation went into the making of "Barabbas," and few pictures have been more carefully researched. Experts spent many weeks in the museums of Rome, and especially of the Vatican. History was to be written and filmed with entertainment in mind, but fiction and guesswork was out of the question. From the world acclaim, the inspired labor and imagination that preceded production is truly reflected in what is now "Barabbas."

Durante, Day, Boyd Star In Happy Show

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of Billy Rose's "Jumbo," opens Friday at the Jim Theatre in Panavision and Metrocolor. It is the filmization of the memorable Broadway stage hit.

Its big cast, headed by Doris Day, Stephen Boyd, Jimmy Durante and Martha Raye, with Dean Jagger costarred also features 50 specialties by the world's top circus stars, including the endearing elephant who plays the title role, and its musical highlights include seven great song hits by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart.

Doris Day also performs in a dazzling ballet, Stephen Boyd makes his debut in a singing role, the inimitable Jimmy Durante does an hilarious clown act, Martha Raye enacts a "human cannon ball" and all four stars shine in the film's lavish and colorful musical numbers. These feature such songs as "Over and Over Again," "The Most Beautiful Girl in the World," "My Romance," "Why Can't I," "This Can't Be Love," "Little Girl Blue" and "Circus on Parade."

Set at the turn of the century, the story concerns the Wonder Circus owned by Pop Wonder (Jimmy Durante) and his daughter, Kitty (Doris Day), with Lulu (Martha Raye) also taking a proprietary interest due to her romantic attachment to Pop, who has been putting off the wedding day for fourteen years. Trouble sets in when it appears that the circus will be taken over by creditors because of Pop's penchant for gambling away the profits. Most heartbreaking of all, it will mean the sale of Jumbo, the circus' talented elephant star.

When things seem at their worst, Sam Rawlins (Stephen Boyd), handsome jack-of-all-circus-trades, appears out of the blue and gives every indication of not only saving the Wonder Circus but of capturing Kitty's heart. But then it turns out that he is the son of a rival circus owner (Dean Jagger) who wants to put the Wonder Circus out of the running. But in the end, Sam sees the true light of love and honor and helps build Pop's circus from its shambles state into a bigger, better, brighter show than before, with Jumbo resuming the limelight as its biggest star.

Two Companies Of Prize Winner

Robert Whitehead and Roger L. Stevens, sponsors of the original, will send out one company on a tour of major cities. The other troupe is to be geared for visits into smaller communities.

ANTHONY QUINN, in the title role of "Barabbas," asks the Roman crowd whether he should spare gladiator Jack Palance in the Technicolor - Technirama production. Also starred are Arthur Kennedy, Kathy Jurado, Harry Andrews, Vittorio Gassman and Ernest Borgnine. The film opens today at the Paramount Theatre.

SANDRA DEE and Bobby Darin are starring in the Ross Hunter production of "If A Man Answers," which is showing at the Joy Drive In Theatre. Also starring in the picture are John Lund, Cesar Romero and Stefanie Powers.

Curtain Call

As "Annie Get Your Gun" moves within four weeks of its opening date, the rehearsal tempo becomes more fantic. Director Richard M. Clark reports everything on schedule as evidenced by a first run - through of Act one last Monday.

Musical director Eloy Fominaya almost needs to be two places at once. The orchestra is practicing all the great "Annie" tunes under his baton at the college, while the chorus rehearses the lyrics at Strauss Playhouse.

Barbara Addison, a music major at Northeast, is sharing the chore of rehearsal pianist with Hilda McDonald who can thus take off a few nights a week. By coincidence, Barbara Addison, now Barbara Jordan, was a director of Little Theatre a few years ago, but she and her namesake are not kin.

LONG HOURS

June Sherman's costume committee is working overtime these days to outfit the large cast with all the different changes they require. Anyone who can lend western type clothes like fringed jackets, frontier pants, cowboy boots and fancy rodeo costumes for either men or women is invited to call June at FAirfax 2-9555.

Mrs. N. B. Album has just donated Little Theatre a fur coat that will doubtless see service in many a play, while Miss Lallage Feazel has given us two lovely evening gowns. Not that we want to compete with the Salvation Army, but we often wish people would think of Little Theatre when disposing of clothes and furniture that would be particularly suitable for theatrical use.

Some important items of new stage equipment were installed last week which will enable us to produce "Annie" more effectively. Five additional overhead lines will permit that many more drops, while the new legs and borders will replace temporary masking made of paper.

IMPROVEMENTS

Other recent improvements to our plant include screening the louvered doors to the air-conditioning room, thanks to Shady Wall, and connection of a matching speaker to our movie sound system, courtesy of Roy Holloway. The latter leads to a reminder that this coming Saturday, Cinema 63 will present "My Uncle," a French comedy in the M. Hulot series. Winner of a special Cannes Film Festival award, "My Uncle" satirizes an automated home overburdened with mechanical gadgets. Jacques Tati stars.

Most people know that "Annie Get Your Gun" is about actual headliners of the entertainment world a few generations back. In real life as in the musical, the fabulous Annie Oakley was a crack shot who became an international attraction. Free passes to theatres were called Annie Oakleys because the punched tickets resembled the playing cards she perforated with bullets in her act.

Col. William F. Cody, better known as Buffalo Bill, won fame as a marksman and Indian fighter in the pioneer days of the western plains. His Wild West Show became a sensation and toured the United States and Europe for a quarter century. During seventeen of these years, Annie Oakley was the feature attraction.

In addition to Annie and Buffalo Bill, portrayed in our cast by Betty Bandy and Garland Moore, other real - life characters who trouped with them are Sitting Bull, Pawnee Bill and Frank Butler, played by Henry Hass Jr., John Goorley and Jimmy Craft. The whole fascinating story is told in "Buffalo Bill's Great Wild West Show," a 1957 book available in the public library.

Based on truth stranger than fiction, adorned with man of Irving Berlin's most memorable song hits and blazing with color and action, "Annie Get Your Gun" may well be the most exciting Little Theatre offering of many a year.

Sadness Hits Hard In Life Of Bob Hope

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bob Hope, a man who makes millions of people laugh, has had little to smile about during past months.

They have been months of personal tragedy during which the ski-nosed comedian has had to be funny in the old "show must go on" tradition of his profession.

In August, 1962, Hope's brother, Jack, died. Shortly after that tragedy, two of the comic's closest associates passed away.

"I had a lot to get over," said Hope reflectively. "Those last four months were the roughest."

Hope was very close to brother Jack, who acted as his television producer. Bob was also saddened by the loss of his press agent and a comedy writer, both of whom had been with him for many years.

TRYING TIME

The personal tragedies, added to the physical burden of a long picture schedule in England, sapped Hope's strength at a time when Bob was going overseas for his annual Christmas visit to military bases.

"I had enough film for three shows," said Hope at Desilu Studios where he was working on a television commercial with Lucille Ball.

Bob took only three days off after the overseas trip and the comedian who will be 60 years old May 29, looks forward to a golfing vacation.

"I don't think I'll ever retire," he said. "I was going to take four months off after the trip. But things creep up on me. And I get a lot of therapy out of entertaining."

CAUGHT COLD

Hope caught a cold on his trip and he must keep in mind the fact that he has blood clot trouble with one of his eyes. The condition caused his physicians serious concern and forced Bob onto the sidelines in 1959.

Besides television commitments Hope is set for another movie, "A Global Affair," scheduled to start in April.

"I did a lot of work last year," he said. "I was tired even before the Christmas trip but I couldn't brush it off. But with that over I'm going to rest from now until April."

He forgot to say that a "rest" for Bob Hope includes at least four personal appearances on the banquet circuit that includes such sophisticated audiences as those in Chicago and New York.

With such comedy wise eastern audiences, Robert knows he'll have to do something more than just eat.

IN HOLLYWOOD

Christ Is Theme Of Supper Club

DETROIT (UPI) — Hollywood's famed Romanoff's closed recently because of decreasing patronage from the winning and dining crowd. Predictions followed that many such supper clubs would meet with the same fate.

But about the same time, a unique supper club opened here to a standing room only crowd which has kept the place filled almost every night since then.

It is a Christian supper club where hymns and handclapping have been substituted for drinking and dancing and cigarettes are not sold.

LITTLE REST

"Sometimes I wish we weren't doing so well," said Ed Darling, manager of the Crossroads Supper Club. We haven't been getting much sleep lately."

Crossroads is the result of 10 years of planning by area Christian leaders. The club, which formerly housed a conventional restaurant, is operated by Trinity Association, a non-profit organization created by 18 local Protestant businessmen.

Since Dec. 15 when Ethel Waters was on hand to entertain the club's "first nighters," Crossroads has been filled to its 600-person capacity Thursday through Sunday nights, with heavy crowds on the other nights.

Darling, a former member of the Four Londons dance team and a prominent lay figure in Christian work in Detroit, said that "our main purpose is to provide a dining place where liquor is not served. We don't mean to criticize those who do indulge but rather, offer a place of entertainment for those whose belief prohibit drinking."

Proceeds from the restaurant will go to various missions, youth organizations, orphanages and schools as of each Dec. 1.

Darling said to meet the demands of increasing patronage, a banquet room with a 150-person capacity will be opened soon. Crossroads presently employs 50 persons. Fifteen additional waitresses will be added in the near future.

"The idea of a Christian supper club is beginning to catch on from coast to coast," he said. "We have had many inquiries from groups in various cities where clubs may be opened. Toronto may be opening up such a place soon."

Such supper clubs ("night club" has an objectionable conotation to Darling) also provide a showcase for Christian talent.

CHRIST THEME

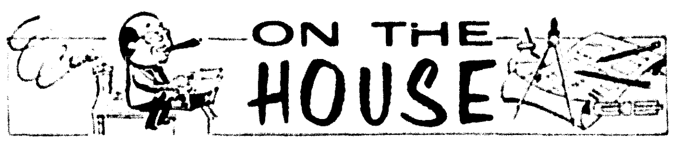
"We feature entertainment five of the six nights a week that we are open and all of it must have a 'Christ-centered' theme," Darling said.

"We invite such performers as Ethel Waters, George Beverly Shea and Stuart Hamblen. We hope to get such artists as Jerome Hines to present operatic numbers," he said.

"It is also not unusual to hear the diners singing out a rousing chorus of 'Let Me Call You Sweetheart'."

Darling, 43, who was evangelist Billy Graham's executive secretary from 1958 to 1961, said Graham will also be invited to speak to supper club audiences.

"Crossroads has found great acceptance with families including young people who come here on the weekends," he said. "We offer anything from a club dinner to steak with all the trimmings."



ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Durable, heat - resistant and waterproof, lacquer is one of the finest of finishes. But it also is one that requires careful, knowledgeable application to obtain satisfactory results.

A combined advantage and disadvantage of lacquer is that it dries quickly, almost instantly. Because of this, it picks up less dust from the air and permits several applications in a single day. At the same time, the fast-drying quality can mean trouble in attempting to get a smooth coat.

PRACTICE

Before lacquering anything for the first time, it is wise to practice on several pieces of scrap wood until you get the hang of it. Lacquer should be thinned about 50-50 with lacquer thinner for most applications, varying the percentages as you desire once you have learned the technique. Buy brushing or spraying lacquer depending on the equipment being used.

The brush is dipped into lacquer and applied generously in broad, sweeping strokes. Overlap the previous strokes slightly. You must work quickly and be certain that you have enough time to finish a complete panel at once. You can't stop—even for a few minutes— and then return to the job. Probably the most important thing to remember is never to go back over the same spot a second time.

Thus, if you discover that one part of the stock being worked on doesn't look just right, do not attempt to patch it. If you do, the entire area immediately will take on a muddy appearance. Instead, rely on the second coat to fill in the area properly, since each coat of lacquer sinks into the previous one.

There are two schools of thought on whether lacqquer should be sanded between coats. When first starting to use this finish, try a very light sanding after the first coat has dried. In many cases, two coats of lacquer will be sufficient, but the finish usually will have added durability if at least three are applied.

Lacquer is volatile. Use it only where there is plenty of ventilation. To turn a glossy coat of lacquer into a more satiny effect, sometimes desired, rub down the dried final coat with a clean cloth and a mixture of pumice and oil.

Top Attraction For Festival

PARIS (AP) — A top attraction at the International Drama Festival next spring is to be the Royal Shakespeare Company production of "King Lear" starring Paul Scofield. The drama was presented last season to high critical praise at Stratford-upon-Avon.

Since transferred to regular London run, the play will suspend performances in the British capital for two weeks in order to make the festival appearance.

Addition Due This Year At Show Center

LAMBERTVILLE, N.J. (AP)—St. John Terrell, a pioneer in summer music tent operation, plans to add a restaurant to his show center here next spring.'

The dining center is to be built a short distance from the theater, with a narrow-guage railway providing patrons with transportation between the two spots.

Star Back After Two Years Away

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — After a two-year absence, hazel-eyed Jean Simmons is returning to the movie screen in the role of a Tennessee housewife touched by tragedy.

She wears no makeup and must be padded in all the wrong places, but Miss Simmons picked this role for her first movie since making Sinclair Lewis' "Elmer Gantry."

"I had to do it," she said. "It is a moving and lovely thing that touches everyone."

She and co-star Robert Preston portray an average husband and wife in the Knoxville of 1915. The David Susskind movie, entitled "All the Way Home," is an adaptation of the Pulitzer Prize-winning story by the late James Agee, "A Death in the Family." Agee, as a child, describes what happens to his world when his father is killed in an automobile accident.

BLACK AND WHITE

"A lot of people have commented that this movie should be in color in order to show this breathtaking Tennessee mountain scenery," Miss Simmons said. "But this is a black and white story. Technicolor would be too gay, too lively."

Miss Simmons is making no effort to duplicate the nasal twang of the mountain country but also has had no trouble blending her quiet English accents with the local speech. This particular southern accent, she noted, is "often quite like English."

TOO LATE

The Paramount company arriven in Knoxville too late to use the old Agee home as background for the movie but found another "non-gingerbread victorian" house which matched it. The interior of the home was duplicated in New York for other scenes.

Some scenes also were filmed in Cade Cove in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Miss Simmons said she fell in love with the country and would "love to have a log cabin back in those hills."

"For a while, I was turning out movies like a sausage grinder," she said. "But that leaves one with no time for one's home and family. No more of that for me."

When things seem at their worst, Sam Rawlins (Stephen Boyd), handsome jack-of-all-circus-trades, appears out of the blue and gives every indication of not only saving the Wonder Circus but of capturing Kitty's heart. But then it turns out that he is the son of a rival circus owner (Dean Jagger) who wants to put the Wonder Circus out of the running. But in the end, Sam sees the true light of love and honor and helps build Pop's circus from its shambles state into a bigger, better, brighter show than before, with Jumbo resuming the limelight as its biggest star.

Two Companies Of Prize Winner

Robert Whitehead and Roger L. Stevens, sponsors of the original, will send out one company on a tour of major cities. The other troupe is to be geared for visits into smaller communities.

ANTHONY QUINN, in the title role of "Barabbas," asks the Roman crowd whether he should spare gladiator Jack Palance in the Technicolor - Technirama production. Also starred are Arthur Kennedy, Kathy Jurado, Harry Andrews, Vittorio Gassman and Ernest Borgnine. The film opens today at the Paramount Theatre.

SANDRA DEE and Bobby Darin are starring in the Ross Hunter production of "If A Man Answers," which is showing at the Joy Drive In Theatre. Also starring in the picture are John Lund, Cesar Romero and Stefanie Powers.

Curtain Call

As "Annie Get Your Gun" moves within four weeks of its opening date, the rehearsal tempo becomes more fantic. Director Richard M. Clark reports everything on schedule as evidenced by a first run - through of Act one last Monday.

Musical director Eloy Fominaya almost needs to be two places at once. The orchestra is practicing all the great "Annie" tunes under his baton at the college, while the chorus rehearses the lyrics at Strauss Playhouse.

Barbara Addison, a music major at Northeast, is sharing the chore of rehearsal pianist with Hilda McDonald who can thus take off a few nights a week. By coincidence, Barbara Addison, now Barbara Jordan, was a director of Little Theatre a few years ago, but she and her namesake are not kin.

LONG HOURS

June Sherman's costume committee is working overtime these days to outfit the large cast with all the different changes they require. Anyone who can lend western type clothes like fringed jackets, frontier pants, cowboy boots and fancy rodeo costumes for either men or women is invited to call June at FAirfax 2-9555.

Mrs. N. B. Album has just donated Little Theatre a fur coat that will doubtless see service in many a play, while Miss Lallage Feazel has given us two lovely evening gowns. Not that we want to compete with the Salvation Army, but we often wish people would think of Little Theatre when disposing of clothes and furniture that would be particularly suitable for theatrical use.

Some important items of new stage equipment were installed last week which will enable us to produce "Annie" more effectively. Five additional overhead lines will permit that many more drops, while the new legs and borders will replace temporary masking made of paper.

IMPROVEMENTS

Other recent improvements to our plant include screening the louvered doors to the air-conditioning room, thanks to Shady Wall, and connection of a matching speaker to our movie sound system, courtesy of Roy Holloway. The latter leads to a reminder that this coming Saturday, Cinema 63 will present "My Uncle," a French comedy in the M. Hulot series. Winner of a special Cannes Film Festival award, "My Uncle" satirizes an automated home overburdened with mechanical gadgets. Jacques Tati stars.

Most people know that "Annie Get Your Gun" is about actual headliners of the entertainment world a few generations back. In real life as in the musical, the fabulous Annie Oakley was a crack shot who became an international attraction. Free passes to theatres were called Annie Oakleys because the punched tickets resembled the playing cards she perforated with bullets in her act.

Col. William F. Cody, better known as Buffalo Bill, won fame as a marksman and Indian fighter in the pioneer days of the western plains. His Wild West Show became a sensation and toured the United States and Europe for a quarter century. During seventeen of these years, Annie Oakley was the feature attraction.

In addition to Annie and Buffalo Bill, portrayed in our cast by Betty Bandy and Garland Moore, other real - life characters who trouped with them are Sitting Bull, Pawnee Bill and Frank Butler, played by Henry Hass Jr., John Goorley and Jimmy Craft. The whole fascinating story is told in "Buffalo Bill's Great Wild West Show," a 1957 book available in the public library.

Based on truth stranger than fiction, adorned with man of Irving Berlin's most memorable song hits and blazing with color and action, "Annie Get Your Gun" may well be the most exciting Little Theatre offering of many a year.

Sadness Hits Hard In Life Of Bob Hope

They have been months of personal tragedy during which the ski-nosed comedian has had to be funny in the old "show must go on" tradition of his profession.

In August, 1962, Hope's brother, Jack, died. Shortly after that tragedy, two of the comic's closest associates passed away.

"I had a lot to get over," said Hope reflectively. "Those last four months were the roughest."

Hope was very close to brother Jack, who acted as his television producer. Bob was also saddened by the loss of his press agent and a comedy writer, both of whom had been with him for many years.

TRYING TIME

The personal tragedies, added to the physical burden of a long picture schedule in England, sapped Hope's strength at a time when Bob was going overseas for his annual Christmas visit to military bases.

"I had enough film for three shows," said Hope at Desilu Studios where he was working on a television commercial with Lucille Ball.

Bob took only three days off after the overseas trip and the comedian who will be 60 years old May 29, looks forward to a golfing vacation.

"I don't think I'll ever retire," he said. "I was going to take four months off after the trip. But things creep up on me. And I get a lot of therapy out of entertaining."

CAUGHT COLD

Hope caught a cold on his trip and he must keep in mind the fact that he has blood clot trouble with one of his eyes. The condition caused his physicians serious concern and forced Bob onto the sidelines in 1959.

Besides television commitments Hope is set for another movie, "A Global Affair," scheduled to start in April.

"I did a lot of work last year," he said. "I was tired even before the Christmas trip but I couldn't brush it off. But with that over I'm going to rest from now until April."

He forgot to say that a "rest" for Bob Hope includes at least four personal appearances on the banquet circuit that includes such sophisticated audiences as those in Chicago and New York.

With such comedy wise eastern audiences, Robert knows he'll have to do something more than just eat.

IN HOLLYWOOD

Christ Is Theme Of Supper Club

DETROIT (UPI) — Hollywood's famed Romanoff's closed recently because of decreasing patronage from the winning and dining crowd. Predictions followed that many such supper clubs would meet with the same fate.

But about the same time, a unique supper club opened here to a standing room only crowd which has kept the place filled almost every night since then.

It is a Christian supper club where hymns and handclapping have been substituted for drinking and dancing and cigarettes are not sold.

LITTLE REST

"Sometimes I wish we weren't doing so well," said Ed Darling, manager of the Crossroads Supper Club. We haven't been getting much sleep lately."

Crossroads is the result of 10 years of planning by area Christian leaders. The club, which formerly housed a conventional restaurant, is operated by Trinity Association, a non-profit organization created by 18 local Protestant businessmen.

Since Dec. 15 when Ethel Waters was on hand to entertain the club's "first nighters," Crossroads has been filled to its 600-person capacity Thursday through Sunday nights, with heavy crowds on the other nights.

Darling, a former member of the Four Londons dance team and a prominent lay figure in Christian work in Detroit, said that "our main purpose is to provide a dining place where liquor is not served. We don't mean to criticize those who do indulge but rather, offer a place of entertainment for those whose belief prohibit drinking."

Proceeds from the restaurant will go to various missions, youth organizations, orphanages and schools as of each Dec. 1.

Darling said to meet the demands of increasing patronage, a banquet room with a 150-person capacity will be opened soon. Crossroads presently employs 50 persons. Fifteen additional waitresses will be added in the near future.

"The idea of a Christian supper club is beginning to catch on from coast to coast," he said. "We have had many inquiries from groups in various cities where clubs may be opened. Toronto may be opening up such a place soon."

Such supper clubs ("night club" has an objectionable conotation to Darling) also provide a showcase for Christian talent.

CHRIST THEME

"We feature entertainment five of the six nights a week that we are open and all of it must have a 'Christ-centered' theme," Darling said.

"We invite such performers as Ethel Waters, George Beverly Shea and Stuart Hamblen. We hope to get such artists as Jerome Hines to present operatic numbers," he said.

"It is also not unusual to hear the diners singing out a rousing chorus of 'Let Me Call You Sweetheart'."

Darling, 48, who was evangelist Billy Graham's executive secretary from 1958 to 1961, said Graham will also be invited to speak to supper club audiences.

"Crossroads has found great acceptance with families including young people who come here on the weekends," he said. "We offer anything from a club dinner to steak with all the trimmings."

Durable, heat - resistant and waterproof, lacquer is one of the finest of finishes. But it also is one that requires careful, knowledgeable application to obtain satisfactory results.

A combined advantage and disadvantage of lacquer is that it dries quickly, almost instantly. Because of this, it picks up less dust from the air and permits several applications in a single day. At the same time, the fast-drying quality can mean trouble in attempting to get a smooth coat.

PRACTICE

Before lacquering anything for the first time, it is wise to practice on several pieces of scrap wood until you get the hang of it. Lacquer should be thinned about 50-50 with lacquer thinner for most applications, varying the percentages as you desire once you have learned the technique. Buy brushing or spraying lacquer depending on the equipment being used.

The brush is dipped into lacquer and applied generously in broad, sweeping strokes. Overlap the previous strokes slightly. You must work quickly and be certain that you have enough time to finish a complete panel at once. You can't stop—even for a few minutes— and then return to the job. Probably the most important thing to remember is never to go back over the same spot a second time.

Thus, if you discover that one part of the stock being worked on doesn't look just right, do not attempt to patch it. If you do, the entire area immediately will take on a muddy appearance. Instead, rely on the second coat to fill in the area properly, since each coat of lacquer sinks into the previous one.

There are two schools of thought on whether lacqquer should be sanded between coats. When first starting to use this finish, try a very light sanding after the first coat has dried. In many cases, two coats of lacquer will be sufficient, but the finish usually will have added durability if at least three are applied.

Lacquer is volatile. Use it only where there is plenty of ventilation. To turn a glossy coat of lacquer into a more satiny effect, sometimes desired, rub down the dried final coat with a clean cloth and a mixture of pumice and oil.

Top Attraction For Festival

PARIS (AP) — A top attraction at the International Drama Festival next spring is to be the Royal Shakespeare Company production of "King Lear" starring Paul Scofield. The drama was presented last season to high critical praise at Stratford-upon-Avon.

Since transferred to regular London run, the play will suspend performances in the British capital for two weeks in order to make the festival appearance.

Addition Due This Year At Show Center

LAMBERTVILLE, N.J. (AP)— St. John Terrell, a pioneer in summer music tent operation, plans to add a restaurant to his show center here next spring.'

The dining center is to be built a short distance from the theater, with a narrow-guage railway providing patrons with transportation between the two spots.

Star Back After Two Years Away

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — After a two-year absence, hazel-eyed Jean Simmons is returning to the movie screen in the role of a Tennessee housewife touched by tragedy.

She wears no makeup and must be padded in all the wrong places, but Miss Simmons picked this role for her first movie since making Sinclair Lewis' "Elmer Gantry."

"I had to do it," she said. "It is a moving and lovely thing that touches everyone."

She and co-star Robert Preston portray an average husband and wife in the Knoxville of 1915. The David Susskind movie, entitled "All the Way Home," is an adaptation of the Pulitzer Prize-winning story by the late James Agee, "A Death in the Family." Agee, as a child, describes what happens to his world when his father is killed in an automobile accident.

BLACK AND WHITE

"A lot of people have commented that this movie should be in color in order to show this breathtaking Tennessee mountain scenery," Miss Simmons said. "But this is a black and white story. Technicolor would be too gay, too lively."

Miss Simmons is making no effort to duplicate the nasal twang of the mountain country but also has had no trouble blending her quiet English accents with the local speech. This particular southern accent, she noted, is "often quite like English."

TOO LATE

The Paramount company arriven in Knoxville too late to use the old Agee home as background for the movie but found another "non-gingerbread victorian" house which matched it. The interior of the home was duplicated in New York for other scenes.

Some scenes also were filmed in Cade Cove in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Miss Simmons said she fell in love with the country and would "love to have a log cabin back in those hills."

"For a while, I was turning out movies like a sausage grinder," she said. "But that leaves one with no time for one's home and family. No more of that for me."

U.S. Has 400 Missiles Ready For Russians

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has at least 400 missiles deployed with nuclear warheads that could be launched on Russian targets.

These include more than 175 intercontinental ballistic missiles — Atlas, Titan and Minuteman — which are ready to be fired from bases in the United States at targets more than 5,000 miles away.

Another 160 missiles are aboard 10 Polaris submarines which have been commissioned by the Navy — probably nine-tenths of these are ready to fire at any given time.

There are also 60 Thor missiles mounted in Britain, 30 Jupiters in Italy and 15 Jupiters in Turkey. The Thor and Jupiter, which use the same rocket engine, can travel more than 1,760 miles.

None of these missiles carries a nuclear punch of the size Premier Khrushchev claims to be able to launch against the United States. Probably the most powerful of the ICBM warheads is equal to no more than 5 megatons — five million tons of TNT — whereas Khrushchev claims to have a 100-megaton bomb.

However, the American ICBM's are backed up by a powerful fleet of more than 1,000 bombers, including more than 500 eight-engine 52's and 100 supersonic B58s.

SCS Transfers West Monroyan To St. Joseph

ST. JOSEPH (Special) — Garland Colvin, soils scientist with the Soil Conservation Service, has been transferred here from West Monroe to assist in mapping of soils in Tensas Parish, and recording the work on aerial photographs.

Colvin employed with the SCS for a year graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College in 1961 receiving a degree in General Agriculture. He has completed training under guidance of D. L. Richardson, area conservationist and Tracay Weems, area soils scientist with supervision from S. R. Aycock, work unit conservationist at West Monroe.

Tax Vote Set At Area Town

FERRIDAY (Special) — A sales tax proposition will be voted on here March 5, according to Mayor Woodie Davis.

He said if the proposition passes, the collection of one percent tax on sales and services will be authorized for a period not to exceed 20 years.

Revenues from the proposed tax would be used to finance a water system.

Services Set For Victim Of Auto Accident

Funeral services are slated today at 2 p.m. for Mrs. Ethel Lawrence, 62-year-old West Monroe woman who died Friday night from injuries received in a car wreck west of Alto, La.

Mrs. Lawrence, who resided at 219 Arrant Rd., was pronounced dead at St. Francis hospital Friday night where she was rushed for emergency treatment. Her son, Ronald C. (3)—Card of Thanks

We wish to express our appreciation for the many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy extended by our friends during the death of our beloved son and brother Dewey Fisher. We especially thank Rev. Johnston, Clarks, La.; Dr. Causey, Columbia, La. and Bro. Jewel Estes, Shreveport, La. All have our everlasting gratitude.
Mrs. J. B. Fisher, Clarks, La.
Percy Fisher, Monroe, La.
Millard Fisher, Ferriday, La.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy, and beautiful floral offerings received during our recent bereavement in the loss of our beloved wife and mother. We especially thank the nurses of the 5th floor of the St. Francis Hospital, Doctor Willey and Doctor Guerriero.
The Family of Mrs. Genava Barnett.

U.S. Has 400 Missiles Ready For Russians

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has at least 400 missiles deployed with nuclear warheads that could be launched on Russian targets.

These include more than 175 intercontinental ballistic missiles —Atlas, Titan, and Minuteman—which are ready to be fired from bases in the United States at targets more than 5,000 miles away.

Another 160 missiles are aboard 10 Polaris submarines which have been commissioned by the Navy—probably nine-tenths of these are ready to fire at any given time.

There are also 60 Thor missiles mounted in Britain, 30 Jupiters in Italy and 15 Jupiters in Turkey. The Thor and Jupiter, which use the same rocket engine, can travel more than 1,700 miles.

None of these missiles carries a nuclear punch of the size Premier Khrushchev claims to be able to launch against the United States. Probably the most powerful of the ICBM warheads is equal to no more than 5 megatons—five million tons of TNT — whereas Khrushchev claims to have a 100-megaton bomb.

However, the American ICBM's are backed up by a powerful fleet of more than 1,000 bombers, including more than 500 eight-engine 52's and 100 supersonic B58s.

SCS Transfers West Monroyan To St. Joseph

ST. JOSEPH (Special) — Garland Colvin, soils scientist with the Soil Conservation Service, has been transferred here from West Monroe to assist in mapping of soils in Tensas Parish, and recording the work on aerial photographs.

Colvin employed with the SCS for a year graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College in 1961 receiving a degree in General Agriculture. He had completed training under guidance of D. L. Richardson, area conservationist and Tracay Weems, area soils scientist with supervision from S. R. Aycock, work unit conservationist at West Monroe.

Tax Vote Set At Area Town

FERRIDAY (Special) — A sales tax proposition will be voted on here March 5, according to Mayor Woodie Davis.

He said if the proposition passes, the collection of one percent tax on sales and services will be authorized for a period not to exceed 20 years.

Revenues from the proposed tax would be used to finance a water system.

Services Set For Victim Of Auto Accident

Funeral services are slated today at 2 p.m. for Mrs. Ethel Lawrence, 62-year-old West Monroe woman who died Friday night from injuries received in a car wreck west of Alto. La.

Mrs. Lawrence, who resided at 319 Arrant Rd., was pronounced dead at St. Francis hospital Friday night where she was rushed for emergency treatment. Her son, Ronald C. Fire Fighters At Bastrop Get Firm's Thanks

BASTROP (Special) — Fire Chief Maurice Grimes has received a telegram from Richard C. Doane, chairman of International Paper Co. in New York congratulating him and his department for their volunteer services in the mill fire at Pine Bluff, Ark., last weekend.

Grimes and eight off-duty firemen here worked for more than 20 hours in the smouldering fire.

The chairman expressed gratitude in behalf of the company for valuable cooperation during the Pine Bluff fire which took the lives of two men.

He said that without the efforts of the fire-fighters from southeast Arkansas and northern Louisiana, damages and casualties might have been much worse.

Bedwell Service Slated Today; Died Saturday

Funeral services will be held today for Mrs. Mildred S. Bedwell, 58-year-old Monroe resident, who was pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital Saturday afternoon from a heart attack.

Mrs. Bedwell, a native of DeSoto, Missouri, lived at 2114 Gordon Ave. here.

The Revs. George Harbuck and Charles Strong will officiate at the services to be held today at 3:30 p.m. at the chapel of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home. Burial will be in Riverview Cemetery under the direction of Hixson Brothers.

Strong Salesman

NO CREDIT rejects — we finance our own! No canvassing — millions of $$$$$ per year in national TV, newspapers, and magazines produce thousands of LEADS per month. No bank financing, Title I, 2nd mortgage consolidation necessary — we finance our own. This is not for home improvements, but we are looking for a home improvement or direct type salesman, who is tired of the old rat race, angles, cons, and frustrations of the direct selling as it is today! If you are a good closer in the home improvement or direct sales business, this will be "duck soup" for you. Our men earn between $850 and $1500 per month. We are a powerful corporation listed on the American Stock Exchange. Answering this ad can change your whole future. Call FA 5-9611 between 8:30 A.M. and 12 Noon for immediate appointment. CLOSERS ARE OUR MOST IMPORTANT ASSET.

Strong Salesman
NO CREDIT rejects — we finance our own! No canvassing — millions of $$$$$ per year in national TV, newspapers, and magazines produce thousands of LEADS per month. No bank financing, Title 1, 2nd mortgage consolidation necessary — we finance our own. This is not for home improvements, but we are looking for a home improvement or direct type salesman, who is tired of the old rat race, angles, cons, and frustrations of the direct selling as it is today! If you are a good closer in the home improvement or direct sales business, this will be "duck soup" for you. Our men earn between $850 and $1500 per month. We are a powerful corporation listed on the American Stock Exchange. Answering this ad can change your whole future. Call FA 5-9611 between 8:30 A.M. and 12 Noon for immediate appointment. CLOSERS ARE OUR MOST IMPORTANT ASSET.

NEW LISTING
3115 NORTH 8TH

Take a good look at this price — only $8900 — then take a long look at what this buys! This 8-year-old asbestos siding home has 2 bedrooms 12x14, and 10x12, bath with linen closet, living room 12x16, kitchen-dining combination 12x16 with 14 ft. of upper and 14 ft. of lower cabinets, snack bar, ventahood and spray. And for winter comfort, this home is centrally heated by Coleman, and has attic fan, Venetian blinds, vinyl asbestos floors, and washer and dryer connections. Garage and 8x12 outside storage. And the lot is something to behold—72½x150 ft., completely enclosed in cyclone fence, with 2 live oak, water oak, catalpa, pine, mimosa, and magnolia trees — plus a decorative gas light and ornamental iron trim around front and garage. Convenient, too — just a short distance from Highland School, shopping center, and churches. Let's see this one now!

For Sale

THIS HOME is most unusual, built by W. V. Clark, only 6 years ago. On a corner lot 150x140 ft., with a $10,000 Zoysia grass lawn, pretty trees, and landscaping, complete underground sprinkler system. This home is an authentic Roman brick, Western ranch style. All ceilings 10 ft. with the exception of large family room, which is 11 ft., exposed beams. All windows polished plate glass, Venetian type, that open and lock from the inside. 20 year roof. Living and dining area 32x22x14, Roman brick fireplace from floor to ceiling with plant divider. The dining area is 10x12, picture window, center front door knob. 3 electric switch controls that control lights throughout the house. Wall-to-wall carpet in living room, halls, and bedroom area, family room hardwood block floors, kitchen vinyl. A dream of a kitchen, 18x24, large enough for a couple of rocking chairs as well as a 10 ft. desk arrangement with cabinets all on 3 sides, divider between family room and kitchen is 12 ft. high. Ponderosa pine sliding cabinets flanked by a planter on top of there cabinets, all hardware authentic Western, built-in range and oven, double sink, Formica cabinets and splashboard. You will love the utility room, which could also be used as a bedroom, size 18x20 — a wonderful room off the kitchen. This room houses the laundry facilities, air conditioning unit, hot water tank, and lots of storage with outside entrance. 2 huge baths, one 10x15 in pink tile, other pale yellow, 8x10, with tubs and showers, vanities, and lots of built-ins. This is actually a 3 bedroom home made into a 2 bedroom home. Just look at the sizes of these bedrooms: 16x20 with an offset sitting room, wall-to-wall carpeted, 2 huge walk-in closets, master control light switch. Another bedroom 18x16, with all the furniture built-in, all you need is a bed, 2 convenient halls, completely lined with closets and 1 huge cedar closet 23x14 family room, 11 ft. ceilings, exposed beams, Roman brick fireplace with whatnots from mantel to ceiling, hardwood block floors, opens to a 32 ft. patio which would make a wonderful bedroom and bath—it's so large! Double carport with interior walls of Roman brick, opens to a covered walk to the front door and kitchen. All light fixtures of the best quality and authentic Western. Central heating, 7 tons air conditioning, blinds, and drapes. School bus. This house is fully insulated, intercom system and radio reception all over the house. All light switches are silent mercury. Termite contract. This house is located near the country club, golf course, and shopping centers. It's pretty — it's spacious — it's big — and we hope you will be the fortunate one to own it! Call us for appointment to show!

WEST MONROE

We Have The Lovely Home of Mrs. Emma Jean Mouton Huddleston For Sale

THIS HOME is most unusual, built by W. V. Clark, only 6 years ago. On a corner lot 150x140 ft. with a $10,000 Zoysia grass lawn, pretty trees, and landscaping, complete underground sprinkler system. This home is an authentic Roman brick Western ranch style. All ceilings 10 ft. with the exception of large family room, which is 11 ft., exposed beams. All windows polished plate glass, Venetian type, that open and lock from the inside. 20 year roof. Living and dining area 32x22x14, Roman brick fireplace from floor to ceiling with plant divider. The dining area is 10x12, picture window, center front door knob. 3 electric switch controls that control lights throughout the house. Wall-to-wall carpet in living room, halls, and bedroom area, family room hardwood block floors, kitchen vinyl. A dream of a kitchen, 18x24, large enough for a couple of rocking chairs as well as a 10 ft. desk arrangement with cabinets all on 3 sides, divider between family room and kitchen is 12 ft. high, Ponderosa pine sliding cabinets, flanked by a planter on top of these cabinets, all hardware authentic Western, built-in range and oven, double sink, Formica cabinets and splashboard. You will love the utility room, which could also be used as a bedroom, size 18x20 — a wonderful room off the kitchen. This room houses the laundry facilities, air conditioning unit, hot water tank, and lots of storage, with outside entrance. 2 huge baths, one 10x15 in pink tile, other pale yellow, 8x10, with tubs and showers, vanities, and lots of built-ins. This is actually a 3 bedroom home made into a 2 bedroom home. Just look at the sizes of these bedrooms—16x20 with an offset sitting room, wall-to-wall carpeted, 2 huge walk-in closets, master control light switch. Another bedroom 18x16, with all the furniture built-in, all you need is a bed. 2 convenient halls, completely lined with closets and 1 huge cedar closet. 23x14 family room, 11 ft. ceilings, exposed beams. Roman brick fireplace with whatnots from mantel to ceiling, hardwood block floors, opens to a 32 ft. patio which would make a wonderful bedroom and bath—it's so large! Double carport with interior walls of Roman brick, opens to a covered walk to the front door and kitchen. All light fixtures of the best quality and authentic Western. Central heating, 7 tons air conditioning, blinds, and drapes. School bus. This house is fully insulated, intercom system and radio reception all over the house. All light switches are silent mercury. Termite contract. This house is located near the country club, golf course, and shopping centers. It's pretty — it's spacious — it's big — and we hope you will be the fortunate one to own it! Call us for appointment to show!

OH, HOW I HATE THESE LUNCH HOURS!
I ALWAYS HAVE TO EAT ALONE BECAUSE NOBODY LIKES ME..
PEANUT BUTTER AGAIN..
I WISH THAT LITTLE RED-HAIRED GIRL WOULD COME OVER, AND SIT WITH ME...
WOULDN'T IT BE GREAT IF SHE'D WALK OVER HERE, AND SAY, "MAY I EAT LUNCH WITH YOU, CHARLIE BROWN?"
I'D GIVE ANYTHING TO TALK WITH HER...SHE'D NEVER LIKE ME, THOUGH...I'M SO BLAH AND SO STUPID... SHE'D NEVER LIKE ME...
I WONDER WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF I WENT OVER AND TRIED TO TALK TO HER! EVERYBODY WOULD PROBABLY LAUGH.. SHE'D PROBABLY BE INSULTED, TOO, IF SOMEONE AS BLAH AS I AM TRIED TO TALK TO HER
I HATE LUNCH HOUR..ALL IT DOES IS MAKE ME LONELY...DURING CLASS IT DOESN'T MATTER....
I CAN'T EVEN EAT... NOTHING TASTES GOOD...
RATS! NOBODY IS EVER GOING TO LIKE ME..
LUNCH HOUR IS THE LONELIEST HOUR OF THE DAY!

MR. WABBLE, WHAT HAPPENED TO YOUR CANARY?
HE GOT AWAY YESTERDAY, DENNIS.
YA MEAN HE BROKE OUTTA HIS CAGE?
WELL, NOT REALLY.
MAYBE HE'S IN THERE SOMEPLACE...
NO. HE'S GONE, DENNIS.
DID HE FLY AWAY?
HUH? OH. YES. THAT'S RIGHT.
DIDN'T ANYBODY EVER LOOK FOR HIM?

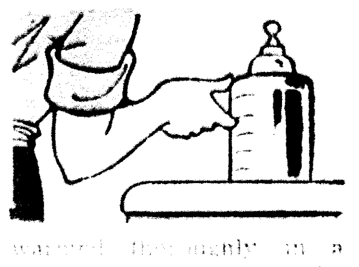
HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:
Instead of a bottle warmer to warm my baby's bottle, I remove the label from an empty number 2½ can. Then I rinse it thoroughly.

When this can is filled with hot water from the tap and placed on a low burner on your stove, the bottle you place in the can will be warmed thoroughly in a very short time, as the water will come to the neck of the bottle.



When baby starts using a full bottle of milk, change to a No. 3 can (fruit juice).

Such a can is handy to take along when traveling too. You can fill a vacuum bottle with hot water and when the time comes to feed the infant . . . just pour the hot water in the can and the milk can be heated without the necessity of a stove.

Vivian B. Stee

PRESSING WORK

DEAR HELOISE:
I have found a new way to sprinkle my weekly ironing without effort. I just dip a clean sponge in some water and squeeze it out while holding it over my pile of ironing . . . then put the sprinkled clothing back in my dryer for a little while.

I find that this distributes the dampness perfectly without leaving some clothes too wet in spots while others are practically dry.

R. G.

GUARD AGAINST COLD

DEAR HELOISE:
If you have a rug and cannot afford to buy rug pads, I would like to pass on this information: Newspapers can be used for this purpose!

Gives the rug a backing and in cool weather gives inexpensive weatherproofing to hold out dampness and cold.

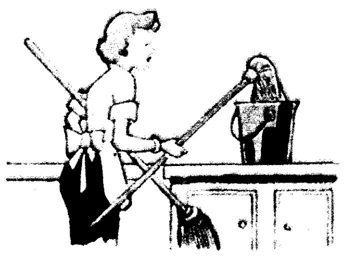
Appreciative

POTS AND PANS

DEAR HELOISE:
When my mother visited me recently, she observed that I was constantly using one little favorite pan; in fact, working it overtime. So my mother suggested that I get another pan just like it. That's exactly what I did. I could kick myself for not having had the use of TWO of my favorite pans all these years.

Marian Palunas

RAG MOP RHYTHM



DEAR HELOISE:
Here's a really-dilly for those who have lots of floors to mop: instead of using just one mop, use two! Use one mop in the mop pail itself and the other mop to rinse with. It's always free of soap from the previous rinsing. This cuts mopping time in half. When finished mopping, I rinse the soapy mop out in the last clear rinse water.

I do my mopping through the entire house and save the bathroom until last. When I get to this room . . . I add a small amount of bleach to the water. It not only cleanses the tile, but my mops as well.

Mrs. N.

FOR ACHES AND CAKES

DEAR HELOISE:
For those who make homemade cakes, etc., where the creaming of shortening and flour is desired: Have you ever tried using your heating pad? Put the bowl of shortening with the sugar on the heating pad and this, when turned on low heat, makes the shortening and sugar cream twice as fast!

Top secret: I believe the reason Grandma's cakes were so wonderful, is that she used her hands to make that batter.

Rose Cohen

GOOD MARKS

DEAR HELOISE:
I have extra-long bottom sheets for our bed. So that they can be quickly recognized, I tip one corner with red nail polish. I never have time for any other markings! It takes months for the commercial laundries to wash it out!

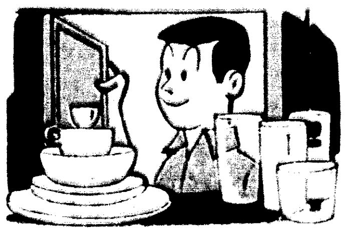
My most-copied idea is to use our freezer as a place for storing valuable papers. It is the one place in the house which is fireproof, and can be locked if desired. I put the papers in tightly sealed plastic bags.

Reader

PILE OF DISHES

DEAR HELOISE:
If you don't mind, here is a suggestion for bachelors and those who live alone and do their own cooking. When washing breakfast dishes . . . stack them from bottom to top this way: first the plate, then the saucer, bowl, coffee cup, and last the egg cup.

In one "feil swoop" you reach for this little pile and have every dish that is needed for an immediate breakfast. By trial and error I have found that this eliminates four trips to the cabinet each morning!



Henry Spillner

EXTRA HIGH CHAIRS

DEAR HELOISE:
For those who have wee little guests in their homes for dinner and have no high chair . . . they can use the old thick telephone books or catalogues!

Many is the time that we have pulled the catalogues and heavy books out of our bookcase and stacked them on the seat of a dining-room chair to please not only the parents but the child!

Also, Heloise, if one has a wee tot at her dinner table, no matter how beautifully it is laid . . . place a piece of plastic under his plate. This prevents spills and spots.

Drew Jenkins

STRONGER SACKS

DEAR HELOISE:
Save the cardboard out of laundry shirts. It is ideal to go in the bottom of grocery sacks to convert them into reinforced garbage sacks.

Reader

HOT COLE SLAW

DEAR HELOISE:
When we make cabbage slaw—sometimes we add carrots to it to give it color and it sells twice as fast—we always grate the core of the cabbage into the slaw itself. The reason for this is that it makes the slaw hot. It gives it a tang that most homemade cabbage slaw does not have. When adding the core to the cabbage, be sure to grate it on the fine grater. Mix the cabbage well.

SURE! A MESS OUTSIDE BUT A PALACE INSIDE!
AND A TALL, TALL MAN WITH WHISKERS, WHO WORE A FEZ!
THAT MAN'S NAME IS SAM SENECA, A VERY OLD FRIEND! CAN YOU FIND HIS HOUSE AGAIN?
SURE I CAN! THAT'S EASY!
TAKE THIS ENVELOPE: GIVE IT TO NO ONE BUT MR. SENECA PERSONALLY!
MUST BE IMPORTANT! JUST AS WELL I CARRY IT WHERE IT DOESN'T SHOW, 'SPECIALLY IN THIS NEIGHBORHOOD!
LOOKED BAD ENOUGH THAT NIGHT, TWICE AS BAD IN DAYLIGHT! STAY CLOSE TO ME, SANDY! HA! THERE'S HIS DOOR!
WHO IS IT, HASSAN? ANNIE! COME IN, CHILD; COME IN!
DOÑA ISABEL SAID TO GIVE YOU THIS, MR. SENECA!
AH, YES! THANK YOU! SIT DOWN, MY CHILD: YOU ARE JUST IN TIME FOR TEA! HASSAN!
HM-M... DEAR DOÑA ISABEL! NONE WILL EVER KNOW HOW MANY POOR AND TROUBLED ONES SHE HAS BEFRIENDED! AH! THANK YOU, HASSAN! YOU WILL NOTE, ANNIE, YOUR "TEA" TURNS OUT TO BE CHOCOLATE!
WOW! I'M CRAZY 'BOUT CHOC'LATE!
AH! YOU ARE OBSERVANT, EH? TO FLAUNT PROSPERITY IS NOT ONLY VULGAR, IT CAN BE MOST DANGEROUS! I HAD TO LEARN PRUDENCE THE HARD WAY, IN OLD SHANGHAI!
B-BUT YOU AREN'T CHINESE, ARE YOU?
HO-HO! NO, ANNIE! I FEAR, AS YOUR THOMAS JEFFERSON ONCE WROTE, "THE MERCHANT HAS NO COUNTRY"!

BUT HERE IS A PACKET FOR DOÑA ISABEL! AND I HOPE, ANNIE, YOU AND SANDY COME AGAIN, OFTEN!
WE'D SURE LIKE THAT! AN' THANKS FOR EVER'THING!

JOHN AUDUBON TRIES PORTRAIT PAINTING BEFORE HE FINDS HIS TRUE NICHE.... BOSTON, 1815...
HOW IS IT COMING, DEAR?
MISTER AUDUBON... ARE YOU SURE PORTRAITURE IS YOUR FORTE? HAVE YOU EVER THOUGHT OF SPECIALIZING? PERHAPS PAINTING WILDLIFE....
I REALLY LIKE TO PAINT BIRDS... BUT HOW DID YOU KNOW?
AN ARTIST'S GOTTA PAINT WHAT HE SEES... BUT THAT DON'T FEATHER HIS NEST...
WELL, SOME BIRD BETTER GIVE HIM SOME FRANCS TO PAY THE RENT, OR HE'S A DEAD PIGEON!!
IF YOU ASK ME, HE'S SO HUNGRY EVERYBODY LOOKS LIKE A CHICKEN DINNER TO HIM!
